GRUNDY A SENATOR AFTER LONG DEBATE ON HIS APPOINTMENT

Nye Resolution Denying Him Seat Refused to Vare Is Shunted Aside.

MANY ASSAIL SELECTION

Grundy Takes Oath for Place From Pennsylvania as Vare Lies Ill at Atlantic City.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Joseph R. Grundy, denounced as arch tariff lobbyist, today was sworn in as Senator from Pennsylvania, bringing to an end the three-year contest that developed over the 1926 primary and led to the rejection of William S. Vare of Philadelphia, who was elected after a primary contest, costing all candidates about $2,500,000.

A week after it had refused to seat Mr. Vare because of the vastness of the primary campaign expenditures, the Senate accepted in his place the man who had a chief part in financing the ticket of Governor Fisher and former Senator Pepper, in whose interests nearly twice the amount expended for Mr. Vare had been spent.

Debate on the seating of Mr. Grundy, named to the place yesterday by Governor Fisher, occupied the attention of the Senate for three hours. It revolved around a resolution by Senator Nye of North Dakota, which challenged the validity of Governor Fisher's election in 1926 and declared that he had not the authority to appoint a Senator.

Without a roll-call, the Senate after ignoring the Nye resolution, finally adopted a motion offered by Senator Johnson of California, which permitted Mr. Grundy to be sworn in and referred his credentials and all matters pertaining to his appointment to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

This action is interpreted by Senate leaders as meaning the final acceptance of Mr. Grundy as a Senator.

Most Against Any Challenge.

Senators Norris and Borah and others in the fight to prevent Mr. Vare being seated indicated the belief that there was no question as to Mr. Grundy's title to the seat or as to Governor Fisher's authority to make the appointment. They insisted that the Senate had no authority to investigate the action of the Governor of a sovereign State.

But before the Senate made its decision many speeches were made by those who favored the Nye resolution. Senator Nye insisted that his resolution was proper.

Senator Cutting, Republican, of New Mexico, vigorously denounced the appointment. He argued that Governor Fisher's election in 1926 was questionable and, therefore, the Senate had the same right to refuse his appointee a seat as it had to pass upon the qualifications of Senator-elect Vare.

The certificate of appointment, brought by motor from Harrisburg, was presented to Mr. Grundy at his hotel by Frank J. Gorman, secretary to Governor Fisher, about 1 P. M.

Half an hour later, Mr. Grundy, escorted by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, entered the Senate chamber. Mr. Grundy took a seat next to the rear row, that of Senator Norris of Nebraska, and Mr. Reed that of Senator Jones of Washington. As soon as a chance offered, Senator Reed asked that the tariff debate be suspended. He then presented Mr. Grundy's credentials.

Test of Nye Resolution.

After their reading, Senator Nye's resolution was laid before the chamber. The text of it was:

Whereas on the 6th day of December, 1929, the Senate denied a seat in the United States Senate to William S. Vare of Pennsylvania by a direct vote, by Senate Resolution 111; and

Whereas said Senate resolution, which declared the ground upon which the Senate denied the said Vare a seat in the United States Senate, declared that a Senate investigation led to finding that evidence, without substantial dispute, showing that at the primary election at which William S. Vare was alleged to have been nominated as a candidate for the United States Senate, there was spent in behalf of said Vare in said primary election by the said Vare and his friends a sum of money exceeding $785,000; and

Whereas, it was the expenditure of this excessive amount of money and the matter of its expenditure which caused the Senate to deny a seat in the United States Senate to the said Vare; and,

Whereas the Governor of the State of Pennsylvania, John S.

Half Inch of Snow Falls Here as Cold Wave Grips the Northeast; Zero Weather Up-State

New England and up-State New York got a touch of Arctic weather yesterday when the cold wave which descended upon those sections late Wednesday sent the thermometer toppling below zero. The lowest temperature recorded in New York City was 14 degrees at 9 A. M. This was three degrees higher than the record low for the season, 11 degrees, recorded on Nov. 30 last.

But at Albany, The Associated Press reported, the mercury reached zero; at Syracuse it was only 3 above; while at Owl's Head, N. Y., on the northern edge of the Adirondack Mountains, it dropped to 30 below zero. Similar temperatures prevailed in New England. Boston reported 7 above zero; South Merrimac, N. H., 12 below; Springfield, Vt., 26 below, and South Londonderry, Vt., 30 below. At South Merrimac, N. H., the cold was so severe schools were ordered closed. At Quebec, with the thermometer reading 8 below, the ice bridge between the Island of Orleans and the mainland formed a fortnight earlier than usual.

Snow accompanied the cold spell and caused inconvenience. Trains and buses were delayed in many sections, telephone and telegraph communications were paralyzed, and water pipes and automobile radiators frozen. Fortunately for New York City by the time the first snow flurries reached here about 4 P. M., the mercury already had climbed near the freezing mark and was still moving upward.

By 8 P. M., the Weather Bureau reported, half an inch of snow had fallen. But the flakes were large and moist and melted almost as quickly as they reached the ground. Yet even with a prospect of still warmer weather the Bureau of Street Cleaning began mobilizing its forces for a general cleanup of the city's streets.

Throughout the snowstorm motor brooms were kept busy on the various city bridges. At daybreak, Street Cleaning Department officials said, all the forces at their command comprising 909 pieces of equipment—brooms, plows and flushing machines—and 1,898 men, would be put to work removing whatever snow remained.

The cold wave was felt all along the Atlantic seaboard from New York northward. The Connecticut River at Turners Falls, Mass., and the Deerfield River were frozen over, The Associated Press reported, and the Penobscot River was declared closed to navigation for the season after the Cutter Kickapoo had broken a channel through ice for seven miles to allow the last boat to depart.

At Worcester, Mass., a woman who had disappeared last Monday was found in the woods near her home frozen to death.

LARGER BODY WILL FOLLOW

Permanent Organization Likely —Lamont Says Public Building Division Will Cooperate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Twenty leading business men, directing corporations whose assets run into billions of dollars, were named today by Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, as the executive committee authorized by the recent national business survey conference to recommend courses of action looking to the stabilization of business.

The members of the committee to serve with Mr. Barnes are as follows:

OWEN D. YOUNG, chairman of the board, General Electric Company, and Radio Corporation of America, New York City.

MYRON C. TAYLOR, chairman of the finance committee, United States Steel Corporation, New York City.

THOMAS W. LAMONT of J. P. Morgan & Co., New York City.

PAUL SHOUP, president of the Southern Pacific Railroad, San Francisco.

CLARENCE M. WOOLLEY, chairman of board, American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Corporation, New York City.

HENRY H. ROBINSON, president of the Los Angeles First National Trust and Savings Bank, Los Angeles.

WALTER C. TEAGLE, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, New York.

JAMES SIMPSON, president of Marshall Field & Co., Chicago.

CORNELIUS F. KELLEY, president of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, New York City.

ELBERT L. CARPENTER, president of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, Minneapolis.

PIERRE S. du PONT, chairman of the board, E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Wilmington, Del.

LEWIS E. PIERSON, chairman of the board, Irving Trust Company, New York City.

GEORGE HORACE LORIMER, editor of The Saturday Evening Post, Philadelphia.

WALTER S. GIFFORD, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, New York.

ALVAN MACAULEY, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, Detroit.

JOHN G. LONSDALE, president of the American Bankers Association, St. Louis.

STUART WEBBER, director of the Cotton Textile Institute, Cramerton, N. C.

CHARLES CHENEY, president of the National Industrial Conference Board, Manchester, Conn.

SILAS H. STRAWN, chairman of the board, Montgomery Ward & Co., Chicago.

HARRY CHANDLER, publisher of The Los Angeles Times, Los Angeles.

Larger Group to Be Named.

A larger general committee, authorized by last week's conference, which will represent many lines of business and consist of as many as fifty men, will be named later. Individual members of the larger committee will serve as points of contact between the executive committee, trade associations and commercial groups.

No date was fixed by Mr. Barnes for the first meeting of the executive committee, but it was hoped that "at its first meeting it will be in position, after going over reports, to recommend courses of action looking to continued stabilization of business." The committee members will have laid before them within a few days analyses of the report on the activity and expectations for the next few months in nearly every line of business in the country.

Although there have been indications that President Hoover looks upon the new executive committee as a temporary body, with the single task of assuring stabilization during the next few months, there appears to be an inclination on the part of business men and some members of the committee to weld the body into a more permanent organization, to have for its task the stabilization of business in normal times.

BYRD REGARDS AIMS AS NOW FULFILLED

All of His Flying Plans Are Carried Out—150,000 Square Miles Mapped by Camera.

FINISHES AS FOG BARS WAY

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Dec. 12.—A review of the exploration work already done by airplane has convinced Commander Byrd that the purpose of the expedition has been accomplished.

The flights planned before the expedition left home have been carried out, although the Eastern flying activities were shifted, after the preliminary flights of last year, more to the north than had been anticipated because the importance of work in that direction was shown by the suggestion of land there seen on the first flight to King Edward Land.

It has been found that this area is more prolific in important discoveries than the inland flights from the trail between Little America and the Queen Maud Range.

Now Forced to Curtail Flying.

Indeed, Commander Byrd feels that the exploration flights have been more than he anticipated because of the extent of the new land discovered to the northeast.

In all it is estimated that 150,000 square miles have been photographed with the mapping camera, an area equal to Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and half of Virginia. On the polar flight alone, an area as large as Kansas was photographed by the mapping camera.

The flights would have been curtailed now, even though the proposed work had not been completed, because of the change in the weather. It has been found that in the Antarctic, as in the Arctic, the best time for flying is in the Spring or early Summer.

Since the eastern flight the sky has been free of clouds for only brief intervals. With the warmer weather has come fog and quick changes in the wind direction aloft which mix up the atmosphere and make an overcast sky so that aviation would be like flying "in a bucket of milk."

Under these conditions any accurate observations and photographs would not only be impossible but there would also be great danger of crashing into a thick atmosphere where neither the horizon nor the snow could be seen.

Clouds Shut Down to the East.

The day after the eastern flight all that area was barred by clouds and apparently the conditions which headed off Commander Byrd last year have come to stay. So, outside of a possible flight to the eastward from a point on the southern trail, about 160 miles from camp, and a short exploration flight southeast from Little America, it seems as though the work in the air was not only complete but could not be continued to any extent.

When Commander Byrd first outlined in New York his program of Antarctic flying, he intended to fly to the Pole, make two or three flights to the east inland and also

7 OF VITALE GUESTS HAD POLICE RECORDS, WHALEN DECLARES

He Lists Arrests of Some Who Were at Magistrate's Dinner at Time of $5,000 Hold-Up.

ONE FREED IN TWO KILLINGS

Two Others Were Put in Prison —Charges Ranged From Suspicion to Homicide.

EX-DETECTIVE TO BE TRIED

Commissioner Suspends Johnson, Saying Policeman Should Have Recognized Some at Fete.

Police Commissioner Whalen gave out some social data yesterday on seven of the sixty guests who got together in the Bronx last Saturday night to observe fittingly the return of City Magistrate Albert H. Vitale. The magistrate had been in Virginia resting, after his efforts for Mayor Walker in the late campaign.

The welcome home took the form of a dinner in the Roman Gardens, Southern Boulevard and 187th Street. Everything was going swimmingly and Magistrate Vitale was delivering a speech of appreciation, when seven uninvited guests came in. Instead of gifts they carried pistols.

The seven the commissioner dealt with yesterday were not the seven intruders—the seven hold-up men are still at large—but such notables as Ciro Terranova, alias Morello, alias the Boss, Terranova is the artichoke merchant with the armored car who was questioned in the investigation of the murder of Frank Marlow, Broadway racketeer, who was "taken for a ride" several months ago.

Also around the horseshoe table in the Roman Gardens and, of course, forced to submit to the indignity of being robbed, were the Catania brothers, James and Joseph. Mr. Whalen referred to them as "Jimmie, the Baker," and "Joe, the Baker," in disclosing that Jimmie was sent to Sing Sing from the Bronx in 1925.

Detective Guest Suspended.

All these sidelights on seven of the guests, who were fellows of former Magistrate Michael N. Delagi in the testimonial to Magistrate Vitale, were made known by Commissioner Whalen when he announced the suspension of Patrolman Arthur Johnson, Johnson, then a detective, was a guest at the Vitale dinner. In the hold-up he was relieved of his cash and his service revolver. Commissionr Whalen promptly demoted him to patrol duty and yesterday said he would be put on trial for "conduct unbecoming an officer."

The Commissioner said that he had obtained a list of the guests from the detectives who responded when word was flashed to the Bathgate Avenue station that hold-up men had taken $2,000 in cash and about $3,000 in jewelry from the diners.

"We can't expect much of our detectives," remarked Mr. Whalen, "if we allow them to associate with such characters."

Some one in the reportorial group which the Commissioner was addressing suggested that detectives frequently had to associate with known criminals.

"If they're on business it's different," he replied, "but when they are pleasure bent, as was apparently the case in this instance, they shouldn't be in company with such characters. It is well to remember that Johnson, as a detective of twenty years' experience, should have

Prompt Water Bill Payment Required Under New Laws

Two important changes in the law which shortens the time in which water bills must be paid were announced yesterday by Controller Charles W. Berry when he began mailing the 1930 bills.

Instead of being allowed three months from Jan. 1, property owners who pay on a frontage basis must now meet their bills by Jan. 31. Delinquents will be penalized 7 per cent on the bill from Jan. 1 to the date of payment, instead of the old graduated penalty of from 5 per cent to 15 per cent, which reached its maximum on June 30. Owners who pay on a meter basis must now meet their bills on or before the end of the month following the month in which the bill is sent, instead of the quarter following the quarter in which the bill was received. Penalties of 7 per cent will be charged against delinquents from the date of receipt. Bills received during the third and fourth quarters of this year may be paid without penalty up to Jan. 31, 1930. The changes became effective after Mayor Walker signed two new bills last week.

TO SEEK $30,000 PAY FOR MAYOR AND AIDES

Harvey to Ask Board for $5,000 Rise for Walker and Berry and $15,000 for McKee.

ALL OF BODY TO BENEFIT

Members to Act Dec. 19 on Own Increases—Dorman Seeks Higher Scale for All Firemen.

George U. Harvey, Borough President of Queens, the only Republican member of the Board of Estimate, announced at yesterday's meeting of that body that at the next session of the Board of Estimate, on Dec. 19, he would offer a resolution calling for salary increases of $5,000 a year for every member of the Board of Estimate except Joseph V. McKee, President of the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. McKee's present salary of $15,000 would be raised under the resolution to $30,000, making it equal to the pay proposed for the Mayor and the Controller. The pay of the Borough Presidents would be raised to $20,000.

Hold Whispered Conference.

Mr. Harvey's announcement followed a whispered conference, which for five minutes had brought him and other members of the board into a "huddle" immediately around the chair of Mayor Walker and that of Mr. McKee. William J. Cahill, Bill Drafting Commissioner, leaned over the back of the Mayor's chair and seemed to be giving an occasional word of assent or advice. Mr. Harvey, who apparently had been chosen as the board's spokesman, then went back to his chair and declared his intention.

Mr. Harvey also said that, simultaneously with the resolution, Mayor Walker would introduce an emergency message to the Municipal Assembly, in an effort to make the increase effective with the new year. No other member of the Board of Estimate spoke a word. All listened in smiling silence and Mayor Walker nodded a mute assent.

Predicts Public Support.

The Queens Borough President went on to say that he believed the proposed salary increases would command the support of all civic organizations and taxpayers of New York. The proposed rates, he declared, were none too large for the men who had to bear the responsibilities of administering a municipal corpora-

British Troops End Occupation of Rhineland; Wiesbaden Celebrates as the Last Force Quits

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WIESBADEN, Dec. 12.—The British occupation of the Rhineland ended at 2 P. M. today, exactly eleven years after the first French troops entered this city, with the hauling down of the Union Jack from the Hotel Hohenzollern. The last British detachment, 150 strong, and one French cavalry squadron from Mayence, presented arms as the military band played the British national hymn.

The British commander, General Sir William Thwaites, the principal delegates of the Interallied Rhineland High Commission, including the president, Paul Tirard, and the French commander, General Guillaumat, attended the ceremony and later drove to the railway station where the French guard of honor for the Rhineland commission saluted.

At 2:50 P. M. the train departed with the last British soldiers.

Earlier in the day, General Thwaites paid farewell visits to the Mayor of Wiesbaden and to the provincial governor, whom he addressed in German, expressing a sincere desire for universal peace and a mutual understanding between the nations.

WIESBADEN, Dec. 12 (AP).—Scenes reminiscent of the first Armistice Day celebration were enacted here tonight after the last British soldiers had evacuated the Rhineland.

Residents of the city held their joy within bounds until after the troops had departed. Then they cut loose. Strangers meeting on the street clasped hands in congratulation and the cafés were jammed with celebrants who continuously toasted each other and the Fatherland.

At the same hour as the Union Jack was hauled down here another small British detachment was leaving Bingen on the Rhine.

The only British official remaining in the Rhineland is William Seeds, British High Commissioner on the Interallied Rhineland High Commission since 1928. He will remain in Germany until the termination of all occupation of the third zone.

With the departure of the last English garrisons the number of allied troops in the Rhineland has been decreased within a few months by 25,000.

The Interallied Rhineland High Commission today decreed that the zone evacuated by the British would be placed under French command. The same regulation was adopted for those parts of the third Rhineland zone which were evacuated by the Belgians on Nov. 30.

SEVEN AT AUBURN FACE MURDER CHARGE; GOVERNOR TO SPEED THEIR PROSECUTION; PRISON SEARCHED FOR 8 MISSING PISTOLS

ROOSEVELT TO CALL COURT

Governor Says Hardened Criminals Must Face Drastic Severity.

BLAMES ONLY 12 OR 15

He Stresses Fact That Rest of 1,600 Men Returned to Cells at Word of Command.

NATIONAL GUARD PRAISED

Promptness of Arrival Was Due to Plans Laid After the Outbreak of Last July.

With quiet restored at Auburn prison, which on Wednesday was the scene of riot and murder for the second time in less than six months, Governor Roosevelt yesterday took steps to make certain that quick retribution would overtake the convicts who took part in the uprising.

Last night Governor Roosevelt announced that he had decided to appoint a special trial term of the Supreme Court to sit in Cayuga County for the purpose of bringing to justice the ringleaders of the revolt. Eight of their number are dead, but possibly half a dozen of those that led the riot survive.

The Governor made his announcement after conferring with some judges of the Court of Appeals and the Attorney General at Albany by telephone. He declared that "drastic severity" was of urgent need in dealing with the hardened criminals whose guilt, it is expected, will be fully established on trial.

Governor Roosevelt has been giving hours of anxious thought to remedial measures to prevent similar outbreaks in the future, but if he has reached any decision in the matter he kept his own counsel when questioned last night.

Moreland Inquiry Expected.

It is regarded as probable, however, that a Moreland investigation will be instituted in an effort to ascertain the facts and fix responsibility for the breaking down of prison discipline that made the riot possible. One question as yet unanswered is whether Colonel Edgar S. Jennings, warden of Auburn Prison, is to be continued in that position. Another question which may be made the subject of inquiry, it was surmised, is whether a complete reorganization of the State Department of Correction is not desirable in the light of what has happened.

The Governor's announcement read:

"I have decided to appoint a special trial term of the Supreme Court to convene in Cayuga County, in which Auburn Prison is located, as quickly as the law permits.

"I will designate a judge to preside over this court. Those prisoners responsible for yesterday's outbreak will be tried before this court.

"I do this in justice to the family of the principal keeper, who was killed; to the guards who were wounded and to the other guards and the State troopers and militia who acted with such conspicuous bravery in yesterday's riot.

"Furthermore, it is time that the handful of incorrigible criminals in the State prisons should realize that a continuance of acts of violence against the State will be dealt with with immediate and drastic severity.

"I am asking General Frank Ward, the Adjutant General of the National Guard, to attend the funeral of the principal keeper as my personal representative."

Favors Segregation.

The Governor announced that he has issued orders that the National Guard troops summoned to aid in suppressing the prison riot from other localities be dismissed, together with all but a comparatively small detail of troopers who had been left to support the prison authorities in restoring the impaired prison discipline at Auburn.

"Data bearing on the outbreak and the general situation at Auburn prison are being compiled and a report on everything that developed is being prepared for me," the Governor said. "On the character of this report will depend my future line of action."

"To what do you attribute this new outbreak at Auburn?" the Governor was asked.

"It may be attributed to a combination of half a dozen causes," he replied. "Lack of segregation, due to a lack of cell room for the proper housing of the inmates of the prison

Baumes Blames Overcrowding And Idleness for Outbreak

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Dec. 12.—Senator Caleb Baumes of Newburgh said here tonight that the outbreak at Auburn did not surprise him.

"Overcrowding, idleness, lack of guards, old and insanitary cells I have always said would cause trouble. Now I will add to that another mystery. The mystery is where those Mutual Welfare League fellows got the steel handcuffs with which they shackled the guards and the warden.

"For three years our committee has foreseen just what happened. We told them that to keep prisoners two, three and four in a cell was not only a temptation but an invitation to riot.

"It has taken just some such happening as these prison outbreaks to bring to the mind of the Legislature that the prison system needs more attention.

"We need more prisons; we need to get Attica as soon as we can, and we need to start right away on another prison. The whole problem will be solved when we get a cell for every prisoner, and not until then. We will push our bills this Winter at the Capitol, and I do not anticipate there will be any great opposition in view of all that has happened."

FEDERAL PRISON HEAD CALLS FOR REFORMS

Superintendent, in Radio Address, Says the Entire Penal System Needs Revising.

REHABILITATION STRESSED

Prisoners Now Are Largely Idle, and Parole Supervision Is Inadequate, Bates Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Sanford Bates, Superintendent of Federal Prisons, in a radio address tonight called for leadership by the Federal Government in penal affairs, so that many admitted abuses could be corrected and justice assured the criminal, as well as safety given the public.

Speaking in the national radio forum of The Washington Evening Star from Station WMAL, Mr. Bates urged "a rigorous, yet humane, scientific, yet common sense, progressive, yet protective, program of penal reform."

"Overwhelmed with the task of housing and feeding twice as many inmates as our penitentiaries should accommodate, the real work of our Federal prisons, personal reconstruction, has had to be deferred," he said.

Mr. Bates described the overcrowded condition of penitentiaries as "intolerable," and said steps should be taken to develop the probation system, transfer drug addicts to special institutions, build new institutions, and concentrate on constructive rehabilitation in the prisons.

He charged that the Federal Bureau of Prisons "in personnel, in appropriations and in the recognition of its importance has not kept pace with developments in the sphere of Federal criminal affairs."

Parole Supervision Inadequate.

"During 1928 a total of 8,562 parole cases came before the Parole Board. One of the first items in the program of protective penology would be to revise the statutes covering parole and provide a proper personnel to deal intelligently and in the public interest with this feature of prison administration.

"Supervision is the sine qua non of parole. Without strict supervision parole is merely an early release instead of an extended protection to society, as it should be. The Federal parole supervision system relies entirely on volunteers or first friends for such supervision. Some more effective or official control should be devised.

"There are ninety-one Federal judicial districts with 144 judges, each of whom has been authorized to appoint a probation officer. At the present time there are eight such officers, and one is said to have 1,600 cases in his charge.

"Recent scientific studies have demonstrated that the greatest factor making for successful reform is an ability and willingness on the part of the subject to do a day's work. But

PRISONERS REMAIN QUIET

Four Concealed Weapons Found by Officials in All-Day Hunt.

WARDEN JENNINGS RETURNS

He Remains in Seclusion With Sergeant Sullivan Acting in His Stead.

MEALS SERVED IN CELLS

Inmates Jeer Acting Warden When He Threatens a "Hard-Boiled" Regime.

By E. RAYMOND DANIELL,
Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

AUBURN, N. Y., Dec. 12.—With seven surviving leaders of yesterday's riot, in which nine men were killed, facing first-degree murder indictments for the killing of George A. Durnford, principal keeper, authorities of Auburn Prison today clamped "iron-handed" discipline upon the 1,500 inmates, and began a systematic search for eight pistols the convicts are believed to have stowed away for future use before the rebellion was quelled.

Two investigations into the uprising, the second to begin here within four months and a half, are in progress. Both seek to determine the cause of the trouble and punish the leaders.

One inquiry is being conducted by representatives of the Department of Correction from Albany. The other is in charge of District Attorney Benn Kenyon of Cayuga County, who said today that he will ask the grand jury when it meets Jan. 6 for murder indictments against those responsible for Durnford's death.

Edgar S. Jennings, the warden, who was rescued from the convicts by State Troopers in a gas attack, after the convicts had threatened to kill him unless they were permitted to escape, left the City Hospital today and returned to his quarters in the prison, still suffering from the beating he received at the hands of his captors.

Sullivan Remains in Charge.

Sergeant George H. Sullivan, appointed acting warden by Dr. Raymond F. Kleb, Commissioner of Correction, remained in command at the battle-scarred old prison, bitter at the death of his friend the "P. K.", and threatening to "make them regret the day they killed the bravest, squarest man in the State."

The three guards who received gunshot wounds in the fight to free them and the warden from the mutineers were expected to recover, although at first it was feared that George A. Atkins, suffering from a bullet wound in his stomach, would die. The other two are less seriously wounded. They are Fred Van Housen and Albert E. Holzhauer. Five convicts injured in the fighting will recover, it was said.

A correction was made this morning in the death list as given out at the prison after the rebellion was quelled. The body of one of the slain prisoners was identified last night as that of Luke J. Vonnell of Queens County, but this morning, in the check-up of convicts, he was found alive. The dead man was Julius Stevenek of Brooklyn.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon for Principal Keeper Durnford. He will be buried with military honors, as he was captain of the headquarters company of the 108th Regiment, New York National Guard, and served in the World War. He was 44 years old. He leaves a wife and two children.

Although outwardly everything was serene within the prison, some idea of the real state of affairs was given this afternoon by Philip G. Rouse, chief clerk of the Department of Correction, who was sent here by Dr. Kleb, with Deputy Commissioner George W. Jones, to investigate the uprising and report to him. It was Major Rouse who revealed that eight guns have not been accounted for.

Thorough Search for Weapons.

The disclosure was made in response to a photographer's request for permission to photograph the cell block in which six of the desperadoes were shot down and killed by State Troopers in the "mopping up" raid which ended the rebellion.

"It would not be safe for any one to go in now," Major Rouse said. "There are eight guns lying around inside, and we don't know where they are."

A search was being made in every nook and cranny of the building by guards under cover of machine guns mounted in the corridors. Each prisoner was searched, whether he took part in the fighting or remained quietly in the yard, as most of them did.

No trace of the missing weapons was found until late tonight, when officials announced that four pistols had been uncovered. Two were found near the main gate, where Henry Sullivan and Perry Johnson met death in a dash for freedom. The others were found on the topmost tier of cells in the south cell block, where the rebels made their last stand and where six of their number were killed. A pile of rubbish in that cell block was being searched for the other weapons.

It was pointed out that two guns were missing after the uprising of July 23. At least one of the guns, hidden nearly three months ago, figured in yesterday's fighting, prison officials believe.

Believe Becker Used It.

This pistol, it is believed, was the one used by Max Becker, a desperate long-term convict, who is credited with making the first move in the latest outbreak at Auburn and who now lies injured in the prison hospital.

Twelve other pistols were known to have been in the hands of the mutineers, Mr. Roosa said, and, with one exception, they were taken from guards who rushed in at the beginning of the trouble. Only four have been recovered.

Mr. Roosa's statement made it appear possible that the six men who were shot down by Captain Stephen McGrath's mopping-up party of state troopers were practically unarmed. He refused to comment further on that phase of the matter.

Every prisoner is locked in his cell and there he will remain indefinitely, Mr. Roosa said. No men will be taken out for exercise or other reasons, he declared. A few trusties will be released at meal times to take food around to the cells, he said, denying that there had been any curtailment of rations as a punitive measure.

Some suffering from the cold was experienced by the men in the south cell block, Mr. Roosa said. This was due to the fact that most of the windows there were shattered by gunfire or knocked out by the mutineers in a rush for air after the tear bombs were thrown by State troopers.

At 6 o'clock this morning the temperature was at zero, and all morning snow fell and was wafted by the icy wind into the tiny cells. The broken glass is being replaced, according to Mr. Roosa.

Two Men in Same Cells.

The situation at the prison was aggravated, he declared, by overcrowding—a condition which prison experts blame for the outbreaks. The prison population today was 1,588, but there were only 1,200 cells. This meant that some of the cells, 3½ feet wide, 6½ feet long and 6 feet high, held more than one prisoner. In normal times the excess prisoners sleep in corridors on double-deck berths.

Warden Jennings, his eyes red and swollen from the irritating tear gas, limped into his quarters in the administration building of the prison this afternoon. His left knee was sprained, but otherwise he seemed to be unhurt.

It was thought he would take over control of the institution, but Mr. Roosa said he had "not recovered sufficiently" to permit this. How long the warden would be incapacitated it would be impossible to say, according to Mr. Roosa. His physician said he was in no condition to talk of his experience.

Rumors were heard about town that Mr. Jennings might relinquish his position, but Mr. Roosa said he had received no such intimation. Asked whether the warden had capitulated before the convicts' demands that he guarantee them their freedom, Mr. Roosa said he did not know. He refused to seek an answer to the question from the warden, who, he said, was "lying down."

"Every phase of the disorder will be thoroughly investigated," he said. The same statement was made by Commissioner Kleb over the telephone from Albany.

Kidnapping Plot Denied.

Another rumor to the effect that conspirators in yesterday's plot had planned to kidnap the Parole Board and hold them prisoners was denied by Commissioner Kleb in Albany and by Mr. Roosa in Auburn.

The story was supposed to have been told to investigators by Tony Banella, one of the convicts. Mr. Roosa said Banella had told no such "yarn."

According to the report, the plot miscarried only because the Parole Board failed to keep to its schedule and meet at the prison yesterday morning, but Dr. Kleb declared that no meeting of the board was scheduled to take place at Auburn until Dec. 20.

Although Warden Jennings refused to discuss his part in the outbreak, others provided details which were lacking in the first account of the riots. The Rev. Donald Cleary of the Holy Family Church, who undertook the rôle of arbiter in the riot, described the note in which the convicts threatened to kill their hostages.

The note was written by Sullivan, the young priest thought. The convicts forged the warden's signature to their ultimatum, he said, declaring that he was certain the warden did not sign it, for he stood with hands raised above his head throughout the parley.

The note, passed about from one official to another, was lost before the riot ended. As nearly as he could recall, Father Cleary said, the note read as follows:

"I am held with seven guards by convicts who demand their release. If they are not given their freedom at once we will all be killed. They demand that three automobiles be placed at the main gate with their motors running. They intend to march us out in front of them."

Seven Face Murder Charges.

Prison officials were silent today when asked for the names of the men against whom first-degree murder indictments will be sought. They admitted, however, that fifteen men took part in the uprising, seven of them are still alive, and it is against these men that District Attorney Kenyon intends to proceed.

Two of them are in the prison hospital, but doctors said they would recover to answer charges of murder. They are Becker of Brooklyn, shot through the chest, and Claude Udine of Buffalo, shot in the back.

Mr. Kenyon, whose term of office expires Jan. 1, at first intended to ask for a special grand jury to investigate the riots. After conferring with Governor Roosevelt by telephone, however, he announced that only a few days could be gained by such a procedure, and that the case would be laid before the January grand jury.

His assistant, James J. Hosmer, has been elected District Attorney and will present the evidence, Mr. Kenyon said.

Eighty State troopers will be left on guard at the prison indefinitely, Captain McGrath announced. The rest of the 800 who answered the riot call have returned to their regular stations.

Sullivan Issues Statement.

Immediately upon assuming control of the prison, Acting Warden Sullivan issued a statement designed as much for the ears of the sullen prisoners as for the reporters gathered about him. Standing on the steps of the administration building, in tones that carried to the barred windows of the south cell block and brought bellowing jeers from the prisoners, he said:

"From now on this is going to be a tough prison. From now on it's the iron hand. There has been too much coddling of prisoners. It will cause an awful howl, because the politicians like the Mutual Welfare League, but so long as I am here the league won't exist. The politicians weren't here July 23, and they weren't here yesterday. I was. When the politicians fire me I'll go back to my little farm in Fleming."

Sergeant Sullivan, who in normal times is sergeant of the guard, blamed the Mutual Welfare League for the uprising. There the plot was hatched, he said. Outside the door of its quarters the riot started.

"Members of the league killed the 'P. K.,'" he said, "and Durnford was the squarest, bravest man in the State—a lot squarer than I'm going to be from now on."

Two sons of the late Thomas Mott Osborne, former warden of Sing Sing and Auburn prisons and founder of the league, refused to comment on Sergeant Sullivan's statement. One of them, Charles D. Osborne, is Mayor of Auburn. His brother, Lithgow, is leader of the Democratic party in the city.

DECRIES PRISON 'SOB STUFF'

Justice Strong Says That Was Responsible for Auburn Break.

Too much "sob stuff" was responsible for the prison outbreak at Auburn in the opinion of Supreme Court Justice Strong of Brooklyn. Justice Strong expressed his opinion yesterday at a hearing of a contempt of court charge involving a law clerk in the Sheriff's office who was accused of having delayed the execution of a Supreme Court writ of attachment.

After denouncing the attitude of that clerk in particular, Justice Strong said that his fault was the fault of too many these days and that "a great many people have no respect for the law until they get into trouble."

"That was the trouble at Auburn," the court said. "If you give them enough rope they hang themselves. That was altogether responsible for the trouble there. Prison reform! Sob sister stuff!"

The law clerk was Benjamin L. Slade of 166 Second Avenue, Manhattan, who was alleged to have delayed executing a writ of attachment served on a witness in a divorce trial. Justice Strong found that the clerk was more interested in "watching the clock" than executing Supreme Court orders. After considering committing Slade to jail on a contempt charge, he finally released him with a warning.

PAROLE BOARD PLOT IS SCOUTED BY KIEB

He Brands as Rumor Story That Auburn Convicts Planned to Seize Members.

MUTINY NOT A SURPRISE

Conditions at Prison Before Riot Were Extremely Critical, Commissioner Declares.

Dr. Raymond F. C. Kleb, State Commissioner of Correction and member of the Parole Board for prisons, yesterday branded as "rumors" the report that convicts at Auburn prison had planned to stage their outbreak during a meeting of the Parole Board at the prison. Dr. Kleb made his statement by telephone from his office in Albany to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The suggestion that the rioting felons had intended to take the members of the board captives and hold them as hostages during their parley for freedom had been broached to the various prison officials even before the riot of Wednesday took place, Dr. Kleb said. The story was considered of no greater consequence than any of the other serious manifestations of unrest among the prison inmates. He admitted that the state of affairs at Auburn before the riot was extremely critical, and that the outbreak of mutiny came not as a surprise.

"Atmosphere of Desperation."

"I personally place no stock in any of the numerous rumors that circulated before and since the riot of Wednesday as to the various intentions of the rioting prisoners," Dr. Kleb said. "I consider the cause of the outbreak to have been the horrible conditions of overcrowding at Auburn, and a general atmosphere of desperation which persisted among some of the more violent inmates even after the riot of last Summer."

While not criticising the Baumes law in its intent, Dr. Kleb said that the measure was ill-advised at the present moment, with the prisons of the State already overcrowded and the facilities of their personnel unable to care for the greater number of long-term and consequently desperate men brought in by the law.

Source of Guns a Problem.

The members of the Parole Board are Dr. Kleb, George W. Jones, head of the Division of Parole, and the warden or superintendent of the institution which is affected in each individual hearing. Dr. Kleb said that the board had held its regular monthly meeting at Auburn during the last week in November and that it planned to meet there again next week.

Dr. Kleb said that the immediate intention of those investigating the riot would be to determine how many guns were in the hands of the convicts and where those guns came from.

William L. Butcher, member of the State Crime Commission, expressed the conviction that the riot of prisoners at Auburn on Wednesday was attributable directly to the exceedingly poor conditions of housing and guarding prevalent there.

"My reaction to the reports of the outbreak this week was the same as in July," said Mr. Butcher. "I stand completely behind the report of the Crime Commission made recently, in which the deplorable conditions at Auburn were considered in particular. More guards with better compensation were and still are needed there, not to mention a larger and more modern group of prison buildings. The inmates should be trained in gainful occupations, impossible under crowded conditions now prevalent.

"I feel sure, however, that the program of Governor Roosevelt for the rehabilitation of the State prisons will reach a solution of the vital problem," he said.

"There neither has been, is, nor will be any trouble at Sing Sing prison similar to the recent disturbance at Auburn," said Lewis E. Lawes, warden of the prison at Ossining, yesterday. "I have no comment to make upon the difficulties there, for it has absolutely nothing to do with affairs at Sing Sing."

Dr. Kleb Moves for Trial.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 12 (AP).—Dr. Raymond F. C. Kleb said tonight that he would go to Auburn tomorrow to speed the State's move to bring to trial the prison rioters implicated in the killing of George A. Durnford.

The commissioner communicated today with District Attorney Benn Kenyon of Cayuga County and with Julius Honfer, who succeeds Mr. Kenyon on Jan. 1. The commissioner said he "found Mr. Kenyon very cooperative and strongly of the opinion that the legal machinery should be set in motion immediately to prosecute every one concerned in the killing of Principal Keeper Durnford."

"At least three of the mutineers, Max Becker, who is serving twenty years; Claud Udwine, in for thirty years, and Clarence Schreiber, doing a twenty-one year sentence, will undoubtedly face prosecution, the correction authorities indicated. The three were among the revolters wounded.

First Candidate in 34 Years Seeks Astronomy Doctorate

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 12.—For the first time in thirty-four years a candidate for the doctor's degree in astronomy presented his thesis to Copenhagen University today.

The astronomer is Bengt Stroemgren, 21-year-old son of the director of the Copenhagen Observatory, who previously attracted attention at international astronomical congresses where he lectured in the past few years.

Mr. Stroemgren's speech was made before a distinguished audience, including Professor Noerlund, president of the Danish Academy of Sciences, and Dr. Niels Bohr, Danish investigator of the atom. Mr. Stroemgren will be the youngest doctor in Copenhagen University by two years.

GIFFORD ASSURED OF SOUND BUSINESS

Telephone Executive in Chicago Speech Declares Country Is Making Economic Progress.

DEPRECATES SPECULATION

He Stresses Responsibility of All in Effecting Readjustment for Stability in the Future.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—The view of the business outlook for 1930 taken by the telephone industry is best indicated by the plans of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company to spend $700,000,000 this coming year for betterments and extensions, according to Walter S. Gifford, president of the company.

Mr. Gifford addressed the Chicago Association of Commerce tonight at its twenty-fifth anniversary dinner at the Palmer House, which was attended by 1,200 members and guests. President Hoover sent a telegram congratulating the association on its birthday and its accomplishments.

In his address, Mr. Gifford gave a philosophy of American civilization, the keynote of which was that high standards of living and well being for every one were as much a part of democracy as politics and universal education.

Then, reviewing developments in science, natural resources, human relations, the character of America's man power and its organizing ability and imagination, he continued:

"Unless the temper and genius of our people are suddenly changed, unless their perceptions and aspirations are suddenly dulled, continued improvement in the standard of living and in the general welfare of this country is as inevitable as the tides of the ocean."

Foreign critics and those at home who delight to picture America as a land of dollar chasers and a nation of machine tenders in a mechanical age and to sketch Uncle Sam as Uncle Shylock standing under three golden balls, were deprecated by Mr. Gifford.

Then, turning to the present economic situation and telling of the projected outlay by his company, Mr. Gifford said:

"It is becoming more and more generally recognized that business has a distinct responsibility in providing that the economic readjustments demanded by industrial progress are effected with the greatest possible ease. Readjustment should not be allowed to generate maladjustment.

"Opportunistic speculation in the hope of quick profit, such as we have very recently witnessed, must more and more give way to systematic planning for the assurance of permanent gain. This is equally true of individuals and of business enterprises.

"'Planned progress' will not only facilitate the anticipation of coming readjustments but will tend to minimize such temporary fluctuations in the steady rate of business expansion as may still occur.

"The sensational break in stock prices has recently engaged the attention of every one. While this break has made it clear that the future progress of the United States cannot be discounted in the market to such an extent that any one period should unduly profit, it is my judgment that for those who are willing to do their part in reducing that progress there has never been a place or time which offered such assurances as the United States does at present."

SENATE PUTS TARIFF ASIDE FOR TAX CUT

Arranges to Take Up $160,000,000 Reduction Measure Today to Push It Through.

SLASH ON CAPITAL GAIN DIM

Republicans Get Opposition Support, Raising Tariff Rates on Some Wool Products.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP).—Further increases in wool tariffs were approved by the Senate today before it adjourned to make action on the $160,000,000 income tax reduction resolution possible.

By adjourning instead of recessing, the parliamentary situation will be such tomorrow as to permit a motion to be made for consideration of the tax proposal without debate. The resolution itself, however, will be open to unlimited discussion. Leaders of both parties predict its early adoption without delaying the tariff measure unduly.

The Finance Committee Republicans continued today to wean away enough Democrats and Republican Independents from wool growing States to put through increases in duties of wool waste, carbonized wool and wool yarns to compensate for the increase previously voted on raw wool from 31 to 34 cents a pound.

Reject the Existing Rate.

The only roll call of the day rejected by 45 to 34 an amendment by Senator Hayden, Democrat, of Arizona, to restore the existing combination rate of 33 cents a pound and 20 per cent ad valorem on carbonized wool, including tops, not further advanced than roving. The committee rate of 37 cents a pound and 20 per cent was accepted without a record vote.

Arguing for his amendment, Senator Hayden contended that the rate on raw wool was not wholly effective and consequently there was no justification for placing a 3 or 4-cent differential above that duty on every other levy in the schedule.

Opposing the amendment, Chairman Smoot of the Finance Committee asserted that, if adopted, it would "kill the wool industry in the West."

Nine Republican independents and four Democrats joined thirty-two Republican regulars in voting against the Hayden proposal. Three independents and one regular combined with thirty Democrats in supporting it.

Approval also was given a committee proposal to increase the duty on top, slubbing, roving and ring waste from 31 cents in the present law and 34 cents in the House bill to 37 cents a pound. The House provided the same rates on these wastes as it did on raw wool.

Lower Yarn Duties Eliminated.

Elimination of the lower duty brackets in the wool yarn paragraph was approved, as recommended by the Finance Committee, thus placing yarns valued at not more than 50 cents a pound in the same bracket with yarns worth not over $1 a pound.

For the latter class of yarns, the Senate approved an increase in the duty from 36 cents a pound and 35 per cent ad valorem to 40 cents and 35 per cent, the same as the house provided. Yarns valued at more than $1 but not over $1.50 a pound were put on a tariff of 40 cents a pound and 45 per cent, as against 40 cents and 40 per cent in the House bill and 36 cents and 40 per cent in the present law.

By taking up the tax resolution tomorrow, the Senate is not expected to return to consideration of the tariff measure until next week. Almost the entire manufactured goods rates in the wool schedule have yet to be acted upon.

To Oppose Slash in Capital Gain Tax

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—On the basis of a warning issued today by Under Secretary Mills that the prospective Treasury surplus did not warrant extending income tax reduction now beyond the provisions of the Administration resolution passed by the House last week, Senate leaders are expected to oppose the amendment of Senator Couzens of Michigan to add a cut in the rate of the capital gain and loss tax from 12½ to 10 per cent when the resolution is brought up in the Senate tomorrow.

There were indications that Senators Blaine, Republican, of Wisconsin, and Black, Democrat, of Alabama, who blocked consideration of the resolution when it was reported Monday, had abandoned active opposition and that Senator Watson, majority leader, would be able to bring the measure before the Senate on a request for consideration. If objection is raised to immediate action, Mr. Watson will put the matter to a vote. Leaders of both parties have expressed a wish to pass the resolution without delay.

Mr. Mills made it plain that lack of sufficient revenues was the only bar to acceptance of the Couzens proposal, saying that, "If we had the money, it would be the right thing to do."

He said the Administration had done its utmost to fit tax reduction to income when it recommended a reduction of 1 per cent in the income tax rate on individuals and corporations, carried in the resolution before the Senate, thus wiping out $160,000,000 of the expected $223,000,000 surplus this year. The Couzens proposal, Mr. Mills explained, would not become effective until 1931, when, according to Treasury estimates, the surplus would be $122,000,000, or insufficient to cover the additional reduction.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 12.—The first Danish whaling company, the Fraternitas Company, has been formed to conduct whaling, shipping, trading and industrial activities.

The head office will be situated at Copenhagen and a branch at Sandefjord, Norway. The company has already ordered a ship to hunt whales from an English shipyard. The new ship, it is said, will be the largest ship in Denmark, greater than the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VIII.

MORE HEALTH CENTRES URGED BY DR. WYNNE

He Tells Bellevue-Yorkville Group it Adds to Efficiency by Concentration of Work.

The establishment of more health centres was urged by Health Commissioner Wynne in an address at the semi-annual meeting of the Bellevue-Yorkville Health Demonstration yesterday afternoon at the organization building, 325 East Thirty-eighth Street. More than 200 representatives of local medical, educational and public welfare organizations attended the meeting. Dr. Wynne presided.

Dr. Wynne said that Mayor Walker had pledged twenty new health centres for disease prevention and the treatment of the sick poor. He said that the Department of Health would be able to respond in the case of a disease outbreak in any one of the health centre districts, should one occur, just as the Fire Department was able to respond to a fire call at a given point.

"Concentrated effort in a given district not only keeps down the mortality rate and reduces morbidity," he said, "but through a campaign of education teaches the residents how to live better and longer. This has been proved beyond doubt by the results obtained by the Bellevue-Yorkville Health Demonstration. This concentration will enable us to avoid doing unnecessary work, and for each day of the year we will know just what are the health conditions in each district."

Dr. Wynne said that figures were available showing where health centres are mostly needed, so that the cost of $250,000 for each institution will have the greatest possible benefit.

Dr. Edward T. Devine, director of the Bellevue-Yorkville Demonstration, announced the donation by the organization of $100,000 of its resources for the year 1930 to the Department of Health, which had accepted the money, he said. He also announced that the organization had decided upon an arrangement to supply medical laboratory service to private physicians for their free patients and to supply the services of an office nurse for one day a week to a selected group of physicians who will undertake in this way to increase their preventive practice.

During a discussion following the addresses Dr. Morris Rosenthal assailed the instruction for physicians offered by the committee of preparatory health examination of New York County. Dr. Otto Leher, chairman of the committee, replied that generally the courses offered by the committee had been highly appreciated.

KENTUCKY OFFICIALS UNDER ARREST ORDER

Court Acts to Compel Testimony of Board Members in Suit Over Textbooks.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Dec. 12 (AP).—Judge Ben G. Williams today ordered that seven members of the State Textbook Commission be arrested, held without bail and brought into court when they failed to appear to testify in the suit filed by Commissioner W. C. Bell against the commission.

The order applied to K. R. Cummins, Miss Delpha Evans, Frank V. McChesney, Robert J. Nichol, George Sapp, Samuel L. Walker and Mrs. George Smith. They are expected to testify as to the procedure at the meeting at which the readoption of the textbooks was rejected. The legality of this action is questioned by Mr. Bell in his suit.

Mr. Bell asked today that the case be tried on its merits, but the defendants asked that it be tried on the mandatory injunction filed by Mr. Bell against the commission. Judge Williams ruled for the defendants. However, if the case is carried to the Court of Appeals it may be returned to the Circuit Court and tried on its merits regardless of the decision of the other tribunal.

DEFENDS WELFARE LEAGUE.

Mayor Osborne Denies Convict Work Aided Auburn Revolt.

Protesting against the assertion made that the Mutual Welfare League had in any way been responsible for the outbreak at Auburn Prison, Mayor Charles D. Osborne of Auburn, N. Y., who is also president of the National Society of Penal Information, last night issued, through William B. Cox, secretary of the society, the following statement:

"It should be distinctly understood that not one of the fifteen desperadoes and long-term men who were involved in the attempted escape from Auburn Prison were members of the Mutual Welfare League. As a matter of fact, through the influence of Mutual Welfare League officials, the entire prison population of the north cell block was marched from the yard to their cells and kept there quietly during the entire excitement, taking no part in the attempted escape and rioting.

"The Mutual Welfare League is based solely upon the proposition that there is hope for men sentenced to prison, and the part played by the league officials clearly demonstrates the value of an appeal to their sense of necessary discipline.

"Any statement that the league was responsible in any way, shape or manner for the outbreak at Auburn, as published by one New York morning newspaper, is a plain misstatement of fact. It is also evident that any further policy of repression such as that put into effect by the Baumes laws simply means a repetition of rioting, not only at Auburn, but in other prisons throughout the country. Men sentenced to natural life or extremely long sentences, which carries with it the closing of the door of hope, should be confined in an institution conducted solely for such types of offenders."

CLARKE ASSETS DWINDLE.

Creditors Will Receive Less Than 5 Cents on Dollar, Referee Says.

Creditors of the Clarke Brothers private bank, which failed last summer, will receive less than five cents on the dollar, Referee John L. Lyttle announced yesterday at a creditors' meeting. He said that one-third of the creditors had not yet filed claims, and announced that December 28 would be the last day on which such claims could be filed.

The meeting was called to examine the claims for fees of the accountants, which have been protested by certain of the depositors. The fee asked is $11,820.50. Adjournment was taken until Saturday morning, because counsel for the accountants had not brought the record of time put on the work by their clients.

DROPS PRISON CELL KEEPER

Colorado Commission Accuses Him in Canon City Riot Inquiry.

DENVER, Col., Dec. 12 (AP).—H. H. McCauley, cell keeper at the Colorado State Penitentiary at Canon City, who was charged with having failed to report the presence in the prison of a gun prior to the fatal riot of Oct. 3, was discharged today by the Civil Service Commission.

The discharge of McCauley followed a review of charges developed by a special commission, appointed by Governor Adams to investigate the prison outbreak, in which thirteen men were killed.

Charges were made against other guards, and Warden Crawford has been awaiting the filing of a minority report by the Governor's commission before lodging formal charges.

GOVERNOR TO SPEED RIOT PROSECUTIONS

had as much to do with it as anything. It is obvious that hardened, incorrigible prisoners should be kept severely apart from the others, to the end that they can be made the subject of closer supervision and more severe discipline."

The Governor had words of praise for the National Guard units that aided in quelling the prison disturbance. He eulogized the unflinching bravery with which the troopers carried out the order from the Capitol to "go in and get them."

Guards' Promptness Result of Plan.

"The promptitude with which troopers and militia were mobilized for the grim work that called for their presence at Auburn, I understand, has been the matter for surprised comment," the Governor said.

"It was not surprising to me and it did not come about by chance. It was the result of careful preparation, involving a radical redisposition of National Guard and State Constabulary units that was undertaken last August following the July riots at Auburn as a safeguard in the event of a recurrence.

"It was the result of careful organization and it worked out just as we expected and as had been intended.

"I have been informed that within half an hour of the outbreak troopers from the outside were on the scene preparing to go into action, and that within two hours not a few companies but an entire regiment of the National Guard was on hand prepared for riot duty."

The Governor said that only twelve or fifteen convicts out of a total of from 1,600 to 1,800 were involved in the rioting and murder.

"All the rest," the Governor said, "in obedience to a word of command went back to their cells or their occupations. And the industrial group in the shops kept on working all through the rioting."

Lieut. Gov. Lehman, who was in this city yesterday, said that the day of rioting had been one of the most trying days in his life. In the absence of Governor Roosevelt from the State he was in charge in the Executive Chamber as Acting Governor, and in that capacity issued the "no compromise" order that history may remember.

"There was nothing else that I could do consistent with duty," the Lieutenant Governor said. "And yet for two hours that seemed endless I was almost borne down by the weight of responsibility thrust upon me as a result of the position I was occupying temporarily.

"There were those hardened criminals who were willing to face death in their attempt to get out with the warden and these guards at their mercy.

"I felt all the time that they were going to be killed and no one can picture the relief I felt when word came that they had been rescued."

The Lieutenant Governor said that the two hours that intervened were crowded with exacting work that called for quick decisions and rapid execution of the orders that went out over the Capitol wire.

"Of course, what eased the situation a little was that Adjt. Gen. Ward of the National Guard, Major Warner of the State police and myself were all together in one room throughout this period, trying to us all. Consequently there was no loss of time and no lost motion at our end, and the response from the troopers and the militia was instantaneous and effective. Not enough can be said in praise of the bravery and perfect strategy that marked their operations in the face of danger."

Lieut. Gov. Lehman was asked if he had a remedy to suggest.

"There is no doubt," he said, "that what happened at Auburn has lent impressive emphasis to the need for prison reform. But what should be done I am not prepared to say until I have given close study to the situation."

BATES, PRISON HEAD, CALLS FOR REFORMS

one industry has been authorized by Congress at the Atlanta penitentiary, and this gives employment to but 800 out of the total 3,777. Two industries have been authorized at Leavenworth, leaving probably from 1,500 to 2,000 men in either complete or semi-idleness at this institution.

Favors Prison Labor.

"An extension of the State theory of prison labor, whereby the government puts its inmates at work manufacturing goods for its own consumption, is a perfectly proper and acceptable solution of the prison labor problem."

While Mr. Bates admitted that "punishment is and should be a deterrent upon a certain percentage of lawbreakers," he saw nothing inconsistent between this and the "professionalization" of prison management.

"Massachusetts," he said, "with the highest use of probation and parole of any State in the country and a humane prison system, has the lowest homicide rate and a record of less serious crime than was the case fifteen years ago.

"The English prison has been not only centralized under the Home Secretary, but also has been professionalized. Prison work in England offers a career to a college graduate."

Summarizing his plan for turning out from the prisons men who will be better than when they went in, he urged:

"Removing physical handicaps to success and thus increasing the resisting power to temptation.

"Teaching a trade and thus minimizing the economic pressure to commit crime.

"Through the study and classification of the individual, reach the personal problem involved and apply the remedy.

"Through the right kind of education, good books and other constructive contacts, supplant a habit of lawlessness with a morale of patriotic cooperation.

"Release on parole under strict supervision, to supply an adjusted and controlled release, with home and employment provided and activities circumscribed."

Penologists believed, he added, in the necessity for:

"Prompt decision and disposition in criminal cases through the simplification and clarification of legal procedure.

"Scientific analysis of the individual and the causes of his crime.

"Special treatment for the irresponsible.

"Strict discipline for all normal or intentional criminals.

"Permanent segregation of the defective or incorrigible."

Bill Calls for Prison Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP).—Chairman Graham of the House Judiciary Committee introduced a bill today to provide for a reorganization of Federal prison administration through the establishment of a Bureau of Prisons in the Department of Justice.

MACHADO IN LETTER HELD TARIFF FATAL

Wrote Lakin, Lobby Inquiry Reveals, That Measure Would Destroy Cuba as Nation.

WALSH WARNS WITNESS

Montana Senator Tells Cuba Company's President That the Logan Law Exists.

LETTER PRAISED SHATTUCK

Lakin Wrote of Him as Chief Reliance and Also of Friendship With Stimson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—That the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill, "definitely and fatally" affects Cuba as a nation and that the proposed increased sugar rates would destroy the Cuban economic structure are some of the assertions made in a letter written by President Gerardo Machado of Cuba to Herbert C. Lakin of New York, president of the Cuba Company.

The letter was produced before the Senate lobby investigating committee today and the tenor of it and other documents bearing Mr. Lakin's signature was such that Senator Walsh of Montana reminded the witness that the Logan law is still good American law. The Logan law, passed a century ago, provides a fine of $5,000 and a maximum prison sentence of three years for an American citizen who interferes in the foreign affairs of the nation in such way as to defeat the purposes of the government.

Mr. Lakin said it was the first time he had ever heard of the law.

"Out of kindness, I call your attention to it!" Senator Walsh answered.

Senator Walsh recalled that yesterday a letter was produced from Mr. Lakin's files to the Cuban Secretary of Communications, in which Mr. Lakin suggested Cuba's interests might be ivanced by concerted propaganda from the Latin-American nations. Senator Walsh asked him if he thought it was a patriotic act. Mr. Lakin replied that he was sorry now that he wrote the letter and that he "was very much ashamed of it."

President Machado's Letter.

The letter from President Machado was produced near the end of the hearing. It read as follows:

Republic of Cuba, Presidency.
Havana, March 1, 1929.

Mr. Herbert C. Lakin,
441 Lexington Av., New York.

My Distinguished Friend:

I acknowledge receipt of your letter of Jan. 26 and of the documents sent me therewith.

After reading them over carefully, I am now well aware of the steps taken by you and Mr. Shattuck and of the work done by you in conjunction with other members of the committee representing the Cuban industry, in regard to which information had already reached me in a letter from the Ambassador and in the reports of other members of the committee.

Although Viriato Gutierrez conveyed to Mr. Shattuck (whom I regretted to be unable to see personally on account of illness at the time) my cordial congratulation and requested him to make the same extensive to you for the magnificent work performed by both of you, I wish now to reiterate to you expressly, and please convey also to Mr. Shattuck, my most heartfelt congratulation for the good service which you have rendered in positive manner to the Republic of Cuba.

The problem of the tariff immediately affects the sugar industry and other industries and cultivations on whose products the duties may be raised, but the one most definitely and fatally affected is really the Cuban nation.

And to any impartial observer it is actually painful to see that for the sake of the private economic interests of certain farmers who, as a matter of fact, are not in need of such action, the efforts made by Americans and Cubans in the past to bring about the greatness and the progress of the young Republic of Cuba are destroyed and rendered useless.

Sees Years of Advance Lost.

Unquestionably, an immoderate increase in the tariff duties, especially as applied to the main and almost sole product of Cuba, namely, sugar, will bring as a consequence the destruction of the present economic power of the nation and its sudden drop from the level which it now occupies to one far inferior, representing the loss of all these years of work, of efforts and of progress, placing it almost in the same condition in which it was when the American nation helped us to obtain freedom.

The damage that we would suffer is so unfounded and so enormous that justification for it could be found only in very grave purposes of international scope, obliging a powerful republic to annihilate its small neighbor; and this could be explained only after there had been any disloyalty or offense of some consequence, but not so long as there exists real affection, sincere adhesion, full cooperation and the desire to show at all times and in all cases the extreme and profound gratefulness which the Cuban people feel toward the American nation.

I note the details of your conversation with Senator Smoot and Mr. Love and I believe that any subsequent interviews that you may have with them are sure to bring about good and positive results. I do agree that it is necessary to present some plans for study and discussion with said gentlemen and other leaders of the interests which they represent; but I believe also, as you do, that it is better to wait until they themselves initiate steps in that direction.

I also wish to say that the ideas expressed by Mr. Shattuck at the interview which he held with Virato Gutierrez seem to be well worth considering, especially in view of the diplomatic action being taken by my government.

Approves Lakin's Suggestions.

All the suggestions contained in paragraphs marked 1, 2 and 3 of your letter appear to me as being worth while and I believe that they should be put into practice.

I favor: The appointment of the committee which you suggest and that there be no limitation of private activities on the part of any persons who are interested in the industry and agriculture of Cuba. I believe that the more work that is done the better it will be and that it would not be to our advantage to break the enthusiasm of those who wish to help us.

Of course, I believe that you, as well as Mr. Shattuck, should continue to act along the same lines as up to the present, and, in that connection, I wish to state that your action in the past has deserved my full approval. Your contact with the Ambassador will be of great help, and therefore you should not spare any opportunities to be in contact with him. I hope to be informed, as soon as the opportunity presents itself, regarding the new brief which you will present to the Committee on Ways and Means and regarding any exchanges of ideas in conversations held with beet sugar interests.

I appreciate the information you give me regarding the action of Mr. Pollack and of Mr. Hutchinson.

And I do not wish to put an end to these lines without stating to you that I feel very much satisfied with the manner in which you have responded to the trust placed by us in you and other representatives of the industrial and agricultural interests of Cuba.

It is with pleasure that I again remain your attentive friend,

(Signed) GERARDO MACHADO.

Writes of Shattuck in Miami.

Another letter by Mr. Lakin to Colonel Tarafa, dated Feb. 25, 1929, said that Mr. Shattuck had been talking over the Cuban sugar problem with Mr. Hoover, who at the time was in Miami.

"I have raised a fund of over $85,000 to conduct the fight," Mr. Lakin wrote. "Some of the money will be used for publicity and some for employing people who have a certain amount of influence in Washington. Our chief reliance will be on Mr. Shattuck, who is a very intimate friend of Hoover and has already talked with Hoover about this subject.

"He (Smoot) was very emphatic in stating that the Philippines are the most dangerous competitors of the United States producers. He had many facts and figures which he supplied to me and urged me to advertise as widely as possible the desirability of limiting the Philippines to 500,000 tons. He said very specifically that he proposed to make a big fight on that point.

"Of course, at that time it was not thought that Stimson was to be Secretary of State. It is not as yet absolutely certain that Stimson will be Secretary of State. He may be Attorney General. In any event, I shall be able to have a personal talk with Stimson. I have known him very intimately for twenty-five years, and his wife is a cousin of my wife.

"The contents of this letter had better be treated by both of us as strictly confidential."

In still another letter to Colonel Tarafa, Mr. Lakin said that efforts would be made "to persuade Hoover" that the tariff rates on sugar should not be increased. He said that "a close friend" of the President's was in Miami "with Hoover" and would be with him two or three weeks.

The man he had in mind, he said, was Mr. Shattuck, the counsel for Cuban interests involved in the tariff fight. Mr. Lakin also suggested that Latin-American policies of Mr. Hoover, looking to a closer cooperation among the republics of the west, should be "played up." He was certain it would have good effect in Washington.

In a further letter written in February, 1929, Mr. Lakin said, "I have an intimate friend who will be with Hoover for a month," adding that he was very hopeful that this friend would be able to bring the matter of the Cuban sugar situation to the attention of Mr. Hoover.

Erred as to Summons From Miami.

Mr. Lakin also wrote that Mr. Hoover, then President-elect, had summoned Mr. Shattuck to Miami. He said that was an error, and that Shattuck had not been summoned; that he had misunderstood what Mr. Shattuck had said at the time.

One of the plans to interest the President-elect was to bring about a meeting between President Machado and Mr. Hoover. This plan, however, failed to work.

"The task of ultimately saving Cuba will probably fall on the broad and capable shoulders of President Machado," Mr. Lakin wrote. "I think it necessary for the President to communicate with Mr. Hoover."

A letter dated Feb. 8, 1929, was addressed to Charles Hayden of the firm of Hayden, Stone & Co., New York. Mr. Hayden was chairman of the board of the Cuba Sugar Cane Corporation, the largest concern of the kind in the world. Mr. Lakin said. Again he referred to the activities of Mr. Shattuck, emphasizing "the intimate relations" of Mr. Shattuck and the President. It was also necessary, he said, "to work on the committees and members of Congress."

"And that was legal business which Mr. Shattuck was retained to carry through, was it?" Senator Walsh asked.

"Yes, lawyers sometimes do business that way," was the reply.

"And lawyers sometimes play golf," replied Senator Walsh.

In the matter of publicity, Mr. Lakin, writing one of his Cuban clients, said this was necessary to "put courage and background" behind some members of Congress whose support of the Cuban side of the controversy was anticipated. He said his intention was to put this matter "pretty well" in the hands of Mr. Shattuck.

"You can't carry on a business by having a town meeting," Mr. Lakin said.

In a telegram to Mr. Hayden, dated Feb. 9, 1929, Mr. Lakin said that Mr. Shattuck had been in Miami with "a Mr. Chadbourne" of New York, on a proposition to amend the Cuban treaty. This was another plan that came to naught.

Taking up the sources of the $100,000 fund contributed to finance the battle against the sugar tariff, Mr. Lakin testified that all but $15,000 of it was raised in the United States. The Royal Bank of Canada, which has large sugar holdings in Cuba, had contributed $10,000 and the other $5,000 was subscribed by a Cuban sugar producer. This was the only foreign money involved, Mr. Lakin declared.

A letter to Victor Heinz of Cincinnati, counsel for the Fleischmann Yeast Company, from Mr. Lakin was introduced. In it Mr. Lakin said he had "employed a friend of Hoover's, and I really have some hope."

He added, in the letter to Mr. Heinz, that some of the money he had raised was for publicity and some of it to employ people with a certain amount of influence. He recalled a conference with Senator Smoot in which, he said, the Utah Senator had suggested publicity as one way of combating the Philippine sugar menace.

The committee was in session less than an hour. Mr. Lakin will be recalled at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Shattuck Tells of Retainer.

Mr. Shattuck tonight issued the following statement:

"The press reports of Mr. Lakin's testimony before the lobby investigating committee apparently create the impression that I was retained by the Cuban sugar interests because of possible influence I might have with the President.

"Such an impression is untruthful and unfair, both to the President and myself. I have always been proud of a friendship which arose from a common service in the war, and neither I nor any other friend of the President would attempt to use such a friendship in the manner suggested. Every one who knows the President knows also that it would defeat its own purpose.

"About a year ago my firm was retained to represent the Cuban sugar interests of American citizens before the committees of Congress in respect to the tariff, and I have written briefs and presented their views to the committees as their attorney.

"Some time after I had presented my brief to the Ways and Means Committee, I was asked by my clients to continue my retainer. Before the new administration came in I informed Mr. Hoover of my connections, not to obtain his approval of an important legal engagement, but to inform him what my connection was so that there would be no misunderstanding. The President did not feel that he had any right to ask me to abandon my clients and that matter ended. I have never sought anything from the President."

ORTIZ RUBIO URGES CLOSER LINK TO US

President-Elect of Mexico Says Our Prosperity Is Tied Up With That of His Nation.

SPEAKS DESPITE ILLNESS

Pays Visit to Walker—Calles and Morrow to Address Luncheon Today.

In spite of an illness which necessitated sudden changes in the plans for broadcasting, President-elect Pascual Ortiz Rubio of Mexico made last night his first public statement to the American people since he has been in New York. He spoke over a nation-wide hook-up of the Columbia Broadcasting System through station WABC. Because of his indisposition, he spoke from the Hotel Ambassador instead of from the studio. He said in part:

"For more than twenty years Mexico has been occupied in an intense struggle to better conditions of life for all her people. The constant armed uprisings which have occurred in Mexico since 1910 are incidents of the same violent process—democratization. These movements of action and reaction constitute the so-called revolutions of Mexico.

Sees Revolution Being Realized.

"I believe the revolution, now that the material obstacles raised by its enemies have been conquered by my predecessors, has finally entered into the field of practical realization.

"I believe it is indispensable for the prosperity of both countries to strengthen more and more the ties of friendship which unite us on a basis of mutual respect."

Señor Ortiz Rubio with Dr. Puig Casauranc, Mayor of Mexico City, paid an informal call on Mayor Walker yesterday afternoon, following a luncheon at the New York Yacht Club at which Señor Ortiz Rubio was guest of honor.

The luncheon at which Señor Ortiz Rubio was guest was given by Karl A. Bickel, president of the United Press, and was attended by a group of newspaper men, Mexicans and business men, as well as Alexander P. Moore, Ambassador to Peru. Mr. Bickel introduced Señor Rubio with a greeting sent by Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow and the visitor responded with a brief address in English in which he commended the correctness of news about Mexico published in this country.

Calles to Speak Today.

General Plutarco Elias Calles, former President of Mexico, and Ambassador Morrow will be among the speakers at a luncheon to be given today at the Hotel Astor by the Mexican Chamber of Commerce in honor of Señor Ortiz Rubio. James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany and special envoy to Mexico in 1910, will preside. Others who will speak will be:

LEONOR F. LORES, president of the New York State Chamber of Commerce.
WILLIS BOOTH, president of the Merchants' Association.
JOHN L. MERRILL, president of the Pan-American Society.

Señor Rubio's escort to the luncheon will comprise:

LEWIS E. PIERSON, chairman of the Irving Trust Company.
AUGUSTINE LEGORRETA, chairman of the National Bank of Mexico.
ENRIQUE RUIZ, Consul General of Mexico.
JOSEPH W. ROWE, vice president of the Irving Trust Company.
A. LOPEZ NEGRETE, lawyer.

By RUSSELL OWEN.

fly to the northeast past King Edward Land.

The Polar flight has been accomplished and the occasional messages from home which indicate that people think it may be repeated shows how little the flying hazards of this country have been appreciated, possibly because of the skill with which the flights have been carried out.

Polar Flight Impossible Now.

The polar flight was made at a time when for a period of several days there was clear weather at the mountains and, as it was, the plane reached camp just before a storm which chased it all the way from the Polar Plateau. Since then the geological party has reported snow storms, clouds and variable winds which would have made the dangerous flight through the mountains impossible as well as barren of scientific results.

On this flight it was necessary to wait patiently for good weather and to take immediate advantage of it when it came. The opportunity might not come more than once or twice in a whole year, so that good fortune had to play its part.

The eastern flights between Little America and the Queen Maud Mountains were found on the polar and base-laying flights to be of less importance than a flight past King Edward Land, because the visibility was so good that the Amundsen Mountains in latitude 82, east of the trail, were found non-existent, and the limits of the Barrier to the east in that region seem to extend as far as the eye could see, about 100 miles.

A short flight to the east along the Queen Maud Range was made on the return from the Pole and a new conception of Carmen Land was gained. The results on these two flights and the tantalizing flight of last year to the northeast, when Commander Byrd was so sure he saw a mountain beyond King Edward Land, indicate that the next flight should be made in that direction.

Vagaries of Polar Regions.

Any one familiar with the polar regions knows that, when the sun gets higher and the season advances toward midsummer, fogs and clouds and variable winds become inevitable.

After Commander Byrd's flight to the North Pole, the airship Norge started and the many days of good weather, calm and with cloudless skies, ended as soon as the airship reached the Pole. From there the party headed by Captain Roald Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth flew through fog and mist to Alaska and saw a much smaller area than they had anticipated. Until Commander Byrd left Spitsbergen, the weather remained thick and stormy.

The Antarctic is no exception to these seasonal changes, apparently, or in the days since the eastern flight there have been overcast skies, dense fog and winds shifting all around the compass. For these reasons it appears that the flying program was concluded just in time.

"I have the safety of the men to consider under such conditions." Commander Byrd said today. "I think it is safe to say that it would be unwise, as well as unprofitable, to do any more flying this year except for a short hop or two.

"I have asked my men to take chance after chance to complete our work. They have served science and been fortunate to come through safely. I am going to think of them. They have completed the mission better than we hoped for. They seem to crave hazards and danger. But my duty now is to do my utmost to get them home. Besides, flying in thick weather down here is barren of geographical results."

There is another reason for not making further extensive flights. If the plane were forced down 200 miles or more from camp now on an eastern flight, the crew, provided they landed safely, could hardly get back to camp, man-hauling sleds, before the ships must leave.

It is hoped that the ships will arrive here about the third week in January. The bark City of New York will leave Dunedin, N. Z., in a few days and sail to the ice pack and the supply steamer Eleanor Bolling will leave early in January.

They must leave here as early in February as possible to avoid the new forming ice in the Ross Sea which so nearly trapped the City of New York last year. And if the plane crew did not get back by that time, they would be forced to stay here another year.

Geologists Are Storm-Bound.

Meantime, the geological party led by Dr. Lawrence Gould is completing its work in the Queen Maud Mountains. A message from Dr. Gould reads:

"Back down glacier to Camp Strom last night and stormbound all day.

"Will make another attempt to locate your caché before we start east. With your last instructions we hope to find it.

"This is first day since we left Little America that we have had to lose on account of weather."

BYRD RECEIVES AWARD OF THE LANGLEY MEDAL

Smithsonian Board Votes the Aerodromics Honor in Recognition of Three Major Flights.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The board of regents of the Smithsonian Institution voted today to award the Langley Medal for aerodromics to Commander Byrd in recognition of his conquest of the North and South Poles and the Atlantic Ocean by airplane, and posthumously to the late Charles Matthews Manly of New York, associate of Dr. Samuel P. Langley, the developer of the aerodrome, for his pioneering achievement in the development of the airplane engine.

The awards "admit these two contributors to the science and art of aviation to a very distinguished company," the announcement said. The medal has been awarded only five times previously since its founding in 1908—to Wilbur and Orville Wright in 1909 for their successful demonstrations of the practicability of mechanical flight by man; to Glenn Curtiss in 1913 for the development of the hydroaerodrome and to Gustave Eiffel, builder of the Eiffel Tower, for his researches relating to aerodynamics, and in 1927 to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh for his transatlantic flight.

The awards were voted at the annual meeting of the regents, at which Chief Justice William Howard Taft, the chancellor, presided.

Other members present included Senators Robinson of Arkansas and Swanson of Virginia; Representatives Moore of Virginia and Luce of Massachusetts, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, Charles Evans Hughes, Frederic A. Delano, John C. Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institution, and Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian.

After the action of the regents Secretary Abbot requested THE NEW YORK TIMES to send the following message announcing the award to Commander Byrd at Little America:

Commander Richard Evelyn Byrd, Little America:

On behalf of the board of regents of the Smithsonian Institution, I have great pleasure in informing you that the board, at its annual meeting this morning, awarded you the Langley gold medal for aerodromics, in recognition of your remarkable employment of the aeroplane for North and South polar flights, and the non-stop flight of the Atlantic Ocean, and for the scientific achievements associated therewith.

C. G. ABBOT,
Secretary, the Smithsonian Institution.

The award to Mr. Manly was made on recommendation of a board of scientists headed by Charles L. Lawrance, president of the Wright Aeronautic Corporation, himself the developer of the Whirlwind radial air-cooled engine. The announcement of the award was sent to Charles W. Manly of Pittsburgh, the inventor's eldest son.

Medals Made in France.

The presentation of the medal to Commander Byrd will be arranged following his return from the Antarctic. The medal will be presented to Mr. Manly after it is received from the French mint in Paris, where the die is kept.

The medal is the design of M. J. C. Chaplain, a member of the French Institute and a famous sculptor who died some years ago, and commemorates the pioneering researches in aeronautics of Dr. Samuel P. Langley, the third secretary of the Smithsonian Institution.

The medal is of gold, three inches in diameter. The face, around the rim, bears the Smithsonian seal of two torches and the inscription:

"For the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men. Smithsonian Institution, Washington, 1846."

In the centre appear the words:

"Langley Medal, Aerodromics."

The reverse carries the figure of a woman seated on the earth and holding aloft a torch, with the words:

"Per orbem."

The late Mr. Manly was associated with Dr. Langley from 1898 to 1905 in the latter's researches in mechanical flight, and in 1902 evolved the gas engine used in Dr. Langley's experiments with a man-carrying airplane.

The Manly airplane engine was described by Mr. Lawrance, who recommended the award of the medal as "the first modern aircraft engine in the world."

Says It Antedated All Others.

"The fact that it was produced years ahead of any other modern engine, and by an American engineer, should be a matter of pride to all who are interested in the advancement of American aeronautics and the mechanical genius of the American people," he said.

The institution announcement recalled an address by Mr. Lawrance on the subject of the Manly engine before the International Civil Aeronautics Conference in 1928, in which he said:

"I wish particularly to call your attention to this engine; for if the Wright brothers were geniuses in the science of aerodynamics as well as in the engineering judgment and good sense which characterized the conduct of their successive experiments, and if Glenn Curtiss was the practical type of engine designer most likely to succeed, Charles Matthews Manly was certainly the outstanding genius of early power plant design.

"When we consider that the most popular type of airplane engine of today is almost identical in its general detail and arrangement with the one evolved by Charles Manly in 1902, we are lost in admiration for a man who, with no data at his disposal, no examples of similar art on which to roughly base his design and no workmen capable of making the more difficult parts of his engine, nevertheless, through the processes of a logical mind, the intelligent application of the science of mathematics and the use of his surprising mechanical skill, succeeded in constructing an engine developing 52.4 horsepower for a weight of 125 pounds, or a weight of 2.4 pound per horsepower, which stood up under severe tests, once even going through a full power non-stop run of ten hours."

NAVY WILL BROADCAST FELICITATIONS TO BYRD

Secretary Adams and Two Bands to Participate—Comedy Stars Will Aid in Event.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—To Commander Byrd and his South Polar companions will be given an unusual Yuletide party Saturday night, when Secretary Adams, the Marine and Navy bands, singers, musical comedy stars and others will join in a special broadcast to the "bottom of the world" under the auspices of the Evening Star of this city. Secretary Adams will convey orally to Commander Byrd for the first time the felicitations of the Navy on his aerial conquest of the South Pole.

The program will be broadcast locally by Station WRC and will be flashed to Antarctica by the short-wave transmitter of WGY, which will be hooked directly with WRC.

By courtesy of Earl Carroll, W. G. Fields, Dorothy Britton, and other stars of the Vanities, as well as the chorus, will contribute in the entertainment.

The strain of "Carry Me Back to Ol' Virginny" played by the Marine Band, will open the program at 11 P. M. and "The Star-Spangled Banner," rendered by the Navy Band, will bring the event to a close at midnight.

A unique feature will be a special number sung to music from the "Dawn in the Desert," R. Dean Shure's Christmas oratorio, by a male chorus from the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church South.

SAVINGS ON STEEL IN BUILDING URGED

Technicians Favor Changes in Code to Add 2,000 Pounds to Permissible Stresses.

WOULD REDUCE WIND LOAD

Report Holds Provision for Pressure of 20 Pounds a Square Foot Is Adequate.

TO TIGHTEN SAFETY RULES

Bush Says His Committee Seeks to Draft Measure Which Can Be Kept Constantly Up to Date.

Important recommendations designed to improve building methods and effect substantial savings in construction were submitted in reports yesterday by seven of the technical subcommittees enlisted by the Merchants' Association in its task, undertaken at the request of Mayor Walker, of writing a new building code for New York City.

The reports of the subcommittees were made at a meeting of the advisory committee in the assembly room of the Merchants' Association. Irving T. Bush, chairman of the advisory committee, presided. This committee, consisting of 220 members, includes representatives of civic, trade and technical organizations as well as the members of the nineteen technical subcommittee.

The most important recommendations presented yesterday were those of the subcommittee on materials, loads and stresses, of which R. H. Shreve of Lam & Harmon, 11 East Forty-fourth Street, is chairman. Three of the changes recommended by the subcommittee were:

1. An increase in permissible stresses of structural steel from 16,000 pounds to 18,000 pounds a square inch.

2. A revision of the requirements in connection with wind pressure, with provision to be made in buildings for a wind load of twenty pounds a square foot instead of thirty pounds as at present. It is recommended that the entire wind pressure be taken up in the frame of the building.

3. Recommendations that welding and, in some instances, bolting be permitted as a cheaper means of construction and with a view to reducing noise.

Foundation Changes Urged.

One of the most important recommendations of the sub-committee on foundations, headed by Ralph H. Chambers, is intended to throw a larger degree of responsibility on the designing engineer for safe foundation work. He would be required to file an affidavit that the plans conform to the code. The subcommittee recommended also changes permitting a more liberal use of concrete steel piles.

The subcommittee on reinforced concrete, headed by Frank S. Parker, proposed that the designing engineer of a building operation have full latitude in the selection of materials and stresses, but within the bounds of safe practice.

The subcommittee on the protection of adjoining property, of which Mr. Chambers is also chairman, favored the rescinding of a provision in the present code that where a tall building is erected next to a low building the builder of the larger structure shall carry up the chimney flues of the older structure to the level of the top of the taller building.

This rule now applies to all flues within ten feet of the party line. Mr. Chambers explained that this regulation had had the effect of placing unscrupulous owners in a position to exact payment from owners of new buildings even though the flues were not used. Mr. Chambers said that the codes of other cities contain no provision of this nature. Many elaborate provisions for the protection of adjoining structures during the erection of new buildings were recommended.

Safety Code Strengthened.

A new advanced code of safety provisions was submitted by the subcommittee on the protection of public and workmen, of which Henry W. Lohmann is chairman.

The new code, Mr. Lohmann said, is well in advance of the safety provisions of the New York State Labor Law, which has been found inadequate.

"In general," he said, "rules have been set up so as to conform to custom, usage and to the best known but practical safety practice."

Mr. Lohmann announced that the State Department of Labor had organized an Advisory Committee on Industrial Code Rules and that it was hoped the State would alter its rules to conform with those in the new code if the latter were found preferable in actual practice.

If the report of the subcommittee on wood construction, headed by Norman Nims, is adopted, no frame building will be erected in New York City hereafter more than 35 feet or three stories high. The present allowable height of frame buildings within the city limits is 40 feet. Recommendations were also made by the committee intended to obtain a stronger floor joist than is now required.

Bush Explains Purpose.

In accepting the reports, Mr. Bush made the following statement on the purposes of the proposed building code revision:

"Two main objectives have been set in the work of revision: (1) To bring the code abreast of progress in the art of building, and (2) to make provisions so that the code can be kept in step with advances in that art much more easily than under the present ordinance.

"The first objective is largely in the hands of the technical subcommittees. The second it is planned to achieve by developing and applying more thoroughly a principle already in the present code and of widespread application in public and business life. This principle is the delegation to an administrative body of the power to interpret and apply in detail with the force of law general provisions enacted by a legislative body.

"With this end in view the revised code is being divided into two general groups of provisions, the first containing basic provisions and the second the detailed applications of these basic provisions. The first part will be subject to amendment by the Board of Aldermen alone; the second by the Board of Aldermen, or by the Board of Standards and Appeals, which will be specifically charged with the duty of keeping the second group of provisions abreast of developments in the art of building."

The report dealing with materials, loads and stresses revealed that the reduced allowances for wind pressure were suggested only after careful study of the effects of the Florida hurricane of 1926. It declared: "The sum total of our experience to date shows no building adequately braced to withstand a wind pressure of fifteen pounds per square foot even to have suffered damage in the most severe windstorms."

In justifying the increase in permissible steel stresses, the report said:

"Our recommended working stresses are based upon the established facts that the steel now going into our buildings has an ultimate strength of over 60,000 pounds per square inch and a yield point which averages about 37,000 pounds per square inch. These facts were made available by the American Society of Civil Engineers, which examined and thoroughly analyzed the mill test records of over 6,000 heats of steel made in six widely scattered mills and covering the period of five or six years prior to 1926.

"It is our belief that there is no case on record where a high working stress has been the cause of the failure of a steel frame structure; and that with all other factors unchanged 18,000 pounds is as safe as 16,000 pounds.

"The steel frame of a building costs from 10 per cent to 20 per cent of the total cost. The provisions of this new section provide a direct theoretical saving of about 12 per cent, and also indicate some indirect saving in fireproofing and foundations."

Cuckoo Clock Makers Merge To Push German Product

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The very latest thing in mergers is reported from Germany, where makers of the famous Black Forest cuckoo clocks have decided to combine as a means of improving conditions affecting this particular industry.

Douglas Cook, assistant trade commissioner at Berlin, reported today that the merging firms argue that the combination will enable an improvement in the quality of their cuckoo clocks and that the resultant price agreements will greatly eliminate the present high degree of competition. A standard trade-mark and an intensive joint advertising campaign have been suggested as stimulants to increased sales.

SCORES GILLETT VARE VOTE.

Ex-Governor Fuller Also Attacks Senator for Defending Bingham.

Special to The New York Times.

MALDEN, Mass., Dec. 12.—Former Governor Alvan T. Fuller, speaking tonight at the annual crow supper of the Malden Deliberative Assembly, assailed Senator Gillett for his vote to retain Vare in the Senate and for his defense of Senator Bingham of Connecticut when under fire in connection with the tariff lobby.

Said the former Governor:

"I do not believe that our Republican Senator is voicing the sentiments of the people back home when he voted for the retention of Vare of Pennsylvania, one of the toughest characters who ever tried to push his way, regardless of the law, into the precincts of what has sometimes been called the most exclusive club in the world."

VARE TAKEN ILL, WORN BY EFFORTS

Doctor, After Seeing Him at Atlantic City, Blames Reaction From Washington Activity.

COMPLETE REST ORDERED

His Philadelphia Aides Show Concern Over His Plans to Seek Senate Seat Again.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 12.—William S. Vare was stricken at his residence here today with a relapse from his recent illness, due to overexertion attending his vain efforts last week to gain the seat in the Senate, to which he was elected from Pennsylvania in 1926.

Mrs. Vare and the couple's married daughter, Mrs. William Kipp, are also lying ill in adjoining rooms at the Vare cottage.

Miss Beatrice Vare, another daughter, said that her father was "very, very ill," but reports as to the nature of his illness were vague until the arrival of Dr. Elwood R. Kirby, who had been summoned from Philadelphia at Mr. Vare's orders. After a twenty-minute examination of the patient, Dr. Kirby said:

"Mr. Vare is suffering only from extreme fatigue. It is more or less a reaction from affairs at Washington, and the long automobile ride to Lancaster last Tuesday to attend the funeral of Congressman Griest.

"There is nothing organically wrong and his condition is just as it has been during the last year.

"I have ordered him to remain in bed for three days and forbidden all but members of his immediate family to see him. All he needs is complete rest and then he will be up and about."

Dr. Kirby said he did not think Mr. Vare's illness would interfere seriously with his plans for the Spring Republican primary campaign, in which Mr. Vare has announced that he will fight again for the Senate seat, now held by Joseph R. Grundy.

Mr. Vare became ill on May 21, 1928, with acute indigestion and pleurisy. He seemed to have recovered from his illness the following month, but suffered a stroke on Aug. 4, 1928. He was partially paralyzed and for several days it was doubtful if he would recover. He was attended on that occasion by Dr. Kirby and Dr. John J. Shaw of Philadelphia.

Both physicians were almost constantly at his bedside, until he began to rally several weeks later. He finally regained the use of his limbs, and his improvement was steady until recently he had seemed almost to have regained normal health.

Philadelphia Leaders Concerned.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 12.—News of the illness of William S. Vare today created consternation among politicians in City Hall here. The City Council was in session when word of Mr. Vare's relapse came, and Councilman Charles B. Hall and other members who are numbered among the Vare lieutenants professed concern and attempted to get some accurate information on his condition. James M. Haslett, chairman of the Republican City Committee and an intimate of Mr. Vare, left at once for Atlantic City.

The strain Mr. Vare underwent in making a twenty-minute plea on the floor of the Senate a week ago yesterday is known to have told heavily on him. Later, disregarding the advice of his friends, he limped into the Senate chamber to hear the roll-call by which the seat was denied him.

Some of Mr. Vare's associates, who welcomed him on his return from Washington and congratulated him upon his declaration to run again, have since expressed regret among themselves over what they describe as "hasty action." The Vare leaders admit privately that they cannot hope to hold the organization together if Mr. Vare insists upon seeking the nomination against Joseph R. Grundy.

Having seen the widespread evidence of support for Mr. Grundy just prior to and since his appointment, they fear that even Mr. Vare's platform of "vindication" will not suffice to draw to him, five months from now, enough votes to win. They point out that Philadelphia and Dauphin Counties gave him strong support in 1926, but that several campaigns in this city since then, coupled with Mr. Vare's long absence from the direction of affairs, have left the Republican organization here with several evident weak links.

UNION LEAGUE BIDS CONGRESS AID TRADE

Resolution Urges It to Get Into Step With Hoover and Mellon in Moves for Prosperity.

The following resolution, presented by the public affairs committee, was adopted last night by the Union League Club at its regular meeting:

Whereas the Union League Club is deeply impressed by the demonstration of sound business conditions that has been made under President Hoover's leadership, by the industries and railroads of the countries; and

Whereas the club shares the President's confidence that the present high level of prosperity is to continue; that wages and, therefore, consuming power are not to be reduced, and that the measures of cooperation and of sustained industrial activity already agreed upon should be pursued until confidence, lessened by the recent drastic decline in security prices, has been restored; and

Whereas capital, whether in industry, agriculture or railroads, has met a critical situation with a promptness and spirit which President Hoover, in his annual message just published, properly characterizes as "remarkable and satisfactory"; therefore,

Resolved, That the Union League Club believes the country is entitled to an equally "remarkable and satisfactory" response from the Senate and House of Representatives at Washington. Business has not hesitated to pledge all its resources and energies to maintain prosperity. We call upon Congress to match this fine demonstration of helpfulness by uniting in the same spirit as business has united to meet the immediate needs of the country. There should be no further delay in the enactment of a new tariff law; no further delay in legislation enabling our railroads to merge under proper regulations into great systems capable of transporting our vast freight tonnage with increased rapidity and at lower cost to shippers. These two measures are essential to the development of our farms, factories and railroads; they suffer today largely from the persistent refusal of Congress to recognize as promptly and effectively as President Hoover and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon have recognized the duty of the government to clear the pathway to prosperity for business men and wage earners alike.

NEWSPRINT RISE REPORTED GIVEN UP

Montreal Dispatch to Toronto Star Asserts Paper Mills Have Abandoned Plan.

PUBLISHERS FORCED ACTION

Their Opposition Is Given as the Reason for Renewing Contracts —Ferguson Refuses Comment.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—Reports were persistent here tonight that Canadian paper manufacturers had decided to abandon their plan to raise the price of newsprint.

While general belief was expressed that the reports were true, a very positive statement was made in a Montreal dispatch to The Toronto Star, as follows:

"Practical acknowledgement that the Canadian manufacturers of newsprint will have to give up the intention of raising the price of paper $5 a ton this year and send new contracts to their customers quoting last year's price of $55.20 a ton at the mills, was made by manufacturers here following an informal conference between members of the Canadian Newsprint Institute and Premier Taschereau.

"The threatening attitude of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association and the certainty that, in face of this opposition, the International Paper Company cannot join with the Canadian manufacturers in raising the price to $60, are said to be the factors influencing members of the institute.

"It is claimed that the Newsprint Institute feels it would be unfair to charge increased prices when all could not be included."

Montreal Awaits Announcement.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Dec. 12.—No confirmation could be obtained here tonight of the reported abandonment by Canadian manufacturers of the plan to increase the price of newsprint. No official announcement has yet been made here of any change in the terms for new contracts.

Premier Taschereau was in Quebec today.

P. B. Wilson, manager of the Canadian Newsprint Institute, said he had no knowledge of the conference or of the abandonment of the increased price.

Ferguson Offers No Comment.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 12.—Premier Ferguson of Ontario, when informed here today that The Toronto Star had announced in a dispatch from Montreal that the Canadian paper manufacturers had abandoned their plan to increase the price of newsprint, said that he had no comment to make.

"It is a matter for the manufacturers themselves to decide," he said. "We (the governments) have never undertaken to bring about an increase in price."

Publishers Continue Conference.

Officials of the paper committee of the American Newspaper Publishers Association stated last night that the committee had no comment to make on the reported decision of the Canadian newsprint manufacturers to continue the current prices through 1930.

The conference begun Wednesday between representatives of the Canadian manufacturers and the association's committee was continued yesterday. Among those present were C. R. Whitehead, chairman of the board of governors of the Newsprint Institute of Canada; George Chahoon Jr. of the Canada Power and Paper Corporation, E. L. Crooker of the St. Maurice Valley Paper Company, Alexander Smith and Robert T. Houk Jr. of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company and members of the publishers' committee. The conference will continue on Monday.

FEWER ANGLO-SAXONS HERE

Sir Harry Armstrong Says Italians and Germans Forge to the Front.

"Anglo-Saxon stock is fast disappearing from America," Sir Harry Gloster Armstrong, British Consul General, told fifty members of the New York branch of the Overseas League last night in opening the new local headquarters of the league at 13 East Thirty-sixth Street.

He said that the Italian and German elements in American life are fast achieving great political importance. He urged the members of the league, an organization of Americans of British descent and Englishmen who have become naturalized Americans, to perpetuate Anglo-Saxon ideals and cement the friendly relationships between England and the United States. Lady Armstrong also spoke.

WOMAN FREED IN SLAYING.

Mrs. Kugler Is Not Indicted in West Belmar (N. J.) Case.

FREEHOLD, N. J., Dec. 12.—Mrs. Margaret Kugler, 2 years old, of West Belmar, N. J., who has been held in the Monmouth County jail here since Oct. 28 on a charge of murder, was discharged from custody today, when the Monmouth County grand jury failed to indict her. Prosecutor Quinn moved for her release and the motion was granted by Judge Steinback of the Quarter Sessions Court.

Mrs. Kugler was alleged to have fatally stabbed William Studeman, 40 years old, of West Belmar. The police reported that Mrs. Kugler had taken her two children and had gone to live with Studeman. Both Mrs. Kugler and Studeman were arrested on Mr. Kugler's complaint. Mrs. Kugler was released and she returned to her husband. It was alleged that Studeman appeared at her home to persuade her to accompany him.

Kugler and Studeman engaged in an altercation and Mrs. Kugler, while assisting her husband, is alleged to have stabbed Studeman.

GRUNDY A SENATOR AFTER LONG DEBATE

Fisher, notified of the vacancy in the United States Senate, occasioned by the denial of a seat to the said William S. Vare, has appointed to the said vacancy one Joseph R. Grundy, whose credentials are now before the Senate; and,

Whereas in the same campaign in which William S. Vare and his ticket were found by a Senate investigating committee to have expended $785,000 to win nominations, another ticket in opposition to the nomination of the said Vare and in support of the nomination of the said Fisher for Governor of Pennsylvania expended $1,804,979, or nearly three times as much, according to the finding of the same investigating committee; and

Whereas, of the aforesaid sum of $1,804,979, $400,000 was raised and contributed by Joseph Grundy, the aforesaid appointee of Governor Fisher; and,

Whereas the expenditure of such large sums of money to secure nomination is contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the dignity and honor of the Senate, dangerous to the perpetuity of a free government and destructive of the value and merit of an election climaxing a campaign of such expenditures; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the aforesaid Joseph Grundy is declared to be not entitled to retain his seat in the United States Senate.

Nye Charges "Sale" of Place.

Defending the resolution, Senator Nye asserted that, if it admitted Mr. Grundy, the Senate would be awarding the seat to the "highest bidder."

"I do not see how the Senate can accept the appointment made by $2,000,000 Fisher to $500,000 Grundy after denying the seat to $500,000 Vare," said Mr. Nye. "Instead of an election in Pennsylvania, the primary in 1926 was an auction sale. The Senate is now going to reward the machine which spent money more lavishly than did the Vare machine."

Senator Cutting took up the attack.

"I think the Senate should remind itself," he said, "that this man has boasted that during his whole public career he has been engaged in the collection of campaign contributions for national campaigns, collected from large business interests, with the implied promise that those interests would, after election, receive 100-fold the value of the contributions made.

"Why did the Senate deny a seat to Mr. Vare? There were two reasons stated in the resolution for the unseating or denying a seat to Mr. Vare. One was the question of excessive expenditures in the primary. The other was the question of fraud and corruption in both the primary and the election.

"If there was an election held in Pennsylvania in 1926, then, as some Senators stated here the other day, either Mr. Vare or Mr. Wilson was elected. The fact that we refused to seat either one of them means, in my judgment, that we voted against the validity of that entire election. In other words, there was no election held in Pennsylvania in 1926.

He Hits at Fisher's Election.

"Governor Fisher was nominated at the same primary at which Mr. Vare was nominated.

"He was elected at the same general election, if elected at all. He spent three times as much as Mr. Vare spent in the primary. He was the beneficiary of the same fraud and corruption as Mr. Vare in the general election.

"If Vare is not a Senator from Pennsylvania, then on what theory can the Senate hold that Mr. Fisher is Governor of Pennsylvania today?

"I cannot conscientiously, in my opinion in this matter, do anything to validate, or to seem to endorse, the election or so-called election of Mr. Fisher. I believe the Senator from North Dakota (Mr. Nye) has rendered a great public service in his attitude."

Senator Barkley, Democrat, of Kentucky said the Senate had already rejected the direct decision of Pennsylvania in the 1926 election, "and now we are asked to seat the indirect choice of those same people."

Senator Pittman of Nevada also assailed the seating of Mr. Grundy, but expressed the belief that the Senate had no jurisdiction in questioning the election of Governor Fisher and the validity of his appointments. He proposed that Mr. Grundy be allowed to take his seat and an investigation made later as to wether he should be allowed to retain it.

"I deny the right of the Senate to pass on the election of the Governor of any State," Senator Swanson of Virginia said. "I am not willing to have a precedent established whereby the Senate can go behind the election of the Governor of Pennsylvania, as proposed in the pending resolution. I would not have appointed Mr. Grundy, but I insist that we have no right to investigate the appointee of the Governor or decide whether he is proper or improper."

Borah Moves Grundy Be Sworn.

Senator Borah here moved that the debate be halted and that Mr. Grundy be sworn.

Senator Moses, who was presiding, ruled that the Nye resolution would have to be disposed of before Mr. Grundy could be admitted. Senator Reed of Pennsylvania made a motion, approved by Senator Nye, that the resolution be referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

The Senate, however, failed to come to a vote and Senator Wheeler of Montana got the floor. He said Mr. Grundy's appointment was "an insult," but insisted that the Senate should recognize the credentials from Governor Fisher.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, supported this view.

"The Senate has neither the power, nor the right, to question the validity of the credentials presented by the new Senator," he said.

"I entertain opinions touching the proceedings which antedated this event which I shall refrain from expressing now, because it is my conclusion that the only way in which this vacancy can be filled is by appointment by the Governor and the only way in which an election can be called to fill it permanently is by proclamation of the Governor, and if you deny any authority on the part of the Governor because he was on the Pepper-Grundy-Fisher ticket, it necessarily results that, without an election concerning which the question of fraud has been raised, the Senate denies the State its right to representation."

Senator Walsh of Montana at this point suggested that Mr. Grundy be seated and his credentials be referred to the Comittee on Privileges and Elections. Senator George of Georgia indicated that he would offer a motion to table the Nye resolution because it reflected on the election of a Governor. He desisted in his intention to press such a resolution, which would have shut off debate. He said the Senate had no right to inquire into the election of Governor Fisher.

Senator Norris agreed with Senator Borah that Mr. Grundy's appointment was legal and he was entitled to be seated.

Senator Blease of South Carolina, one of the few Democrats who voted to seat Mr. Vare, was the bitterest anti-Grundy speaker. He said that there had been a conspiracy to bar Mr. Vare so as to make Mr. Grundy a Senator.

Finally Senator Johnson offered as a substitute for the Nye proposal his motion, which provided that Mr. Grundy should be allowed to take the oath as a Senator and that his credentials and all other matters pertaining to them should be referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

Senator Moses put the motion to a vote and it was adopted without questions.

Mr. Grundy moved to the rostrum with Senator Reed and took the oath.

Later Mr. Grundy said he expected to pass on the tariff bill, but would resign from the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, of which he is president, if his place was inconsistant with his position as a Senator. He said he had not changed his mind on "backward" States.

He did not know whether he would continue to collect campaign funds for the Republican party; decision on that question, he said, also depended on whether it was against Senatorial ethics.

NAMED AS PROTECTIONIST.

Grundy Sent to Senate Specifically for Tariff Fight, Fisher Says.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 12 (AP).—Governor Fisher was silent tonight on attacks of his right to name Joseph R. Grundy as Senator from Pennsylvania, delivered on the floor of the Senate during the debate on Mr. Grundy's admittance. The Governor, advised at the executive offices of the administration of the oath to Mr. Grundy, also refused comment on the action of the Senate.

Asked his reason for appointing Mr. Grundy, the Governor merely said:

"There is no question before the Senate of greater importance to Pennsylvania than the tariff. The person most able to carry on the fight for protection of the State's industries is Mr. Grundy."

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 12 (AP).—The opinion that Joseph R. Grundy, seated today as Pennsylvania's junior Senator, is "a man well fitted for the office," was expressed tonight by W. L. Mellon, former chairman of the State Republican Committee. Mr. Mellon termed Mr. Grundy's selection as "most fortunate."

Chiang's Armies Win in Honan, Anhwei and at Canton Against Rebels.

MISSIONARIES ENDANGERED

Fear Is Felt for Priests Missing in Kiangsi, Where Red Armies Ravage Countryside.

REDS AGAIN BOMB CHINESE

Mukden Hears of Renewed Raids —Fear Felt for Japanese— Izvestiya Scores Critics.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 12 (AP).—China's Nationalist forces battled successfully on three major fronts today against rebel armies seeking the overthrow of President Chiang Kai-shek and his government. With the stories of civil war were mingled reports of missing American missionaries, possibly victims of large-scale banditry.

Having lost half their number in a vain attempt to capture Canton, the "Ironsides" division was reported retreating after three days of battle in which thousands of rebels and Nationalist Government troops were killed or wounded. The Kwangsi Province rebels, cooperating with the Ironsides division, also were repulsed. Nationalist troops took several thousand prisoners.

The Pukow mutineers, with numbers swelled to 30,000 or more, were reported checked at Chuchow, fifty miles north of their objective, Nanking, seat of the Nationalist Government. Troops drawn from less affected areas of rebellion by the government were holding their line, and fighting, which had lasted several days, was subsiding.

The march of General Tang Sengchi's rebel troops toward the Yangtse River at Hankow was said to be checked for the present in Honan Province. The fighting with Nationalist forces, however, was indecisive.

The fate of the American missionaries at Kanchow in Kiangsi Province is unknown. Since Nov. 30, when they reported the city threatened by Communist armies, communication with them has been impossible. The missionaries sent a telegram on that date saying that cities about Kanchow had been captured by Reds, and that the situation was serious. The missionaries are attached to the Lazarus Catholic Mission at Kanchow, headquarters of which is at Germantown, Pa.

Chinese authorities at Amoy stated that there were sufficient government troops at Kanchow to protect the missionaries.

The Reds, they said, were likely to capture Sinfeng, fifty miles south of Kanchow, where it is understood that missionaries also are stationed.

NEW SOVIET RAID REPORTED.

Mukden Says Reds Bombed Buchatu —Izvestia Scores Critics.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MUKDEN, Dec. 12.—It was stated in official quarters today that in spite of the beginning of peace negotiations the Red army continues its military operations. Yesterday the Chinese positions at Hsingan and Buchatu were attacked and bombed, it was said.

Concern for Japanese.

TOKIO, Dec. 12 (AP).—Concern for the safety of several hundred Japanese subjects in Northwestern Manchuria was increased instead of being dispelled by the receipt today of the first message since Nov. 16 from the Japanese Consul at Manchuli. The message, which came through Moscow, merely reported the safety of a few individuals.

Since the message was numbered "9," officials believed eight previous messages went astray or were suppressed, and doubt has arisen concerning the value of Moscow's general assurance for the safety of all Japanese subjects in the occupied zone.

Moscow has persisted in its refusal to permit the Japanese Consul at Manchuli to report to Tokio in code messages. The Foreign Office has instructed the Japanese Ambassador at Moscow to urge the Soviet Government to forward the consul's reports.

Official reports apparently confirm advices that the Soviet troops are occupying the western portion of the Chinese Eastern Railway, including Hailar. Governor Wan Fu-lin of Holungkiang told the Japanese Consul at Tsitsihar that the Chinese were unable to insure safety beyond Yakusu, eighty kilometers east of Hailar, of the proposed international train carrying American, French, British, Japanese and German Consuls, which is to leave Harbin tomorrow for Manchuli to ascertain the situation beyond the Khinghan Mountains. The consul reported he had been informed that Soviet cavalry had been seen sixty miles east of Hailar.

A dispatch from Harbin to the Rengo news agency today said that the Japanese Consulate at Manchuli, Manchuria, was bombed by Russian army airplanes and considerable damage was done to Japanese property when Soviet troops occupied the border town about Nov. 20.

Izvestia Attacks Associates.

MOSCOW, Dec. 12 (AP).—The official newspaper Izvestia today attacked Rumania, Yugoslavia and other countries of Central Europe for joining the movement of the United States and other powers associated with the Kellogg-Briand pact in reminding Russia and China of their obligations to settle their Manchurian dispute peacefully.

Izvestia said that the action of these countries after the approval of the protocol for the Russo-Chinese agreement "clearly indicated that their activities and those of the countries supporting them were directed against the Soviet Union and designed to tear down the peaceful settlement of the conflict."

The newspaper warned the countries of the Little Entente unrecognized by Russia, that interference in Russian affairs and unasked advice would meet the same fate as Egypt's note on the Russo-Chinese situation, which was not accepted by the Russian Ambassador in Paris.

Izvestia affirms that the Russo-Chinese conflict will be liquidated in spite of outside interference by the "firm will of the Soviet Government and the common sense of the Mukden statesmen."

Bulgaria Joins Pact Move.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Bulgaria today informed the State Department that it approved of the American appeal to Russia and China in behalf of peace in Manchuria, and was communicating in similar spirit with the Russian Embassy and the Chinese Legation in Sofia.

This is the thirty-eighth government to respond to the American appeal for concerted action toward a peaceable adjustment of the Chinese Eastern Railway dispute.

200,000 Mexicans Visit Shrine of Guadalupe; Many Crawl 4 Miles From Capital to Worship

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12 (AP).—Worshipers estimated at nearly 200,000 thronged through the Villa Guadalupe today to honor "Our Lady of Guadalupe," the patron saint of the republic.

This was the first time since the beginning of the three-year clash of the Church and the government in 1926 that priests have been permitted to officiate at the annual services.

The first mass started just after midnight and one celebration of the rite followed another for more than twelve hours. Scores of police were on duty at the church and at frequent intervals they had to close the gates in order to prevent a catastrophic crush within the structure.

Several hundred others were on duty along the four-mile route from the national cathedral in Mexico City to handle the emergency traffic. Many of the devout made the pilgrimage on their hands and knees.

The vicinity of the shrine was dense with humanity for many blocks. A predominant number of the worshipers were Indians. Members of that race have been most faithful in keeping up the pilgrimages to the shrine where, they believe, a miraculous visitation took place nearly 400 years ago.

Tonight the dense throngs turned to feasting and celebration in honor of the saint. It was expected that this phase of the observance would continue until dawn.

The services represented a thanksgiving for the settlement of the Church and State problem and the reopening of the churches as well as a traditional religious ceremony.

The attendants of the shrine were kept busy disposing of burned candles and clearing a space for the candles of new worshipers streaming steadily down the aisles of the basilica.

A huge bazaar, with hundreds of stands where candles, religious ornaments and food were sold, was held outside. Many of the visitors came from distant parts of Mexico and have been camped in the neighborhood of the shrine for several days.

DUTCH COLONY ACCUSED.

Panama Hears West Indians Are Persecuting Venezuelans.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Dec. 12.—The present government at Curacao, Dutch West Indies, is persecuting Venezuelan refugees, according to a local revolutionary junta, which received advice to that effect in private correspondence today. It is charged that the Dutch arrest Venezuelans not in sympathy with the present government, and deport them to Venezuela on slight pretexts.

The private letters received here from Venezuela were from disinterested sources and state that no news has been printed in the press there regarding the alleged release of political prisoners, including students, by President Juan Bautista Perez.

Recently cabled reports from Venezuela stated that the prisoners had been released by the government, but when clippings of these reports were sent to Venezuela for confirmation they furnished the first news received there, as the local press, which is completely government controlled, had not printed a single word of this news.

ARGENTINIANS HOLD WE WEAKEN COURT

La Prensa Says Our Entrance Would Curtail Jurisdiction of World Tribunal.

DEPLORES RESERVATIONS

Paper Holds They Would Make Body Dependent on United States, Due to Fear of Withdrawal.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 12.—La Prensa, discussing editorially today the adherence of the United States to the World Court, says that the world should not attribute much importance to the proposed American entrance, since it is surrounded by so many reservations, signifies more disadvantages than advantages for The Hague tribunal and makes the court dependent on American opinion, whereas it has hitherto been a free court of arbitration capable of considering many questions over which its jurisdiction would now be curtailed.

The paper declares that participation of the United States in the World Court on the same basis as the other nations would be highly important because it would signify the end of American isolation and the active participation of the United States in European affairs, with its influence carrying great weight. But the court, asserts the paper, in its anxiety to tempt the United States to join the tribunal, has surrendered completely on all the American reservations, to such an extent that one single country, namely the United States, can prevent the court from considering any question brought before it under threat of withdrawing from the tribunal.

"Nothing justifies the creation of this situation," says the article. "The position of the court as the result of American adherence under conditions so beneficial to the United States is not a comfortable one. Its jurisdiction is restricted and its actions are made subject to the pleasure of the American Government.

"The fear of withdrawal by the United States is certain to interfere with the free action of the tribunal in its future deliberations since all its decisions are now subject to the previous censorship of the American State Department, in the event that the Senate ratifies the adherence, which is not yet certain."

INDIAN TOM-TOMS OPEN FEAST AT LAS CRUCES

Aztec and Christian Rites Are Welded in Ceremonies Honoring Virgin of Guadalupe.

LAS CRUCES, N. M., Dec. 12 (AP).—Dressed in ceremonial robes, fantastic headdresses and grotesque masks, participants in the weird observance of the feast of the Virgin of Guadalupe began at sunrise today their ceremonies, strange welding of old Spanish Catholicism and the ancient Aztec religion.

A glaring fire-cross on the slopes of Tortugas Mountain last night flashed an invitation for all who saw to attend the feast in the tiny village of Tortugas, which continues until midnight tonight, while tom-toms beat their call to the "olla" or "promise dance."

The celebration today opened with a procession in which the Indians carry a figure of the Virgin. Many of them carry or wear articles dating back to the Spanish conquest of New Mexico, articles which have been handed down from father to son in the generations.

Throughout the day the dancing goes on, with first one group and then another measuring their tread with the throbbing of the tom-toms, continuing until after the sun has set. The dances of the Tortugas Indians are perhaps the most spectacular of all the celebrations of New Mexico.

In years gone by it was the custom of the Indians to climb the mountainside on hands and knees with bundles of fagots tied to their backs with which to build the welcoming fire-cross. Civilization in recent years has altered the custom and they are now carrying the wood to the fire scene on horseback, or even in dilapidated automobiles.

MUELLER DEMANDS REICHSTAG BACKING

Urges Vote of Confidence on Financial Program, Bareing Deficit of $404,600,000.

$78,540,000 NEEDED NOW

Negotiations for Loan by Bankers Here Reported—New Criticisms Offered by Schacht.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—Germany's complicated economic problems were today the topic of critical discussions before two widely varying but authoritative forums. Almost at the same hour that Chancellor Hermann Mueller submitted the government's program of financial reforms to the Reichstag, incidentally admitting that the Reich's exchequer will show a deficit of 1,700,000,000 marks (about $404,600,000) at the end of this year, 2,500 members of the Federation of German Industries assembled in one of Berlin's largest auditoriums to listen to expert diagnoses of the ailments from which German economy is suffering.

While the synchronizing of the two events may have been coincidental, it nevertheless indicates concurrence in both quarters that the condition of the Reich's finances and economy is being viewed with grave alarm.

Chancellor Mueller prefaced his statement with a frank but emphatic refutation of the charges contained in the memorandum recently made public by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, in which the latter attacked the government for failure to undertake the reform of the Reich's finances and also for its alleged failure to protect Germany's prerogatives under the Young plan. At almost the same hour that the Chancellor was occupying himself with Dr. Schacht's attack, the latter was receiving a rousing ovation upon his appearance at the meeting of the industrialists, who strongly approve his criticism of the government.

Paints Gloomy Picture.

The condition of Germany's finances was projected into the full glare of daylight by Herr Mueller and the Reichstag Deputies literally grew pale as he denounced the deficit of 1,700,000,000 marks in the national exchequer at the close of the year.

A matter of immediate concern to the government is the problem of raising 330,000,000 marks (about $78,540,000) to meet December payrolls and current expenses. It was hinted that negotiations for a loan to meet this exigency were now in progress, the reports mentioning a German-American bank group, Lnd it is also believed that the government applied to the Agent General for Reparations, S. Parker Gilbert, for a temporary accommodation.

Accounting for the 1,700,000,000 mark deficit, Herr Mueller explained that it represented the accumulation of budgetary shortages of several years, 150,000,000 marks being for 1928 and 300,000,000 for 1929. The present extraordinary budget contributed a further 800,000,000, while the requirements for December amount to 450,000,000.

By a process of hectic finances the Reich has managed to obtain coverage for 1,370,000,000 marks (about $326,060,000) through borrowings in various quarters and for varying periods. Their pedigree is as follows: Treasury notes floated, 400,000,000 marks; Reichsbank capital credit, 100,000,000; foreign credits, 210,000,000; advances by the Ministries of Post and Railways, 220,000,000; advanced by private banks, 205,000,000; treasury notes discounted through the Agent General for Reparations and other quarters, 260,000,000. This leaves the government with the deficit coverable immediately of 330,000,000 marks.

Calls Publicity Necessary.

Chancellor Mueller told the Reichstag he believed that no good purpose would be served in concealing the state of the Reich's finances, and that while he realized that there might be warranted scruples against too frank a revelation at this time, he was convinced that only wholehearted publicity would enable the government to solve the critical situation confronting it. In justice to it, it must be said, he added, that a good share of the existing deficit comprised the legacies from former governments arising from inability to balance extraordinary budgets.

Reviewing the prospects of relief which the government's reform program held out, the Chancellor stated that the increase of ½ per cent in the premium charges for unemployment insurance would yield 340,000,000 marks, while the added impost on tobacco products would produce 220,000,000 in new revenues.

The Chancellor concluded his remarks with a stirring appeal to the Reichstag to accept the government's program in its entirety and also to extend its parliamentary confidence. Unless the government received a clear vote of confidence, he believed that the second Hague conference would be endangered if a new government were not constituted promptly.

Asks Cooperation.

"The hour is grave and demands resolute action," he declared. "Our finance program may require slight alterations, but today the government requests that a majority of this house give it approval, for the financial needs of the Reich are such that we must ask you to forget partisan differences and remember the interests of the German people which you are called on to serve in this hour of pressing need. Only thus can the work of reconstruction of the past ten years be conserved and carried on, and to this end the government needs the confidence of the Reichstag."

Sporadic interruptions by the Nationalists and Communists were the only discordant notes from the floor of the House during the Chancellor's speech, which obviously made a profound impression on the coalition parties because of its unvarnished presentation of the state of the Reich's exchequer. The House adjourned immediately after Herr Mueller concluded and will debate the government's statement tomorrow. The vote on a motion of confidence will be taken Saturday.

There is apparently less inclination tonight in the ranks of the coalition parties to overthrow the Cabinet, although final party caucuses have not yet been held. If the government fails to put its program through and get the expression of confidence it demands, the present Reichstag in all probability will be dissolved, as it suggests no prospect for a new coalition in the present party line-up.

Refutes Schacht's Charges.

Refuting the charges by Dr. Schacht with respect to the government's failure to prevent encroachments on its prerogatives under the Young plan, Dr. Mueller told the Reichstag that the right to dispose of the 400,000,000 marks (about $95,200,000) in annuities accruing from the overlapping of the Dawes and Young plans rested with the creditor powers and that Germany, by the latter of the Young plan, could not claim them, especially since the experts at Paris were also unable to obtain a more favorable adjustment of this issue for Germany.

Regarding the settlement with Belgium for losses sustained through the German paper marks circulated there during the war, which was another point in Dr. Schacht's criticism, the Chancellor said that negotiations with Belgium on this matter had been progressing since 1919 and that she had made her acceptance of the Young plan conditional on the settlement of this claim.

Dr. Schacht became an unexpected factor in the Parliamentary situation tonight when he informed the government that its program for immediate financial reform was not sufficient to enhance Germany's borrowing facilities abroad in the present situation.

Seeking Loan Here.

It is now learned that the government recently initiated negotiations with an American banking group, said to be Dillon, Read & Co., for an emergency loan to meet the current month's requirements, but that since the publication of Dr. Schacht's memorandum of criticism the American lenders demanded renewed guarantees of the government in connection with reform measures to be put in force immediately.

While this has forced the government's hand now, it seems, Dr. Schacht has brought to the attention of Chancellor Mueller certain weaknesses in his program, contending that the proposed increase in the tobacco tax will yield only 156,000,000 marks, according to estimates by the tobacco industry, instead of the 220,000,000 computed by Finance Minister Hilferding.

A further flaw in the government's program is detected by Dr. Schacht in connection with the proposed ½ per cent increase in premium costs for unemployment insurance, the proceeds from which, he maintains, will not flow directly into the Reich's cash box, but become the property of the Reich Institute for Unemployment Insurance. Dr. Schacht late tonight was in conference with Chancellor Mueller and Dr. Hilferding.

Schacht Won't Approve Loan.

BERLIN, Dec. 13 (AP).—Dr. Schacht, chief reparations delegate of Germany to the Paris conference, tonight announced that he would not approve a credit which the government is seeking from Dillon, Read & Co. of New York unless the present revenues of the nation were increased by another 500,000,000 marks.

Dillon, Read Unaware of Request.

At the offices of Dillon, Read & Co., who as head of a syndicate including Harris, Forbes & Co. and the Chase Securities Corporation extended a one-year credit of $50,000,000 to the German Government last June in association with a group of German banks, it was declared yesterday that there have been no active negotiations for another loan. It was said, however, that while it is quite possible that conversations have taken place between the Reichsbank officials and representatives of the American bankers in Germany, no word has reached New York.

In the event that such a credit is asked for by the Reichsbank, it was said that the affair would be strictly a banking transaction and no public financing would be involved. The German banks associated with the New York houses in the last credit consisted of Mendelssohn & Co., the Deutsche Bank and the Reichskredit Gesellschaft.

REICH AGAIN SCORED BY INDUSTRIALISTS

2,500 Members of National Federation Renew Their Criticism at Meeting.

WARNING ON YOUNG PLAN

Rhenish Leader Says Acceptance Does Not Obviate Need of Drastic Internal Economic Reform.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—"Salvation for Germany's financial and economic ailments will not follow in the wake of the Young plan and its acceptance does not relieve us of the imperative necessity of adopting drastic measures for internal reforms," was the warning sounded by Dr. Paul Silverberg, well-known Rhenish industrial leader, at the meeting of members of the Federation of German Industries today, attended by 2,500.

At the same hour that Chancellor Mueller was pleading the government's case before the Reichstag the spokesman for Germany's big business interests renewed their criticism of the government for its failure to tackle the problem of financial reform, renewing the demands laid down in the federation's recent memorial for greater freedom for private industry and capital and the abolition of such taxes and levies as now hamper their development.

"The enforcement of the Young plan will mark the beginning of our self-deception with respect to the true condition of German finances if we attempt to use it as a stage on which to exhibit budgetary stunts and tricks," Dr. Silverberg declared, "and it will be impossible to meet its annuities with the prevailing system of increasing our debts by reckless borrowing unless we resolve, regardless of partisan considerations, to coordinate our economic and financial policies."

Dr. Silverberg believed that Germany would discover that foreign capital markets are pretty well saturated with German loans if an attempt should be made to float a new loan on the basis of the unprotected annuities in the Young plan. He was convinced that German finances could be gotten in order with prompt and resolute action and the omission of former errors.

The capitalistic system found numerous champions among the speakers at today's meeting. Dr. Paul Moldenhauer, newly appointed Minister of Economic Affairs, declaring that the capitalistic system is the only one which can rescue Germany from its economic misery.

Dr. Georg Mueller, a textile manufacturer, discussing social problems and social politics, said: "If we are to have capitalism let us have it in its entirety without compromises, but if we are to have socialism let it be of the simon-pure type also, even if it leads us on to Bolshevism."

CHARGES HUNGARY BARS REAL PEACE

Foreign Minister of Rumania Says She Must Yield on Optants-Reparations Issue.

BUDAPEST STANDING FIRM

Alleges Breach of Agreement by Maniu—Little Entente to Act in Concert at The Hague.

By JOHN MacCORMAC.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Dec. 12.—Prospects for smooth sailing at the second Hague conference on reparations three weeks from now were darkened today with the issuance of a statement by the Rumanian Foreign Minister, George Mironescu, in answer to Premier Bethlen's firmly worded refusal in the Budapest Parliament two days ago to sacrifice the claims of Hungary's optants against the Little Entente. M. Mironescu declared that there could be no general peace in Middle Europe unless the Little Entente's standpoint was accepted.

Count Bethlen had qualified his defense of the Hungarian stand Tuesday with the hint that if the rights of Hungary's optants under Section 250 of the Treaty of Trianon were preserved Hungary would be willing to pay further sums after the expiration of her present reparations arrangement in 1943. Judging from M. Mironescu's statement, issued after a conference with his Czechoslovakian colleague, Dr. Edouard Benes, this compromise will not be accepted. Hungary, M. Mironescu declared must give way and only then would a peace be possible wherein there would be no difference between the conqueror and the conquered. How Czechoslovakia can be considered a conqueror M. Mironescu did not explain.

Hungary Stands Firm.

It was reiterated today in Budapest that Hungary has no intention of relinquishing the rights of her optants and that since these are guaranteed by the Treaty of Trianon there is no way of forcing her to do so. Meanwhile the Hague conference, which had expected to deal with the Eastern reparations problem as a fait accompli, will meet on Jan. 3 with every prospect of being confronted by a position of stalemate.

Newspaper statements that the Little Entente would act in concert at the next Hague conference were confirmed by Dr. Benes in a speech last night in which he referred to the achievement of common political action as the fulfillment of the plan drawn up at the last Little Entente conference in May.

M. Mironescu's statement was made to newspaper men today.

"Rumania will not surrender her reparations demands against Hungary," he said. "That country cannot be relieved from these obligations since it would use the money for armaments. It would be a great mistake of international policy to support Hungary's aspirations and the Little Entente will seek in the coming negotiations to win the great powers to her standpoint."

Seeks to Justify Demand.

To the question of the Hungarian optants, which is the crux of the whole dispute, M. Mironescu's only reference was, "Hungary is seeking to misrepresent Rumania's democratic legislation, such as its land reform laws and war measures. Rumania will not suffer these attacks in any shape or form."

By this the Foreign Minister apparently sought to justify Rumania's demand that the optants question be set off against reparations. It is now urged in Budapest that this demand is a direct breach of an agreement made by Premier Maniu of Rumania before the optants' question was ever negotiated and since reasserted.

Baron Szterenyi, chairman of the Hungarian delegation to the Vienna and San Remo optants' conferences, today declared in Parliament:

"Before the optants negotiations commenced Premier Maniu's representative and I agreed upon the principles which should be followed. It was established that all political and juridical questions should be excluded from the discussions and the matter dealt with purely from a practical viewpoint.

"Later the question was raised as to what would be the standpoint of the Rumanian Government in the optants' dispute with regard to possible reparations payments after 1943. Mr. Maniu then sent us word that he would never agree to a joint discussion of the two questions, which were different problems. This was fixed at both Abbazia and San Remo, and thus when on the last day of the negotiations at Vienna last June an attempt was made to join the two problems, Hungary refused to connect them.

"We have been silent on these points, but now we must speak openly since our discretion cannot be used to calumniate Hungary. Both the Great and Little Ententes seem to regard the Treaty of Trianon as another scrap of paper. Should they refuse to observe the treaty we cannot respect it either."

ITALIAN ART UNHURT BY STORMY SEA TRIP

Immensely Valuable Cargo of Paintings Found Undamaged at London Unloading.

DOCK IS HEAVILY GUARDED

Police Line Streets on Route to Burlington House—Lady Chamberlain Heads Reception.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—After battling fierce gales for six days, the Italian treasure ship Leonardo da Vinci, with its cargo of some of the world's greatest works of art, valued at $70,000,000 at least, safely berthed at the West India docks this morning.

It was a study in contrasts. The two-funnelled liner, which brought Italy's most highly prized masterpieces here for the forthcoming Royal Academy's exhibition of Italian art, made fast alongside a pier in London's drab Limehouse section. All about her were grimy tramp steamers unloading their cargoes from the seven seas, and sailormen, longshoremen and slum-dwellers were surprised alike by the appearance of so unusual a ship and her even more unusual cargo and the spontaneously enthusiastic welcome accorded to her.

Lady Chamberlain, accompanied by her husband, Sir Austen, was the chief figure in the reception committee, for it was she who was perhaps the prime mover in the exhibition and is chiefly responsible for assembling here what will assuredly be one of the greatest art exhibitions the world has ever seen.

She told your correspondent aboard the Leonardo da Vinci today how she had first discussed the projected exhibition with Premier Mussolini two years ago. She made several visits to Italy to arrange details with Signor Mussolini, who pledged himself to cooperate to the utmost. She also saw the late Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany and King Alfonso of Spain in order to obtain loans of Italian art from their countries. One of the first things she did after the ship docked was to telegraph Premier Mussolini that Italy's treasured possessions had arrived safely here and thanking Italy on behalf of her own people.

No one was more jubilant at the ship being safely docked than Commendatore Modigliani, Commissioner General of Italy for the exhibition, who supervised the selection of the pictures and was in charge of this modern argosy. He had practically no sleep for four nights, remaining ready for any possible emergency while the storm raged on the ocean. Nor did Captain Sturiess leave the ship's bridge during the four days and nights of the tempest.

At Premier Mussolini's order, Signor Alberto Malcesi, Italian Inspector General of Police, sailed on the Leonardo da Vinci to guard the art treasures. Scotland Yard took charge at this end, swarms of police being detailed to the pier, while plain-clothes detectives boarded the vessel as soon as it docked.

Pictures Were Undamaged.

Despite the severe battering, no damage had been done, and not a drop of water reached the pictures. The greatest admiration was expressed here for the manner in which the art works had been prepared for transit. There were 280 paintings, and some sculpture, tapestries and other objets d'art, all of which were packed with the utmost care in 301 cases.

These cases were placed in fourteen large sealed vans, ready for loading directly onto trucks. The first four vans were hoisted from the ship's hold today, and soon sped away to Burlington House, Piccadilly, where the exhibition is to be held, following a special route through carefully guarded streets, according to a Scotland Yard order, and in addition, policemen rode on each truck. The pictures are exempt from customs inspection at the dock, and it was not until the vans were opened at Burlington House that customs officials made their examinations.

Today for the first time, a complete list of the art works sent from Italy was made public, indicating that nearly all the great Italian galleries and smaller municipal galleries, as well as private collectors, sent their most valuable canvases.

Mentioning only a few of the greatest importance in this collection, there are Titian's "Portrait of Pope Paul III." Raphael's "Madonna" and "Eternal Father" from the Naples Royal Gallery; Raphael's "La Velata," Titian's "Portrait of an Englishman," Andrea del Sarto's "Holy Family" and "St. Anne," from the Pitti Gallery in Florence; Botticelli's "Calumny," Ghirlandaio's "Madonna and Saints," from the Uffizi Gallery in Florence; Tintoretto's "Deposition," from the Brera in Milan; Filippo Lippi's "Annunciation" and Botticelli's "Birth of Venus."

One Policeman Guards Art.

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP).—A lone policeman, armed only with a regulation nightstick, tonight mounted guard over $15,000,000 worth of Italian painting and sculpture sheltered in automobile trucks in the courtyard of Burlington House.

The rest of the cargo of the steamer Leonardo da Vinci will probably be brought to Burlington House tomorrow morning.

EDGE WILL ARRIVE IN FRANCE TODAY

New Ambassador to Land at Havre After Rough Voyage on the Ile de France.

AMERICANS TO GREET HIM

Embassy Staff and Others Will Be at Paris Station—Newspapers Extend Cordial Welcome.

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—The Ile de France, on which the newly appointed American Ambassador, Walter E. Edge, is approaching the shores of France, has had a very stormy crossing and will be three to six hours late in reaching Havre. Last night it was reported that the French Line's flagship might be twelve to twenty-four hours behind schedule, but a steady speed in the face of very heavy seas has materially cut the delay.

Norman Armour, Chargé d'Affaires at the Embassy, left this evening for the French port and will be the first to welcome Senator Edge when the Ile de France docks sometime before daybreak tomorrow.

The prefect of the Havre department and the Mayor of the city will also go aboard to convey the good wishes of the country to which Mr. Edge will be the thirty-eighth accredited American envoy. The Ambassador, accompanied by his wife and three children and Robert Pell of Washington, who is to act as his private secretary, will journey to Paris in a special car attached to the regular boat train.

Arriving at the Gare St. Lazare at about 11 A. M., Senator Edge will be met by the Chief of Protocol of the French Foreign Office, Pierre Becq de Fouquières, who will present the compliments of Foreign Minister Briand, and by the entire staff of the American Embassy, Consul General Leo J. Keena and his staff and representations from all American organizations in France.

Not a Formal Reception.

Since the new Ambassador will not actually be accredited until he presents his credentials to the President of the Republic, tomorrow's arrival will not be in the nature of a formal reception. A special detail of Municipal Guards, assisted by the Parisian police, will line the passage from the private car to the Ambassador's motor car, and he will drive at once to the new American Embassy on the Avenue d'Iena, where the beautiful Ambassadorial residence has been specially prepared for the Edge family.

In view of the approaching Christmas holidays Ambassador Edge will lose no time in paying a formal visit to M. Briand, to whom he must hand his letter of credence and a copy of the remarks to be delivered by him before President Doumergue. The visit may take place tomorrow afternoon, and the date procession to the Elysée Palace early next week.

The leading organs of the French press are printing lengthy articles welcoming Senator Edge and his wife to France, phrased in cordial terms. Stephane Lausanne in the Matin after reviewing the striking incidents in the careers of some thirty-eight American Ambassadors to France, concludes by saying that there is little chance of Senator Edge witnessing such soul-stirring scenes as did Ambassador Washburn in 1871 or Ambassador Herrick in 1914.

Hopes for Happy Sojourn.

"Every one hopes that the new Ambassador's sojourn among us will be calm and happy," he says, "and that at some distant date when he says good-bye he will write, as did his predecessors, Jefferson and Franklin, 'If you ask me where I like best to live I would reply, in my own country where I was born. But my second choice would be France, for there I have found nothing but friendliness.'"

L'Intransigeant devotes an article to "Edge, the Self-Made Man," sketching his rise from printer's devil to his present high post. Emphasizing his qualities as a businessman and "man of efficiency," the newspaper continues:

"Mr. Edge on the eve of his departure for France said he did not have an intimate knowledge of traditional diplomacy. We have already had examples of this in Ambassador Morrow in Mexico and General Dawes in London, examples which show the importance accorded by the United States to economic questions. We can therefore congratulate ourselves upon having as the new envoy from the great Republic a man who represents faithfully the present spirit of his country with its sense of action and reality.

"It is with frankness and clear vision regarding the problems of today, largely economic, that the bonds of friendship between France and the United States can be strengthened and consolidated."

SOVIET ENVOY IN LONDON.

Sokolnikof Is Welcomed by Foreign Office Representative.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Preserving discreet silence on Anglo-Russian affairs, the new Soviet Ambassador, Gregorie Y. Sokolnikof arrived here tonight.

He was officially welcomed by a representative of the Foreign Office and then went to his hotel, declining to make any statement. He intimated, however, that a statement would be issued in a day or two, after he had paid his first visit to the Foreign Office.

Italy Accuses Red of Murders.

FAENZA, Italy, Dec. 12 (AP).—Riccardo Donati, described by police as a Communist, was arrested this afternoon on the charge of killing Bruno Silvagnia, a Fascist, and Guerino Bocce, a 18-year-old apprentice. Donati had been admonished several times in the past for his opinions.

MUTILATIONS ISSUE AT HEBRON REVIVED

Council for Jews Submits Five Photographs to Palestine Inquiry Commission.

DENIES ACCEPTING REPORT

Merriman Says Doctors Merely Were Unchallenged—Suit Against Britain Scheduled at Hague.

JERUSALEM, Dec. 12 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency)—A quarrel between the Arab, Jewish and government counsel over the report of the temporary Zionist Executive to London about the massacres at Hebron created excitement at today's session of the riot inquiry. Mr. Silley of the Arab counsel, in his cross-examination of Sigfriend Hoofien, the second Jewish witness, started the dispute when he read the Zionist Executive's cable to London on Aug. 28 reporting that Hebron Arabs had separated the Jewish children for the Arab children to attack and the Jewish adults for the Arab adults to attack and that victims were mutilated in various ways.

Mr. Hoofien declared that he had no part in the sending of the message, of which he had disapproved, but he believed that Messrs. Braude and Horowitz, the other members of the temporary Zionist Executive, had sufficient evidence from the Hadassah officials to warrant their statements. Mr. Silley charged that "statements of circumstantial tales were broadcast all over the world and they embittered the Arabs and made the Jewish national home more uncomfortable for the Jews and its creation more difficult, if not impossible. Your colleagues sent off statements, not knowing whether they were true or false."

Mr. Hoofien replied that "this cable was not broadcast, but was a simple report to London, sent as the duty of the Executive, after getting the Hadassah reports."

A commissioner then asked Mr. Hoofien:

"You are not yet satisfied as to the untruthfulness of the mutilation reports?"

Mr. Hoofien said that he was not.

In his re-examination Sir Boyd Merriman, counsel for the Jews, said, "Let me read another statement describing the events," and he read High Commissioner Chancellor's statement of "unspeakable savagery in the riots" and asked, "Is there any vast difference between this statement and the telegram?"

Photographs Create Stir.

A marked effect was created when Sir Boyd offered five photographs of the Hebron atrocities to the commission members, who could hardly bear to look at them.

Sir Boyd then said:

"We had not wanted to inquire further into the Hebron murders, but if our opponents use our avoidance of this horrible subject to suggest bad faith against the Zionist Executive, then it is my duty to examine the entire question."

Chairman Shaw remarked that he thought the government's inquiry had settled the question of the Hebron mutilations and declared himself surprised to hear a member of the Zionist Executive still asserting his belief in them.

With counsel for all three sides arguing the matter of the mutilations, as revived by Mr. Horowitz's cable, Commissioner Betterton suggested that the discussion might be more pertinent when Mr. Horowitz began his testimony, but Sir Boyd insisted that he still believed that atrocities had been committed, as reported by Hadassah, but he admitted he had no proof of the segregation of children to facilitate the torture.

During his examination by Mr. Silley, Mr. Hoofien asserted that all of the Arabs, except perhaps the Bedouins, had benefited from the Jewish settlement. The only Arab discontent, he asserted, was due to the Arab landlords, who had previously benefited from the low wages paid to the Arab populace, but, because of the Jewish populace coming in, the Arab standard of living had gone up.

Commissioner Hopkins inquired whether the Jews employing Arabs paid them lower wages than they did Jewish workers. Mr. Hoofien admitted that that was true, but said that the pay of the Arab workers was nevertheless rising as a result of the agitation of the Jewish workers. Nevertheless, said Mr. Hoofien, the Jewish employers pay the Arabs more than the Arab employers had paid them before.

Questioned concerning economic matters, Mr. Hoofien asserted that the country was capable of absorbing 20,000 Jews annually, which would be the saturation point, but he denied that the Arabs were being pushed off the land, as there had been no increase in emigration. He concluded his testimony with a statement that in 1928 the exports of the country had been 27 per cent. Jewish.

Suit Against Britain Pending.

THE HAGUE, Dec. 12 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—The International High Court here will soon hear the action being brought by Max Delfiner against the British Government as the Palestine mandatory. Mr. Delfiner is demanding compensation from Great Britain for losses in Palestine in and before the August riots. The Austrian Government, of which Mr. Delfiner is a subject, has agreed to back him, as The Hague court deals only in differences between States and not individuals of different States. The court itself has promised to hear the case.

Mr. Delfiner charges that Sir Herbert Samuel, as High Commissioner, assured him that the necessary economic conditions would be created to enable the normal development of Jewish industries in Palestine and promised special customs protection for the new silk industry in which Mr. Delfiner was interested. According to Mr. Delfiner, after he had invested $300,000 in the silk business the Palestine Government changed its mind and imposed a high duty on imported raw materials, making it impossible for him to stay in business.

Later, under the High Commissionership of Lord Plumer, when his raw materials were again exempted from duty Mr. Delfiner started work again, but, he asserts, the antagonistic attitude of Palestine officials made a continuation of work once more impossible.

Last Summer he again started work in order to utilize to some extent the capital he had invested, but the riots, for which he holds the Palestine Administration responsible, compelled him to discontinue his operations again.

Mr. Delfiner, who now lives in Vienna, is prepared to make every financial sacrifice, contending that he is not the only victim of bad treatment.

NOT YET AIR MINDED, O'RYAN SAYS OF US

Head of Colonial Airways Holds Plane Transport Will Not Be Popular Here for 2 Years.

CONSIDERS IT UNNATURAL

Tells American Club of Paris Our Emphasis on Time-Saving Means Makes Us Prosperous.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—Air transportation in the United States will not come into its own before another two years despite the fact that airplane commuters between Boston and New York have already made their appearance, Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, war-time commander of the Twenty-seventh Division and president of the Colonial Airways System, told members of the American Club of Paris today at a luncheon given in his honor.

Lee J. Keena, new consul general in France, was introduced to the club just before General O'Ryan addressed it, but Mr. Keena did not speak. General O'Ryan declared it was not the country's natural resources but the emphasis that Americans placed on all time-saving inventions and devices which was responsible for American prosperity. Therefore, he said, Americans may be expected to develop greater efficiency in commercial aviation than the rest of the world.

"But it is true," he said, "that the industry in America today is two years in advance of the willingness of the people to fly. This is logical because until just recently all our thinking and activities were confined to the surface of the earth. You must consider the consequent effect upon every human being of inherited habits and psychology.

"When we hear people say they are air-minded it is absurd. How can the human race become air-minded in only a brief twenty-five years of acquaintance with aviation? However, we can get there because the potential safety of flying is being rapidly and convincingly demonstrated.

"Disregarding the tragic loss of life, the United States has an annual material loss due to transportation collisions which amounts to billions of dollars. Collisions may be avoided in the air because up there you have any number of zones or strata in which to operate."

General O'Ryan reached Paris after visiting London, Brussels and cities in Germany. He explained that the primary reason for his presence in Europe was to arrange for the Twenty-seventh Division's reunion in London next May, but that he had another "self-imposed" mission abroad. He has been studying commercial aviation and airports in Europe with a view to air improvements in the United States.

WAKATSUKI SEES ABOLITION OF ARMS

Japanese London Delegation Leader Holds Eventuality Is Not Likely at Present.

WILL NOT DROP SUBMARINE

He Asserts in Seattle His Country Cannot Agree to English and American Proposal Now.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 12 (AP).—The time will come when humanity will see the abolition of all implements of warfare, Reijiro Wakatsuki, former Premier of Japan and leader of the Japanese Delegation to the London Naval Reduction Conference, said here today.

"Of course, it is not at present in the realm of reality, but these conferences, such as we held at Geneva and Washington and now in London, are doing much to teach people the benefits of disarmament," the Statesman declared.

"Total abolition of armaments would be a great step forward in human progress and should be, I believe, the ultimate aim of all nations.

"Japan is satisfied with much less naval strength than other powers. The five-five-three ratio of capital ships adopted at the Washington Conference will stand as far as Japan is concerned. However, my country desires to possess 70 per cent tonnage of auxiliary ships, including submarines, as compared with the powers having the greatest strength. We can not agree to abolishment of the submarine as suggested by England and the United States."

The former Premier scoffed at the idea of war between the United States and Japan or that his country was desirous of obtaining the Philippine Islands.

At a special ceremony of the Japanese Society in Seattle in one of the parks today, several blossoming cherry trees brought by the delegation were planted. Admiral T. Takarabe, member of the group, presented the trees to Seattle in the name of his country.

The delegates leave here tonight for Washington by way of Chicago. Six special cars were to be attached to a transcontinental train. They were expected to arrive in Chicago Sunday and in Washington Monday. There they will confer with President Hoover before leaving for London, Dec. 20.

NAVAL PARLEY TO SIT AMID WAR PAINTINGS

Old Armor and Weapons Also Will Be Part of Background in St. James's Palace.

PRESS FACILITIES SHOWN

Plenary Sessions of London Conference Will Be Held in Queen Anne's Drawing Room.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.
Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Foreign correspondents in London from North and South America, Asia and the Continent of Europe were guests this morning at St. James's Palace, home of the Prince of Wales, for the purpose of seeing what parts of that ancient edifice are to be turned over to the five-power naval conference for its sessions next month.

The visit was particularly to see what apartments and facilities are to be placed at the disposal of the press representatives of the whole world to facilitate their work of transmitting to the ends of the earth the day-to-day news of the progress being made toward peace and disarmament.

The royal apartment set apart for the press, with cable, telegraph, telephone and wireless facilities for immediate communication to all countries of the world, was the chamber occupied by King Charles I before he was beheaded, a little more than 300 years ago. This chamber and many of the palace rooms in which delegates to the conference will hold their plenary and committee sessions are decorated with weapons and armor used in medieval wars, and many of the famous paintings on the walls depict notable English military victories on battlefields of the past.

Artists, tapestry weavers and architects have not yet caught up with makers and signers of pacts to renounce war, so the negotiators of the five powers will have to bring their psychological environment of peace along with them.

St. James's Palace was built in 1530 by Henry VIII, who had taken over the site which had been occupied for several centuries by a hospital for leprous women. He called it the Palace of St. James after the lepers' hospital, and open land to the south of the palace is still available to the public as St. James Park, one of the loveliest of open spaces in modern London.

The plenary sessions of the naval conference are to be held in the largest apartment of the palace—called Queen Anne's drawing room, notable for its portraits of the first three Georges. The throne room, tapestry room and many lesser apartments are to be set aside for committee sessions and as special quarters for delegations from the five nations. They are all enriched by famous royal portraits by Sir Joshua Reynolds, Thomas Lawrence, Holbein and other famous artists whose works make of this palace a remarkable museum.

Such plenary sessions of the conference as the delegates may agree to hold in public will be held not in St. James's Palace but in the royal gallery of the House of Lords.

DENY HOSTILITY TO ITALY.

French Officials Say Demonstration by Sailors Was Not Fleet's View.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—No direct word was received today by the Ministry of Marine or the Quai d'Orsay regarding the reported anti-Italian demonstration by French sailors on ships in Adriatic waters.

It was said in official circles, however, that the demonstration must have been confined to one or two sailors, because it certainly was not representative of the French fleet, which, before going to Yugoslavia for the purpose of avoiding any appearance of friction, called in Italy, where it was extremely well received.

REASSURES FRANCE ON NAVAL PARLEY

British Foreign Minister Says Accord Between Premier and Hoover Is Not Fait Accompli.

URGES FULL COOPERATION

In Address to Anglo-French Groups, Henderson Denies Friendship Between Two Countries Has Declined.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Arthur Henderson, Foreign Secretary, urged tonight that France and the other powers come to the London Naval Conference in January, not with hard and fast formulae, but prepared to arrive at an agreement by open and friendly negotiations.

Addressing an Anglo-French audience at a dinner of the United Associations of Great Britain and France, Mr. Henderson reassured France as to Britain's purposes in the five-power meeting. Nothing sinister to French interests was implied in the MacDonald-Dawes conversations, he declared, and no rigid proposals were formulated by Premier MacDonald and President Hoover at Washington. All that Great Britain and the United States did, he asserted, was to try to hasten a naval agreement among the leading powers, without which no world disarmament could be achieved.

"Irresponsible persons," Mr. Henderson declared, "have said the task before us will be more difficult because of what they call the 'deterioration' of Anglo-French relations since the present British Government came into power. But that is loose and dangerous talk. I rate Britain's friendship with France higher than to think that questions discussed with frankness can affect it.

"The understanding between the Prime Minister and Mr. Hoover does not mean Great Britain will go to the conference with cut and dried proposals which take account of British interests only. On the contrary, we shall endeavor by negotiation and cooperation to bring about that reduction and limitation of armaments which is the common interest of all. It is my earnest hope that the other delegations will do the same and that they will eschew rigid principles and formulae and will come to the conference animated by a desire to arrive by a process of mutual conciliation at the greatest common measure of naval disarmament that can be achieved.

"Neither in this nor in any part of the world's disarmament problem are we interested in theories. We are interested only in results. Other delegations will find the British representatives will not be difficult. On the contrary, they will work with the rest in all sincerity to reach the best agreement."

MUSY TO BE HEAD OF SWISS

Elected President of Country for 1930 by Federal Assembly.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Dec. 12.—Jean Marie Musy, lawyer, of Fribourg today was elected President of Switzerland for 1930 by the Federal Assembly at Berne. M. Musy, with 143 votes, had a majority of eighty-nine. He recently visited America.

The election of President causes little interest in Switzerland. Within a few weeks his name is almost forgotten and his political power condensed to one vote during one year, as the Federal Council is responsible for the country's foreign and internal policies.

DENIES DELEGATES WILL GO TO PARIS

Claudel Comments on Report Our Naval Group Would Stop on Way to London.

THEIR TIME TO BE LIMITED

Stimson Again Confers With Members on Program—Office Personnel to Accompany Advisers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Paul Claudel, the French Ambassador, denied a published report today that the American delegation to the London Naval Conference would go to Paris next month for conferences with Premier Tardieu and Foreign Minister Briand before proceeding to the London Conference. The report said the American group would be glad to hold advance conversations with the French, much as Premier MacDonald of Great Britain had conferred in advance with American officials.

Officials of the United States Government declined to comment upon the report because they did not wish to be placed in the position of declining an invitation from France in advance of its possible receipt, but left no doubt that they had given no thought to such a procedure. Not only would time be insufficient for such conversations, but a visit to Paris would, in their opinion, out of international courtesy, require a similar visit to Rome. By arrival in London before the conference, opportunity will be afforded for informal preliminary conversations with all delegations.

Members of the American delegation, under the leadership of Secretary Stimson, again conferred at the State Department today on their program for the conference. Beyond the word that it was a continuance of the educational process begun yesterday, no announcement was made concerning the discussions.

The Navy Department announced that James L. Bates, naval architect in the Bureau of Construction and Repair; A. J. Doyle, private secretary to the Secretary of the Navy; William D. Bergman, Chief of the Appointment Division of the department, and six women stenographers would accompany the section of naval advisers to the American delegation to London. Mr. Bergman will be office manager of the naval advisory section at London.

PREMIER SAYS BRITAIN ARMS AGAINST NOBODY

Replying to Question in Commons He Says Defense Is Established by Considering All Factors.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Prime Minister MacDonald assured the House of Commons today that England was not only not arming against the United States but was not arming against any other nation in the world. He was speaking in reply to a question of a Liberal member who asked if the size of the American navy was no longer taken into account in determining the size of the British Navy, then what countries was England preparing itself against in regard to its army, navy and air forces.

"Great Britain is not arming against anybody," Premier MacDonald replied. "Our defense establishment is decided upon after consideration of every factor that determines its existence."

In reply to another question the Premier said very emphatically that the House of Commons would not have an opportunity to discuss the January naval conference before its assembling.

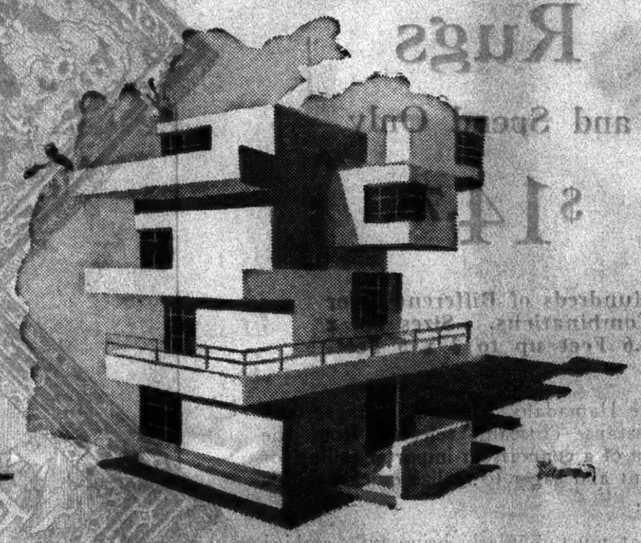
THE ROMANCE OF HOLEPROOF HOSIERY



PICTURE OF A MODEL HOME IN THE NEW YORK OF TOMORROW

M. Le Corbusier, the eminent French designer of modern homes, whose work has caused such a sensation in Vienna, Berlin and Paris, has laid out a plan for New York and called it "The City of Tomorrow." We know nothing about the interior of this particular house... for example, whether the bath tubs are sharp and angular, or whether one is apt to cut one's fingers on the doorknobs ... but we must confess that the exterior, with its naked geometrical masses and interesting shadows, gives us a distinct thrill. The pattern of Holeproof Hose Number 1837 is a clever rendering of the designer's impressions of this house.

Come in and see the many interesting patterns in Holeproof Hosiery which we are now displaying in our stores. Every design has a history behind it.

BIG FARM OUTLAY PLANNED BY SOVIET

WINTER SOWING GAINS

Huge Tractor Plant, to Be Ten Times as Big as Present Large Factories, Is to Be Built in Ukrainia.

By WALTER DURANTY.
Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Dec. 12.—"To finance a sowing campaign for the next harvest the State proposes to assign 841,000,000 roubles [about $420,500,000]." This quotation from the press today gives the other side of the "class war" in the villages which has been aroused by the Kremlin's program of rural socialization, or agrarian revolution, as it is rightly called.

The State is using all forms of pressure to bring the peasant masses to modern methods of farming, but the State is straining every nerve to help them, too. Of course, 800 odd millions is not assigned for a sowing campaign only, but for the whole agricultural appropriation—credits for tools, machines for developing new land for buildings, seed, fertilizer and a great deal more.

Schools, hospitals, nurseries, theatres—perhaps these will help to convince that stubborn individualist, the Russian peasant, that though the State is his boss and landlord it also is his friend and ally. The results of the Winter sowing justify the Kremlin policy. Although the actual increase compared with last year is only 4% per cent, the collective farms have sown three and a half times more than a year ago.

The State farms have increased their sown area seven and a half times. Spring sowings will bring the total up to 11 per cent above last year. A 10 per cent additional area on the Russian crop means upward of 10,000,000 tons of grain without considering an increase from better methods.

In this land of unlimited possibilities yesterday's fantastic estimates are reasonable today and fact tomorrow. Not content with building two tractor factories, the annual production of which will be two and a half times greater than the total American production of last year, the Soviet has now decided to begin a third factory next year near Kharkof in Ukrainia, with an annual production five times greater than both of the others put together.

It sounds incredible, but John Calder, American construction engineer, who is building one of these factories at Stalingrad, does not think so.

"We are working faster than at home," he said. "We put up steel quicker than anything I have known in America. The Russians work hard if rightly handled, and we expect to finish the plant four months ahead of schedule. I see no reason why they cannot build this Ukrainian plant if they have got the money."

SENATORS APPROVE TARDIEU POLICIES

French Premier Upheld by 203 to 43 at First Appearance Before Upper House.

HE DEFENDS HIS OPTIMISM

Analyzes Post-War Faults of France and Promises Measures to Satisfy Present Needs.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—Premier Tardieu, appearing today before the Senate for the first time as head of the new government, obtained a decisive vote of approval for his policies from the upper chamber. The Senate voted 203 to 43 to authorize the credits necessitated by the constitution of the ministry, in which the offices of numerous Under-Secretaries—suppressed for economy in the Poincaré and succeeding Cabinets—have been restored.

His task, therefore, was an ungracious one, but by turning his remarks into an appeal in behalf of all the well-defined ambitions of the new Ministry, the Premier won enthusiastic applause from the Senators.

M. Tardieu's ideas of government, as he expressed them today, had a familiar ring to American ears, and indeed would form an interesting comparison with the conceptions of President Hoover. Some of his phrases, in fact, might just as well have been spoken by the American Executive.

"We desire," he said, "to create a more happy and more prosperous France. For taking this as an objective, I have been reproached with being too materialistic and lacking in ideals. But I would apply this purpose spiritually, as well as physically.

"It has been said, too, that I am too optimistic. But is it over-optimism to look at the map of Europe and take note that France, with the exception of Russia, occupies the most favored place in respect both to extent and situation? Is it over-optimistic to see that our Colonial empire ranks second in the world? Our ambition—and for a government ambition becomes duty—is to put France in a position to enjoy the benefits of her advantages."

Analyzes French Troubles.

M. Tardieu then very boldly and very frankly analyzed the elements which were said to have kept France in difficulties since the war.

"France, since the victory, has lived in the idea that such a victory should make everything possible for a nation which had merited it. But it must be admitted that perhaps the country did not realize the full significance of this possibility, and has not in all ways furnished the activity in this direction that was expected.

"We, perhaps failed in certain necessities and a certain discipline. We allowed ourselves to become divided with regrets over the distant past, and over futuristic philosophies, often lacking entirely in creative force. We did not sufficiently cast off old routines and lessons of war, reflected for us rather on the screen of the past, than projected upon the screen of the future."

Premier Tardieu then tersely defined his program. "What does France want? First and above all, external peace." And at this point M. Tardieu gave strong commendation to the policies of former Premier Briand and received applause.

Internal Peace Desired.

"France also wants internal peace. A government which costs the taxpayers dearly must assure them of order in the streets which cannot be disturbed by organizations or groups that take their orders from abroad.

"France also wants public services that work, and which serve the public, and this she shall have if we can give it to her. She wants the development of her resources with an economic and social policy which will give each member of the community the security of knowing he is not alone. And finally, she wants educational opportunities that will afford the possibility for the most modest to ascend to the highest culture."

M. Tardieu added that with all that the country wanted a reduction in taxation, and concluded with a summary of what his government in the six weeks of its existence already procured agricultural reform, the introduction of financial measures permitting the better examination of future budgets, and a bill for the improvement of national equipment.

LIBERALS IN CAUCUS DISCUSS MINES BILL

They Decide to Move Amendment, but Do Not Intend to Force Defeat of MacDonald Government.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The Liberal members of the House of Commons held a caucus today to discuss probable party action on the forthcoming coal measure to be offered by the government for legislation.

The desire of Mr. Lloyd George's followers is to oppose the government in this matter, but they do not want to take that attitude if there is any danger of its meaning the actual defeat of the government. Therefore, the Liberals will vote against the government only if assured that the Tories are not going to take the same line. They wish to give no pretext to Premier MacDonald to resign at the present time and to appeal to the people by means of another general election.

"No member of this House wishes to see the present government displaced," declared G. le M. Mander, one of the Liberal spokesmen.

LONDON, Dec. 12 (Canadian Press).—Political circles were aroused tonight by the announcement that an official Liberal amendment would be moved when the second reading of the government's coal mines bill comes up on Dec. 17.

The Liberals will seek rejection of the measure on the ground that it does nothing to promote reorganization of the coal industry or to secure reduction of producing costs through higher efficiency, but that, on the contrary, it gives statutory vested interests to inefficient mines, curtails the production of efficient pits, subsidizes coal supplied to competing manufacturers abroad, increases the price to British industries and heavily burdens the consumers generally.

BRITISH ARM GUARDS AT FLOOD BARRIERS

Bridgewater Patrols Get Guns as Farmers Press Threat to Free Dammed Waters.

THAMES RISES SIX INCHES

It Reaches Level of Disastrous 1928 Floods—1,000 Homeless in Somerset—Rain Predicted.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Revolvers and shotguns have been served out to the men guarding the barriers holding back millions of tons of water which threaten to swamp the 16,000 inhabitants of Bridgewater, Somersets.

The arming of the guards followed definite threats by neighboring farmers to cut the dam so that their land and houses may be drained.

One thousand people are homeless in this part of Somersetshire and thirty houses have collapsed near Athelney. These facts are adding to the villagers' indignation against the barricades protecting Bridgewater which are piling up the floodwaters.

Residents along the upper reaches of the Rivers Thames and Severn, which are now at the levels of the great floods of last year, have exhausted their jokes about Venice and Amsterdam, and housewives, tired of rowing two or three miles to obtain supplies, are demanding to know why some of the engineering skill applied to irrigation in Egypt should not be employed nearer home in a contrary sense.

Flood Invades Reading.

Water is lapping into the main streets of Reading and several Oxfordshire and Somersetshire towns by way of the drainage systems. Travelers approaching Oxford from the south see her domes and spires across a wide lagoon.

Between Glastonbury and Bridgewater, in Somerset, stretches a broad expanse of water disturbed by miniature waves lashed by a strong southwester. Sedgemoor, with its memories of civil war, is submerged. Muchelney is an island and most of the inhabitants have fled. Several villages are being supplied by motorboats.

Since yesterday, the Thames, on the non-tidal stretch between Maidenhead and Teddington, has risen six inches. Water nearly five feet deep is lapping the Eton College buildings. The river is now pouring over Teddington Weir at the same rate as in January, 1928, when there were disastrous floods in the London area. But now the defences of Westminster have been considerably strengthened and the water is being closely watched.

A gale, with seventy-mile-an-hour gusts, was blowing over Northern England today and more rain is expected.

Portuguese Shipping Held.

LISBON, Dec. 12 (AP).—Caught in a sudden gale blowing from the Atlantic, the fishing boat, Penseitov capsized off Capa Rica at the mouth of the Tagus River today.

The vessel was only 500 yards off shore but the storm was so severe that only ten of her crew of twenty-two were able to swim to safety. Rescue boats were unable to reach the sinking vessel.

The tragedy was witnessed by many relatives of the victims who crowded the water front. There were distressful scenes as the bodies were washed ashore and carried to the village church. All the shops in the place were closed. Subscriptions have been opened for the relief of the families of the victims.

At Albufeira, on the Atlantic seaboard, a fishing vessel came into collision with a freighter in the fog and sank. Two men were drowned and five rescued.

Shipping on the Tagus has been tied up completely for many hours.

Air Field Head Killed.

VILLACOUBLAY, France, Dec. 12 (AP).—Antoine Rouverie, general manager of the Villacoublay air field, was killed today in the collapse of one of the largest hangars here during a terrific gale. There were no other casualties.

The Villacoublay field is second only to that of Le Bourget.

Six Perish Off French Coast.

CAP BRETON, France, Dec. 12 (AP).—Six men were lost last night in the foundering of the fishing vessel Glisses during a squall.

VICKERS KILLED AT HUNT.

British Arms Maker Felled by Accidental Shot.

BAKEWELL, Derbyshire, England, Dec. 12 (AP).—B. V. Vickers, a member of the well-known firm of Vickers-Armstrong, manufacturers of firearms, was accidentally killed today while out shooting with Sir Charles Clifford and a party of other sportsmen.

Mr. Vickers's loader was charging his gun when a dog snapped at him, causing the gun to go off. Mr. Vickers was in front of the loader and was instantly killed.

WORK TO START TODAY ON NEW SUBMARINE

Order to Begin Construction of V-7 Saves Jobs for 725 at Brooklyn Navy Yard.

An order to start construction immediately of the V-7, a new submarine, was received yesterday at the Brooklyn Navy Yard from the Navy Department in Washington. Captain Paul B. Dungan, manager of the Brooklyn yard, issued orders yesterday that work on the engines be started this morning in the foundry.

The order to construct the engines meant that about 725 men, many of whom were scheduled to be discharged in the expected lay-off at the yard next month, were assured work for eighteen months it was said. The men certain of holding their jobs included 600 machinists, 100 molders and about twenty-seven pattern-makers.

The construction work on the V-7 will not affect many other employes in the yard. The sheet-metal workers, the plumbers, the ship-fitters, and the welders, according to Thomas Mahoney, chairman of the executive committee of the workers, will have to go unless additional work is ordered from Washington.

The V-7 will take about eighteen months to build, it was said. The engines, two sets of 1,750 horsepower main engines and two sets of 450 horsepower generating engines, will be built at the Brooklyn yard and the hull at the Portsmouth yard.

NEW WORLD POLICY CITED BY BRITAIN

There Will Be No Neutrals, Says Labor Cabinet, Explaining Hague Court Stand.

OPTIONAL CLAUSE LAUDED

Government Sees Its Signature as Necessary Support for the Kellogg Pact.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—In a defense issued tonight of its signature of the optional clause of the World Court statutes, the British Government makes a full exposition of a new position as regards belligerent action at sea created by acceptance of the Covenant of Nations, the Kellogg pact and the optional clause.

The memorandum emphasizes that the possibility of British naval action at sea being brought before the World Court in consequence of its signature of the optional clause can only arise if the country which desired to challenge the validity of such action had itself signed the optional clause. Only another member of the League, says the memorandum, could bring Britain's naval action before the Permanent Court of International Justice.

"Public opinion in this country naturally is sensitive as regards unduly limiting the exercise of British sea power in wartime," the memorandum explains. "But the whole situation has been built up on the assumption that there is nothing illegitimate in the use of war as an instrument of national policy and as a necessary corollary, that position and the rights of neutrals are entirely independent of the circumstances of any war which may progress.

Assumption Called Invalid.

"This assumption is no longer valid as regards the States which are members of the League of Nations and parties to the Kellogg pact. As between such States there has been, in consequence, a fundamental change in the whole question of belligerent and neutral rights.

"If his Majesty's Government complies with its obligations under those instruments there are only two conditions in which they could be involved in war—firstly, where a State has attacked it in violation of one or both of those instruments, and secondly, if it is engaged in belligerent action in fulfillment of Article XVI of the Covenant against a Covenant-breaking State."

The conditions which might produce a justiciable dispute between Great Britain as a belligerent and another member of the League as a neutral, says the memorandum, would not exist; either the other members of the League would fulfill their obligations under Artile XVI, in which case Great Britain would not need to effect any interference with their commerce, or if they did not and such interference on Great Britain's part therefore became necessary, they would have no ground on which to protest against Great Britain's action.

"In other words," says the memorandum, "as between members of the League there can be no neutral rights, because there can be no neutrals."

Ordinary Arguments Dismissed.

Once this fundamental change in the situation is realized, the memorandum proceeds, it would seem that the ordinary arguments against submitting British naval action to an arbitral decision have ceased to be relevant to any discussion of the optional clause.

"Any such arguments can only be based on the assumption, expressed or implied, that the covenant of the League and the Kellogg pact will break down in practice. If this assumption is made it means that the whole machinary for the preservation of peace would have broken down; the peace pact and the covenant would have become scraps of paper."

The suggestion has been made, the memorandum continues, that exclusion from Great Britain's acceptance of optional the clause of "questions which by international law fall exclusively within the jurisdiction of the United Kingdom" would enable Great Britain to contend that question of prize were excluded from her acceptance of the optional clause.

"The government wishes to make plain that this is not its view. It is possible, however, that disputes arising from belligerent action at sea might be considered more suitable for determination by the Council of the League than by the international court.

Sees No Prize-Law Change.

"The government further considers that its acceptance of the optional clause makes no difference to the principle that prize cases must be decided first in Great Britain's prize courts before any question of reference to the World Court could arise.

"The broad question remains: 'Is it safe to trust British interests to the decisions of the permanent court?' continues the memorandum.

"The question may be transposed: Is it wise to leave British interests without any safeguard except war, which we have undertaken not to wage?"

The Government believes that to the last question only one answer can be returned: It holds that the whole course of international development for many years past has been in the direction of the substitution of arbitration for war and it "rejoices to think that there now exists an international court whose competence and impartiality are unchallenged, to which may safely be referred all international disputes of, at any rate, a justicable character."

Change Seen as Essential.

Such a change in the government's view is insisted upon as an essential part of the effort seriously to implement the undertaking of the Kellogg pact and to utilize the early years of peace in creating effective safeguards against war before its realities have been forgotten.

The government says it considers the signature the optional clause a logical consequence of the acceptance of the Kellogg Pact, which does not provide any machinery for the pacific settlement of disputes and considers that the first step in building up barriers against war is to obtain general acceptance of a system under which justifiable disputes would be settled by operation of law.

In its examination of the various objections to the signature of the optional clause, particular reference is made in the memorandum to the difference said to exist between the Anglo-Saxon and Continental schools of thought. This supposed diversity is declared to exist mainly, if not entirely, in relation to belligerent rights at sea.

It is admitted that international law has not yet been codified to such an extent as to leave no room for uncertainty, but to wait for such codification would be, it is stated, to postpone acceptance of the obligation for an indeterminate period.

Another objection raised is that there may be disputes, which although falling within one of the categories defined in the optional clause, are really more political than legal in nature and could therefore be better dealt with by a political than by a legal tribunal. The government fully recognized this, so says the memorandum, and it has accordingly reserved the right to bring any such dispute before the League Council.

ROOT AND MORROW ARE PRESIDENT'S GUESTS

Stimson Also Takes Luncheon With Ex-Secretary—Talk of World Court Likely.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The presence of Elihu Root at luncheon with President Hoover today led to surmises that the former Secretary of State had been called to confer on the program for this country's adherence to the World Court. It was found that Mr. Root had come here to attend a meeting of the Carnegie endowment for international peace and had not been invited here by the administration in connection with the World Court.

Secretary Stimson was the only other guest at luncheon. Nothing was disclosed to indicate whether the World Court figured in the luncheon conversation.

This evening the President had among his dinner guests Dwight F. Morrow, Ambassador to Mexico; Adolph S. Ochs, of New York, and Governor and Mrs. Henry S. Caulfield of Missouri. Mr. Ochs is spending the night at the White House.

UNREST REPORTED IN SANTO DOMINGO

Three Cabinet Members Said to Have Conferred With Russell in Haiti on Situation.

MARINES EASE PATROLLING

But Martial Law and Arrests Under Curfew Continue in the Latter Republic.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Dec. 12 (AP).—Haiti was less strictly patrolled by American marines and Haitian national guardsmen today, but martial law continued in force. Colonel Evans, commanding the National Guard, said he believed martial law would be in force for some time.

The fact that the Presidential elections are coming in April has already set the political pot boiling and there is a crowded field of candidates.

Arrests are still being made and the curfew law is rigidly enforced. Seventeen Haitians arrested by the Garde last night were released this morning with orders to leave the city. Thirty-three Haitians out of a total of 145 arrested during the early days of the strike are still being held prisoner. Some of these are alleged to be the ringleaders in the agitation and are charged with carrying weapons, fomenting trouble and resisting arrest. They will be tried by the provost.

Patrols of marines and guardsmen in the interior of the island remained carefully within the bounds of their regular stations, not wanting to arouse ill feeling by formal inspections. The communiqués to Marine Headquarters reported that the hinterland was quiet.

Belated reports concerning the subdistrict at Saint Michel said that three outposts of the National Guard were threatened by large crowds last week but that the demonstrators were held in check without resort to force. Conditions have since become quiet there.

Business men in Haiti were unanimous in declaring there had been no adverse reaction to the disorders. There was no delay to shipping except at Aux Cayes.

That a delicate situation exists in the Dominican Republic, which occupies the eastern half of this island, was rumored here. It was said that three Cabinet members and several other officials had come here yesterday for a short, secret conference with Commissioner Russell. The reports had it that they conferred respecting the possibility of the Haitian trouble spreading across the border, where conditions have been none too stable since President Horacio Vasquez left to enter the Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

One version of the local troubles which was current in certain circles today was that the disturbances had been intended as the start of a national revolt which was to centre at Cape Haitien, always a breeding spot for revolutions.

It was said that the propagandists of this plan had spread a report that the American Marines would not fire on native rebels.

The strike at the Damien Agricultural School showed further signs of disintegration. Twenty-nine of the forty instructors have reported for work and numerous students also have returned.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The State Department has given no consideration to supervision by the United States of the Presidential election to be held in Haiti next April, although certain editors and influential persons in that country are agitating for it.

No provision for supervision of elections, it was said today, is contained in the treaty under which American supervision was undertaken in Haiti.

FOR VAST RESEARCH TO ADD TO LIFE SPAN

Irenee du Pont Asks Insurance Men to Establish the World's Greatest Study Bureau.

CITES WORK IN OWN PLANT

Says Similar Program There Has Made Dynamite Safer to Handle Than Bricks.

A RECORD YEAR PREDICTED

Hardin at Convention Here Hails Business Growth—Austin Finds Stock Crash Salutary.

The Association of Life Insurance Presidents was urged yesterday at its thirty-third annual convention at the Hotel Astor to develop the world's greatest research organization and to devote it to the prolonging of human life. The proposal was made by Irenee du Pont, vice chairman of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. and a director of the Equitable Life Assurance Society. Mr. du Pont suggested that the life insurance companies should provide a sum equal to one-eighth of 1 per cent per annum of their trust funds to finance such a bureau.

"It is my sincere belief," said Mr. du Pont, "that a research by life insurance companies, had it started twenty years ago when the du Pont Company had already started research in laboratories, would have resulted in the lengthening of the life of the average citizen of the United States by at least two years.

"I would suggest that, as most benefits from research of this kind will flow to all life insurance companies pro rata, it would be well for you to band yourselves together and undertake joint research. This would be much more effective than independent effort.

"One-eighth of 1 per cent per annum of your trust funds would finance the greatest organization the world has ever applied to a specific problem."

Mr. du Pont declared that his company had reduced industrial fatalities in its explosives business to one-sixth of what they were fifteen years ago, and that now it is safer to work with dynamite than with brick. Likewise since 1926 his company, he added, had reduced the mortality from tuberculosis among employes from 33 to 15 per cent of those afflicted.

Sees $17,600,000,000 Assets.

Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, predicted that the combined assets of all United States life insurance companies would amount to $17,600,000,000 by the end of the year. He said that the vast accumulations were derived for the most part from the premium payments of 87,000,000 individuals. This year's increase in assets will be $1,689,000,000, he declared, adding that in seven years they had more than doubled. The assets of life insurance companies, according to Mr. Ecker, are invested principally as follows:

Real estate mortgage loans, 41.8 per cent; government, State and municipal bonds, 8.2 per cent; railroad securities, 17.9 per cent; public utility securities, 9.0 per cent.; other bonds and stocks, 2.6 per cent; policy loans and premium notes, 13.1 per cent, and real estate, 2.1 per cent.

After asserting that the life insurance companies had stood "firm and unworried" through the recent stock market crash, Mr. Ecker turned to the problem of insured annuities for the superannuated worker and suggested that "paternalistic provision by government should be a last resort," He further said:

"The worker is the true owner of his energies and the employer is a consumer of a part of them. It would not be equitable, nor would it be in the best interests of either the individual or the employer to set up any plan that would not reflect this joint interest, that would not be cooperative in principle. In this respect the plan of group-insured annuities, already in operation in many industrial organizations and increasing its field year by year, points the way. It places the burden of cost where it belongs. It provides the necessary cooperative principle. And it goes further than do other proposals to the same end in that annuities thus insured are actuarially calculated, are properly reserved and can be made irrevocable in so far as the annuity actually earned and purchased is concerned."

Huge Business Gains Predicted.

John R. Hardin, president of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company of Newark, who presided, asserted that for the seventh consecutive year all life insurance records would be broken in 1929 with the purchase of $19,800,000,000 new protection. New life insurance purchased this year will show an increase of $1,100,000,000 over last year, he said, estimating that total insurance in force at the end of the year will be $103,000,000,000.

Emphasizing that this year's record of $19,800,000,000 of new insurance purchased had been achieved in the face of the distractions of the stock market, Mr. Hardin continued: "No concern need be felt for the ultimate destiny of a nation which year after year continues to give evidence of the financial foresight indicated by this record of insurance purchased. This will be the seventh successive year in which increases have been made. The amount of new business purchased this year will be over ten times the volume in 1900. Even more striking is the fact that this year's new purchases will be double the aggregate amount of insurance in force on all lives at the beginning of this century—just twenty-nine years ago. May we not regard this as a true index to this century's thrift progress?

Mr. Hardin said that in 1929 approximately $2,000,000,000 would have been paid to policy holders and their beneficiaries, $850,000,000 to beneficiaries of dead policy holders and $1,150,000,000 to living policy holders in the form of matured endowments, annuities, disability benefits, dividends and surrender values.

George I. Cochran, president of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company of California, in an address on "World Progress in Life Insurance," said:

"At the close of 1927, the latest date for which comprehensive data are available, the survey indicates that the total world's life insurance was $124,000,000,000. Companies of the United States at that time had in force over $87,000,000,000 of insurance, or 70 per cent of the world's total. While in this country we have been making huge additions each year to the outstanding life insurance, our surveys for the past four years show that in the rest of the world the percentage of increase of insurance in force has been keeping pace with us. In fact, for the two-year period, 1926 and 1927, this percentage in other countries, as shown by our surveys, is slightly higher than in the United States. We are happy to see this progress."

Brazil led Latin-American countries with a growth of 179 per cent in insurance in force from 1926 to 1927. Japan showed an increase of 42 per cent, Mr. Cochran said.

Hails Gains in Canada.

Sir Thomas White, K. C. M. G., P. C., former member of Parliament, vice president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Toronto, and a director of the Canadian Life Assurance Company, told the life insurance executives that the total life insurance in force in Canada last year was $6,000,000,000, or nearly five times what it was fifteen years ago.

Colonel Howard P. Dunham, Insurance Commissioner of Connecticut, urged the insurance companies to reduce the turnover of agents, which he estimated at 100,000 or 50 per cent every six months, as a means of lowering the cost of insurance to the public. He also called upon the insurance business to drop unwise competition and to unite to expand the field for all.

"There is a widespread feeling among the American public that the cost of some kinds of insurance is higher than it ought to be," said Colonel Dunham. "It would be a misfortune if this feeling should lead to a governmental attack upon rates. Possibly the only policy which will prevent such an attack will be a wise and courageous effort on the part of the leaders of the insurance business by their own business vision to reduce, wherever possible, the cost of insurance to the American public."

Calls Stock Crash Salutary.

After asserting that the life insurance companies and the banks of the country had much in common as custodians of a large part of the nation's savings, Chellis A. Austin, President of the Equitable Trust Company of New York, referred to the recent stock crash, saying:

"It is unnecessary for me to point the moral of what happened in October, or to attempt to apportion the responsibility. The danger is over and I think a lesson has been learned which will not have to be repeated for many years. What I do want to do is to call your attention to a few outstanding facts about the recent stock market collapse. The first fact is the extraordinary strength which the banks revealed, and the courage and skill with which they met the situation. Despite the severity of the crisis, no larger banking institution has found itself in difficulties; no important New York Stock Exchange firm has failed and, so far as my knowledge goes, the principal New York banks themselves, far from being loaded down with bad debts or undigested securities, are actually in a stronger and more liquid position now than they were before the crash.

"It is a matter of fact that the banks of this community, anticipating the difficulties which might arise, intrenched themselves by taking a most conservative position on collateral loans and employing other measures to meet the situation which did arise with the result that this experience has proven the solid underlying strength of the whole financial structure.

NAVY IS STRESSING ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE

Ordnance Chief Reports Almost Continuous Target Practice With All Types of Guns.

SUPPLY SHIP OVERWORKED

Admiral Leahy Recommends an Additional Ammunition Vessel to Meet Increased Needs.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Although in a state of peace, the navy is keeping fit through almost continuous target practice, and is annually using vast quantities of powder, Rear Admiral William D. Leahy, Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, declared today in his annual report.

The powder expended by the navy during the fiscal year 1929 was 4,118,703 pounds. The total output of powder by the naval powder factory at Indian Head, Md., was 8,681,313 pounds, and its daily output was approximately 10,000 pounds.

The demands of the naval forces for powder was such that the ammunition ship Nitro was barely able to supply the West Coast depots and the battle fleet in the Pacific with target practice ammunition.

Admiral Leahy recommended an additional ammunition ship.

Anti-Aircraft Guns Active.

Not only practice with heavy guns, but also aircraft gunnery exercises, consumed quantities of powder. The increasing employment of machine guns for defense against aerial attack resulted in an increased demand from the fleet for small arms ammunition.

The report said there was a congestion of ammunition storage, but this will be relieved upon the completion of high-explosive storage facilities at Hawthorne, Nev., and the magazines for smokeless powder at Lake Denmark, N. J.

Two ordnance developments of importance to the new 10,000 cruisers now being constructed or projected were reported. They are an improvement in projectiles for eight-inch guns, which makes them much superior to the former shells of that size, and the completion of plans for installing lightweight anti-aircraft machine-gun mounts in the tops of the light cruisers, as well as of battleships.

Among the improvements in aviation ordnance listed was the development of a new type of combined torpedo and bomb rack for use on the wings of an airplane.

One problem of major importance before the bureau is the design of a large calibre machine gun for use against aircraft.

TEACHER IN POLICE LINE-UP.

Ruth McCreary Is Accused of Forging $143.50 Check.

Ruth McCreary, 36 years old, of 163 Lexington Avenue, a teacher in the Hamilton Grange Private School, 634 West 147th Street, who, the police said, had been twice arrested before, was in the line-up at Police Headquarters yesterday morning on a charge of forgery. The complainant against her was the school principal, V. M. Cady.

According to Inspector John J. Sullivan, Miss McCreary admitted that she forged and cashed checks totaling $1,200 on the complainant's account in the Chatham Phenix National Bank and Trust Company, 3,515 Broadway, in the past two months. The specific charge is that she forged a check for $143.50. She was arrested on Thursday by Detective Fickborn of the Safe and Loft Squad.

When arraigned later in Washington Heights Court Magistrate McQuade gave Miss McCreary until Wednesday to obtain counsel. Bail was fixed at $2,000.

Police records show that the prisoner was arrested April 21, 1928, charged with being a fugitive from justice from Swarthmore, Pa. That charge was dismissed as was one on Nov. 22 that year, accusing her of being a fugitive from Chester, Mass.

DEBUCHI OUTLINES PLANS TO AID CHINA

Japanese Envoy Tells Here of 92,000,000-Yen Fund to Be Used to Promote Culture.

2 INSTITUTES UNDER WAY

Centres at Shanghai and Peking to Conduct Varied Activities—Coolidge at Luncheon.

Japan's program for intellectual cooperation with China, including the expenditure for cultural purposes of the 3,000,000 yen annual interest on a permanent fund of 92,000,000 yen, was outlined yesterday by Katsuji Debuchi, Japanese Ambassador to the United States, at a luncheon of the American Asiatic Association at India House. Former President Coolidge listened intently as he sat smoking a long cigar in a white holder and applauded vigorously at the close of the Ambassador's address.

The fund consists of 72,000,000 yen from the Boxer indemnity fund and 20,000,000 yen of the sum which China paid to Japan under the Shantung Treaty signed at the Washington conference, Mr. Debuchi said.

He told of two research institutes, one at Peking and one at Shanghai, on which most of the money is to be expended. The cost of the buildings to house these two institutes, he said, is estimated at about 6,000,000 yen. The sites for both have been purchased and construction is under way. Philosophy, religion, literature and the arts will be studied at the Peking Institute, he explained, and the work of the Shanghai Institute will be the promotion of the natural sciences.

"As a sort of auxiliary work," he continued, "we are supporting hospitals at Peking, Tsinan, Tsingtao and Hankow. These hospitals, though established by the Japanese, are operated largely for the benefit of the Chinese. We are also extending financial assistance to some 300 Chinese students studying in various colleges in Japan. There are always several thousand Chinese students in Japan. Out of these we have chosen a limited number whom we consider worthy of full support.

"In addition we encourage exchange of professors between Japanese and Chinese institutions of learning, and we also encourage and finance travel by Chinese scholars to Japan and by Japanese to China."

He sketched the development of Japan's civilization. In the early stage of the New Japan, he said, the United States was "the fountainhead of our civilization" as was China in antiquity. Western civilization has been assimilated and adapted to Japanese needs as was that of China in ancient times, and Japan is now evolving a new one, he said.

He paid tribute to the educational work of American missionaries and said that Dr. David Murray, once secretary of the New York State Board of Regents, "is regarded as the father of the public school system of Japan."

This new civilization of Japan, he emphasized, is important in the modernization of other countries of the Orient as "the Chinese as a rule can more easily understand and better appreciate the Western civilization already adapted to Japanese soil than they can the same civilization directly imported from its original home."

Martin Egan, president of the American Asiatic Association, presided, and those present included Otto H. Kahn, Colonel Lloyd C. Griscom, former Minister to Japan; Setsuso Sawada, Japanese Consul General at New York, and Henry W. Taft.

Hunter History Society to Initiate.

Sixteen students of Hunter College will be initiated into Alpha Chi Alpha, honorary history society, at the college tomorrow. KESTER ARRESTED IN NEON LIGHTS CASE

Vice President of Hollingsworth Company Surrenders on False Advertisement Charge.

HELD IN BAIL OF $3,500

Heated Argument Expected Today When Motions Are Heard in Suit of Rival Concerns.

Robert L. Kester Jr., vice president of the Claude Neon Lights Corporation, who was jointly accused with William T. Hollingsworth, its president, in the Tombs court last Wednesday of having published a false and misleading advertisement affecting the proposed issuance of $10,000,000 in stock for the Federal Neon System, Inc., surrendered yesterday on a warrant issued for him the day before by Magistrate Simpson.

Mr. Hollingsworth was arrested on Wednesday in his temporary suite in the Hotel Savoy Plaza and was released in $10,000 bail by Magistrate Simpson after he had pleaded not guilty. Charles V. Bob, head of C. V. Bob & Co., financiers and promoters, at 120 Broadway, appeared as complainant. Mr. Kester, who is 43 years old, gave the office of his company, 41 East Forty-second Street, as his address.

He had telephoned to Warrant Officer Devine at the court in the forenoon that he was on his way to surrender. The day before Devine made unsuccessful efforts to find him. Devine placed him under arrest outside the Criminal Court Building and took him to Police Headquarters to be fingerprinted under the Baumes law before his arraignment before Magistrate Gotlieb on Mr. Bob's charge. Stanley Richter, who also had acted as counsel for Mr. Hollingsworth in the proceeding before Magistrate Simpson on the previous day, entered a plea of not guilty for Mr. Kester, but when he asked for low bail former Controller Charles L. Craig called the attention of the magistrate to the bail set for Mr. Hollingsworth last Wednesday and protested against lower bail.

"This charge will be met at the proper time," interjected Mr. Richter. "All the facts alleged in the advertisement which appeared on Nov. 26 will be proved true. If anything, we will prove that they have been understated."

"We are dealing with a man of some substance, I presume," said Magistrate Gotlieb in shutting off further argument by the lawyers. "The object of bail is not to punish the prisoner, but to procure his attendance in court. We will accomplish nothing by high bail, inasmuch as Mr. Kester will be bonded by a surety company and will have to pay a larger premium. I believe that $3,500 bail is amply sufficient."

Bail promptly was furnished and Mr. Kester was ordered to appear before Magistrate Simpson in the same court next Wednesday for a joint hearing with Mr. Hollingsworth on Mr. Bob's charge.

Mr. Bob alleged in his complaint that the advertisement, which appeared in newspapers in this and other cities, caused him to withdraw the $10,000,000 stock issue of the Federal Neon System in the New York Stock Exchange and the Chicago Stock Exchange on the same day set for its flotation. He also alleged that the advertisement had caused a depreciation of $5,000,000 in the value of Federal Neon stock. The names of Mr. Hollingsworth and Mr. Kester were used at the bottom of the advertisement.

Julius Henry Cohen, chief counsel for Mr. Hollingsworth and other officers of the Claude Neon Lights Corporation, will argue to have accepted evidence in a supplementary complaint against the other side and for an injunction against the exchange of rights in the patents by the opponents, who, he alleges, are dominated by the Insull interests of Chicago.

Mr. Craig on behalf of the Federal Neon System is expected to oppose these motions and argue in behalf of another motion regarding licenses which had been granted in connection with the sale of the Neon lights, while a representative of the firm of Sherman & Sterling, representing the Federal Electric Company, said to be a subsidiary of the Insull interests, also will argue in favor of a fourth motion and oppose some of those of the other lawyers.

CRAIN IS SWORN IN.

Takes Oath as District Attorney in His Old Chambers.

Former Supreme Court Justice Thomas T. C. Crain, who was elected District Attorney on Nov. 5, was sworn in yesterday by General Sessions Judge Max S. Levine. He will take office on Jan. 1 in the jurist's private chambers in the Criminal Courts Building, where the new District Attorney had presided as a judge in General Sessions for many years. It was Mr. Crain, as a General Sessions judge, who years ago swore in Judge Levine as a city magistrate.

There were only three witnesses. Assistant District Attorneys James G. Wallace, Morris Panger and Rose Rothenberg, who had escorted Mr. Crain to the chambers. Other friends who had gathered before Mr. Crain's arrival remained in the outer room.

"I have no statement to make at this time," said Mr. Crain when asked whether he was prepared to announce his selections for members of his staff of prosecutors.

CALL HOUSE 'WETS' TO FORM NEW BLOC

La Guardia and 2 Others Plan a Militant Inter-Party Body to Fight Dry Measures.

LINTHICUM NOW IGNORED

But Whether That Indicates Rift Among the Anti-Prohibitionists Is Not Known.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 12.—Formation of plans for a militant inter-party anti-prohibition bloc in the House to fight out every possible question brought to that body on the issue of prohibition was begun today.

A call for a meeting of all the House "wets" of both parties was issued today by Representatives La Guardia of New York, Englebright of California and Schafer of Wisconsin, to be held Saturday when a definite organization is expected to be perfected and a program outlined.

This organization likely will be a revamping of the old so-called "beer bloc" of the House, headed in the last Congress by Representative Linthicum of Maryland. Mr. Linthicum was not consulted about the meeting to be held Saturday.

Whether there has been any rift in the ranks of the "wets" was not known today. It was neither denied nor confirmed by any of the wet members. It has been a singular fact, however, that Representative Schafer attended none of the meetings of the old "beer bloc."

It is the purpose of the group who are planning the new militant organization to inject the prohibition question into as much legislation as possible.

A fertile field for such is anticipated in this session of Congress, as the Treasury Department supply bill calling for an amount for prohibition enforcement is to come up, and there is a strong likelihood that President Hoover's plan for the transfer of the prohibition functions of the Treasury to the Department of Justice is likely to be offered in some sort of legislation.

Bills also are pending and others are to be introduced seeking compensation for those who claim to have innocently suffered injuries at the hands of prohibition agents.

The new organization will be open to all members of the House who oppose the present prohibition laws, it was said today. Special emphasis was placed on this point in that all three signers of the call for the meeting are Republicans. They are known more for their prohibition views, however, than for any party leanings.

Any suggestion of a possible breaking up of the old "beer bloc" was answered today with the general statement that the plan now is for a "more militant" representation on the floor of the House at all times of the organized strength of the anti-prohibitionists.

DROP ROGERS CASE MOTION.

Attorneys for Kern and Defense End Argument on Sealing Papers.

Supreme Court Justice Frankenthaler permitted yesterday the withdrawal by the attorneys of the papers submitted to him on the motion by Larkin, Rathbone & Perry, counsel for the present wife of Colonel Henry H. Rogers, to seal the papers in the $750,000 suit against her and others by Edward E. Kern on the ground that they "maliciously" caused him to be discharged last June 5 because he had investigated Mrs. Rogers's mode of living prior to her marriage. Justice Frankenthaler had declined to uphold the contention that the papers should be sealed because the allegations were "scandalous" and that some of them should be stricken out.

The court signed orders denying Mr. Kern's application to strike out the defendants' answer that he demanded and received a letter of recommendation from Colonel Rogers when he was discharged, and that this was a valid defense. The papers have been served on Mrs. Rogers and her cousin, Countess Marie Zichy. The other defendant is Count Andre Zichy.

Permission to withdraw the papers on the motion to seal the records in the case was given after Russell, Shevlin & Russell, counsel for Mr. Kern, had stipulated with the defendants' attorneys that the order denying the motion should be vacated and the motion withdrawn.

A budget of $200,000 a year was agreed upon for work in the United States.

Smith to Lay Plan for Mast Atop Skyscraper Before Secretary Adams Today.

LAKEHURST IS INTERESTED

Officials There Fear Trimming Ship Might Necessitate Dumping Tons of Water on Street.

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith left for Washington last night to discuss with navy engineers the proposed airship mooring mast on the top of the new Empire State Building on the site of the old Waldorf-Astoria on Fifth Avenue. Plans for this mast were announced on Wednesday by Mr. Smith.

The decision to provide facilities for airship mooring in the centre of the city was made, it was learned yesterday, after several discussions with engineers and officials of the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation of Akron, Ohio, among them Commander Jerome C. Hunsaker, vice president of the Goodyear Zeppelin Company and president of the recently formed airship transport company which is planning a trans-pacific service.

This mooring mast atop a skyscraper is perfectly feasible, Commander Hunsaker said. It will require some revision of the plans for the new building and certain engineering changes in the entire steel structure to the foundations to make provision for the stresses that would be set up by a thousand-foot airship swinging in the wind and held to the building by a single connection at the top of a 1,300-foot structure. Tentative sketches have been made but the work of figuring out the stresses and strains and deciding upon the materials necessary to stand them is still to be done.

Revised specifications for the proposed building were filed yesterday with the Bureau of Buildings in Manhattan.

The new specifications increase the height of the building from 670 to 1,005 feet and the number of floors from fifty-five to eighty-five and the cost from $10,000,000 to $35,000,000. In published estimates this figure has been placed as high as $80,000,000. The new specifications, however, did not mention the proposed mooring mast, but it was explained that as the engineers develop their plans further substitute plans will be filed.

At Lakehurst naval officers were much interested in the proposed mooring mast, although they foresaw many problems in connection with its construction. It was pointed out that a huge airship almost as long as the building is to be tall swinging in the winds and vertical air currents set up by the high buildings and intervening streets would require continual trimming to keep on anything like an even keel.

Naval Officers Receptive.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP).—Alfred E. Smith has an appointment with Secretary Adams for tomorow morning, and if the former Presidential candidate talks about a plan for landing giant airships atop a building eighty-five stories above the sidewalks of New York—as it is assumed he will—he will find receptive ears in the Navy Department.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Aeronautics Bureau, today expressed interest in plans for the mast and said: "If Governor Smith is correctly quoted, we will be glad to hear just what he has in mind."

SOCIETY FOR BLIND AIDS 3,480 IN YEAR

Bourne Workshop Sells Goods Worth $296,913—Music Department Expands.

Two hundred blind persons and those interested in welfare work for the blind attended yesterday afternoon the annual meeting of the New York Association for the Blind at the Lighthouse, 111 East Fifty-ninth Street.

Dr. John H. Finley, the president of the association, presided. His report for the fiscal year ended Nov. 1 showed that the association had been interested in 3,480 blind persons during the year. At the Bourne workshop for the blind, First Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, 137 blind men were employed. Thirty-nine guests were received at the boarding house for blind men. Teachers taught 594 blind pupils during the year, and 10,007 home and friendly visits were made by the instructors.

A notable advance was made in the music department, Dr. Finley revealed. One hundred and forty-five pupils were taught during the year, receiving 4,845 lessons. The music school, having outgrown its quarters, has moved into a larger home connecting with the Lighthouse and designed to accommodate 200 pupils. The official opening of this new addition will be celebrated shortly, it was said.

The report of the treasurer, Thomas S. McLane, showed that $141,904.55 was paid out to the blind during the year for products made by them. The gross sales of the Bourne workshop, where brooms and mops are made, amounted to $296,915.22.

The following directors were elected: Thomas S. McLane, Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard, Nathaniel Elsberg, Felix M. Warburg, Willard V. King and Dr. Frederick Van Beuren. Blind members of the music school gave a program of instrumental and vocal solo and ensemble work.

Bulgaria Honors J. F. Moore.

J. P. Doycheff, Bulgarian Consul General in New York, acting on behalf of King Boris, presented the Commander's Cross of the National Bulgarian Order for Civil Merit to Joseph F. Moore, Secretary General of the Catholic Near East Welfare Association, yesterday at the association's headquarters, 480 Lexington Avenue. The decoration was conferred in recognition of Mr. Moore's services in behalf of the 1926 earthquake victims.

ROOSEVELT CONFERS 14 FARM MEDALS

Agriculturists of State Cited at Dinner Here for Their Services to Rural Life.

OWN LIVES SUCCESSFUL

Each Recipient Had Made Money, Served His Community and Brought Up Families.

Governor Roosevelt presented medals to fourteen farmers, each a leader in his respective community, last night at a dinner at the Lincoln Hotel. The medals and dinner were given by The American Agriculturist, a farm paper, whose publisher, Henry Morgenthau Jr., is chairman of Governor Roosevelt's agricultural advisory committee. Mr. Morgenthau served as toastmaster.

Besides Governor Roosevelt the speakers included Berne A. Pyrke, Commissioner of the State Department of Agriculture and Markets; Frank Pierrepont Graves, State Commissioner of Education, and Dean A. R. Mann of the New York State College of Agriculture.

Governor Roosevelt headed the committee of awards.

The committee found that each of the farmers had achieved financial success, had contributed materially to the upbuilding of his community, had been successful in the rearing of his children and had maintained a high standard of living. Thirteen of the fourteen recipients were accompanied by their wives when they stepped up to receive the awards.

Governor Lauds Farm Committee.

Voicing satisfaction with the Agricultural Advisory Committee, which he appointed before assuming office, Governor Roosevelt in his presentation speech, went on to declare that "the farm problem is a city problem as well as a problem of those who make their livelihood on farms." Unsatisfactory agricultural conditions, he held, were felt by city dwellers in the effect upon prices and general business conditions.

"This year has been a year that we can mark down as a significant one in agriculture in the State of New York," he asserted. He attributed its achievements "not to the Governor, but to the marvelously far-reaching program of the Agricultural Advisory Commission."

Mr. Morgenthau paid tribute to Governor Roosevelt for his work on behalf of agriculture. "The counties," he said, "have been relieved of contributing over $23,000,000 in taxes to the State, and on the other hand will receive new State aid to the extent of $7,000,000. If our Governor had accomplished nothing else during his first year in office, it seems to me that he could feel well satisfied with the progress he has made in carrying out his program of tax relief to the rural people of this State."

Dean A. R. Mann of the New York State College of Agriculture urged adoption of the State agricultural policy based upon "increased efficiency in production and distribution and upon success in living." W. M. Duryee, New Jersey Secretary of Agriculture, said that it was "notable that the wives had an active and most important part in bringing success to these master farmers."

Charles Wilson, New York member of the Federal Farm Board, described its policy and aims. Other speakers included E. R. Eastman, editor of American Agriculturist, and State Senator L. C. Kirkland, chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture.

Each of the recipients expressed their thanks before the microphone of WNYC, which broadcast the affair, except Mr. Young, who was unable to attend.

Achievements of Winners.

Those honored at the dinner, the second of its kind, together with a brief list of their achievements, follow:

tion employing 150,000 persons and had an annual budget of nearly $600,000,000.

It is understood that in the whispered conference there was some discussion of the legal right of the board, after Jan. 1, to vote pay increases for itself after its new term of office had actually begun. Hence the decision to rush the resolution through before the end of the calendar year.

Mr. Harvey's announcement followed his reading aloud earlier in the session of a letter advocating a flat $5,000 increase for each of the eight members of the board by Howard A. Wood, chairman of the Jamaica Chamber of Commerce, "in view of the splendid record of the board."

DORMAN FILES SCHEDULE.

Lists Increases Asked for Virtually Every Member of Fire Department.

John J. Dorman, Commissioner of the Fire Department, appeared before the Board of Estiamte yesterday and submitted a schedule providing salary increases for virtually all the members of the uniformed force except those first-grade firemen who already have received a $500 increase by virtue of the referendum passed at the last election. The application paralleled that made a week earlier by Commissioner Whalen in behalf of the police.

The amount needed for all of the increases recommended, including the $500 rise voted the first-grade men in the Fall, is $3,434,819. Of this amount $2,220,000 is necessary to cover the mandatory increase of the first-grade men and the balance of $1,214,000 is the extra salary increase recommended by the commissioner yesterday. The increases asked for average about $500 each.

The communication of the Fire Commissioner was referred to Budget Director Charles L. Kohler for report. The Fire Commissioner also requested twenty-five additional inspectors of fire prevention at an annual salary of $2,160, increases in the salaries of 125 present inspectors of fire prevention, two additional medical officers, at $5,300 a year each, and the fixation of a $2,000 salary for firemen of the fourth, third, and probationary grades and a $2,500 salary for firemen of the second grade.

The summary of the requested increases follows:

Deputy Chief John Davin, in charge of Brooklyn and Queens, from $6,800 to $7,300; Deputy Chief Joseph B. Martin, from $7,800 to $8,300; Deputy Chief Patrick Walsh, $7,300 to $7,800; Fire Marshal Thomas P. Brophy, $6,800 to $7,300; thirty other deputy chiefs from $5,800 to $6,300; ninety-six battalion chiefs from $4,790 to $5,300.

Captain William Lannon, from $4,500 to $5,000; 339 captains from $4,000 to $4,500; 527 lieutenants from $3,400 to $3,900; 128 engineers from $2,920 to $3,400; 24 pilots from $3,000 to $3,500; 8 chief marine engineers from $2,920 to $3,400; 8 marine engineers from $2,920 to $3,400.

Deputy Chief Thomas F. Dougherty, from $6,800 to $7,300; chief medical officer, $5,800 to $6,300; eight medical officers, from $4,790 to $5,300; five chaplains, from $1,980 to $2,400.

Fourth, third and probationary grade firemen, from $1,760 to $2,000; second grade firemen, from $1,980 to $2,500.

In Commissioner Dorman's request for additional fire inspectors he said: "I believe it is necessary at this time to recommend an increase in the number of inspectors of the Fire Prevention Bureau. Industries are more hazardous and large buildings, with their complicated construction and the necessity for protected care, require a large personnel so that the inspection work may be done with the greatest degree of efficiency."

The Fire Commissioner appended to his communication a statement outlining the duties of the inspection forces of the Bureau of Fire Prevention.

The reason Fire Chief John Kenlon is not included in the request is that last year his salary was increased $2,500 to cover his extra duties as a member of the Board of Standards and Appeals. Chief Kenlon's salary is $12,500 a year, $2,500 more than that of Commissioner Dorman.

ROOSEVELT SETS UP POWER AS 1930 ISSUE

Public Is "Paying Through the Nose," He Says in Speech at City College.

ASKS STATE DEVELOPMENT

Governor Also Tells 5,000 Students Need for Educated Persons in Public Life Was Never Greater.

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt set up yesterday an issue of the campaign in which he will seek reelection next year. In a talk before the Politics Club of the College of the City of New York he discussed water power and asserted that the people of the State were "paying through the nose for gas and electricity."

With past State campaigns replete with talk of power development the Governor's remarks were viewed as of decided importance. The Governor has contended that proper regulation or development of State water power resources would insure fair rates for the consumers.

In his talk the Governor also emphasized the need for participation and interest in government by educated men and women. Never was the need for educated persons in public life greater than at present, he said.

A chief objection raised to the proposals offered by Governor Roosevelt and former Governor Smith to develop water-power resources under State auspices has been that such development would constitute a form of "socialism." Both the present Governor and the former Governor replying to these attacks have declared that such assaults are entirely unfounded and that proper State development through a well-selected commission would prevent any misuse of the power resources or inefficiency in their utilization.

"Some of us," the Governor said yesterday, "have been called socialistic for believing that the State could operate such utilities better than private management. But we already have such socialism in the United States in our mail system, our water supply and other similar governmental ventures."

The Governor's statement that the public was "paying through the nose" for gas and electricity was taken as an indication that he would contend in seeking re-election that State development and stricter regulation of water-power development would insure more equitable rates.

The Morgan interests have recently entered the power controversy—one of long standing—through the formation of the Niagara-Hudson Company, embracing a merger of upper New York companies. While the Governor has been inclined to seek an effective compromise with these interests, political observers believe that water power, as well as public utilities generally, will be looked upon as the chief point of contention in next year's campaign.

In stressing the need for educated persons to take part in government the Governor recited the experience of the Fascist Government in Italy. There, he said, giving over governmental power to a chosen few had resulted in the danger of a loss of constitutional liberty. What was necessary, he said, was a system of checks and balances.

"The biggest help I get," he said, "is from the educated man. He is the man who can think things through and put things to rout."

The recent decline in stocks, said the Governor, might have a beneficial effect in that it might tend to cause the general public to have a greater interest in public affairs. Prosperity, he said, inclined the voters toward carelessness.

The Governor reviewed his budget battle with the Legislature, which was decided in his favor by the State Court of Appeals, and when he asserted that the court had sustained the right of the executive department to resist any attempt by the legislative department to assume administrative functions, he was cheered by about 5,000 students who filled the Great Hall of the institution. President Frederick B. Robinson presided.

NAUMBERG ESTATE PUT AT $7,093,620

Deductions, Many for Charity Gifts, Cut the Net Property of Merchant to $5,910,826.

Stradivarius and Two Tourte Bows Valued at $36,500 and Rare Paintings Among Holdings.

Aaron Naumberg, merchant and philanthropist, who died suddenly in Italy on June 29, 1928, while touring with his wife, and whose will gave $1,200,000 to charities, left an estate appraised yesterday by Deputy Tax Commissioner Stephenson at $7,093,620 gross and $5,910,826 net. The deductions were $467,898 in debts, many of which were for charitable subscriptions; $286,186 for funeral and administration expenses and $418,700 in commissions to the three executors, one of whom was Supreme Court Justice Proskauer.

Mr. Naumberg gave $550,000 in outright bequests to charities and directed that $750,000 more be divided among them upon the death of his wife, Mrs. Nettie C. Naumberg, who received $250,000 in cash, $11,957 in personal effects and jewelry, a life interest in $1,000,000 and a life interest in the residue, $3,044,651. In addition Mr. Naumberg gave his wife jewelry and art worth $427,027 during the two years before his death, which were not taxed as part of his estate. They included "Madonna, Infant Saviour and St. John," by Luini, $75,000; "Portrait of a Man," by Rembrandt, $102,500; "Portrait of a Young Man," panel, possibly by Veneto, $25,000; ring with Oriental ruby, 8.70 carats, $20,300.

During the same period Mr. Naumberg made gifts aggregating $66,000 to other relatives. The estate submitted an affidavit asserting that Mr. Naumberg did not make the gifts in anticipation of death, because he had been in good health and "had no reason to anticipate, so far as is known, his early demise."

"His generosity was unusual, very broad in its scope and not limited by ties of blood or by race, color or creed," the executors explained.

Securities in Estate.

The estate included no real estate in the United States, but contained securities worth $6,709,829, personal effects valued at $12,105, cash amounting to $72,332, and mortgages and notes, $280,853. The most interesting asset, valued at $36,500, was a Stradivarius violin and two Tourte bows, lent to Miss Lea Lubaschulz in pursuit of her professional career under an agreement to sell them to her at that sum.

The largest security holdings were 5,762 shares of preferred and 5,612 of common stock of Jonas & Naumberg, one of the largest manufacturers and dealers in hatters' fur in the country, sold to a banking syndicate for $1,513,305, and resold later to the management of the company. Mr. Naumberg held 7,507 shares of the Janfur Corporation, organized shortly before his death to import furs, which were appraised at $1,123,875. The next largest holding was 1,380 shares of Burgwyn Realty Corporation, owner of the Apollo and Times Square Theatres, valued at $571,306. He also held 400 shares in the American Exchange Irving Trust Company, valued at $180,000, and 149 in the National City Bank, valued at $131,120.

Total of Stocks and Bonds.

The total stock holdings aggregated $5,287,804, while there were bonds valued at $1,422,024. The estate included 47 holdings of worthless stocks, including shares in mining, industrial, oil, rail, amusement and realty companies.

Among the assets of the Janfur Corporation were $425,000 in trade acceptances of the Gostorg, the Soviet State Bank, mostly payable in Berlin. Edmond C. Alger, appraiser for the estate, in estimating that their value was only $212,500, said:

"No prudent investor would consider buying them, and they can be sold only on a speculative basis commensurate with the risk involved. The United States and most of the world powers have not recognized the Soviet Government diplomatically, and its financial responsibility has not been demonstrated."

LAWYER HELD AS THIEF UNABLE TO GIVE BAIL

H. E. White, Alleged to Have Been $500,000 Short in Clients' Accounts, Denies Woman's Charge.

Howard E. White, 55 years old, the lawyer who was arrested in his office at 31 Nassau Street last Wednesday on an indictment charging the theft of about $25,000 from Mrs. Katharine E. Mairs of Irvington, N. Y., a client, was held in $25,000 bail yesterday to await trial after he had entered a formal plea of not guilty before Judge Koenig in General Sessions. Mr. White, who had spent the night in the Tombs, was unable to furnish the bail.

Marion M. Mandel, his lawyer, pleaded for low bail, but Deacon Murphy, Mrs. Mairs's attorney, insisted that it should be fixed at not less than $25,000 as "the amount involved really is more than $150,000."

When Mr. White was arrested it was said that complaints had been received in the District Attorney's office indicating that he was more than $500,000 short in his accounts with clients, in several instances funds having disappeared from estates of which he had been appointed executor.

Mr. Mandel, commenting on the arraignment afterward said:

"The plea of not guilty speaks for itself. Mr. White recently suffered a paralytic stroke. He and his wife practically are destitute. Mrs. White was forced to accept a position yesterday at $4 a day to support herself. The report that Mr. White lost the money of his clients in the recent stock market crash is incorrect. He had no stock account of any kind."

At the time of his arrest Mr. White gave his address as 9 East Ninety-sixth Street and was reported to have a country home at Patterson, N. Y.

A negro, who said he had acted as the accused lawyer's secretary, was in court with a suitcase of clothing. He also said he had brought $100 for Mr. White.

TRANSFER CONTROL OVER PARK CENTRE

Westchester Supervisors Vote After Fight to Put Playfield Under Recreation Board.

ATTACKED AS ILLEGAL

Minority Leader Opposes the Move, but It Is Approved by 23 to 3—Legal Opinion to Be Asked.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 12.—A resolution transferring the operation and maintenance of the new $1,000,000 Westchester Recreation Centre from the Westchester County Park Commission to the Westchester County Recreation Commission was adopted today by the county supervisors at a special meeting. The vote was 23 to 3.

The count gave no evidence of the stubborn resistance met by the resolution, for the measure did not go through without a struggle. James Sullivan, minority leader of the board, led the fight against it. He talked for more than eighty minutes in an attemp to prove that the move was illegal and insisted that the vote be postponed until Monday until an authoritative opinion could be obtained.

It seemed, for a time, that he might succeed in rallying some Republican members of the board to his support. John Donalson, Mount Vernon Supervisor, proposed that the vote be held up for a legal opinion, and a few other members agreed.

Then Edward P. Barrett, chairman of the budget committee, interrupted. He pointed out that the Recreation Commission will meet tomorrow to prepare an estimate of operating expenses. He called for an immediate vote, "out of consideration for the five prominent women who head the commission." The vote followed.

Sullivan was beaten, at least temporarily, but he insisted that the transfer would not stand. He maintained that the only body that could change the powers of the Park Commission is the State Legislature which created it, but his opposition was crushed.

Supervisor Millard then proposed that William A. Davidson, county attorney, be asked to submit an opinion on the transfer for addition to the minutes, "merely for the sake of good form."

Pliny Williamson, another member, agreed. He pointed out that if it became necessary for the board to rescind the transfer resolution the budget could be incorporated in the Park Commission Fund. The proposal made by Millard was carried.

Sullivan intimated that there might be Supreme Court procedeings to test the legality of the transfer resolution. He also offered a resolution providing for a stenographic record of all board meetings, but this proposal was put aside.

7 OF VITALE GUESTS HAD POLICE RECORDS

Hears of Vitale Petition.

Magistrate Vitale at the time of the hold-up praised Johnson's level-headed conduct, remarking that if the detective had produced his revolver the hold-up men might have killed or wounded some of the guests. Commissioner Whalen was told that the magistrate had been circulating a petition seeking to have Johnson restored to his former rank.

"When Magistrate Vitale finds out the character of some of those who attended the banquet," he said, "he will probably stop circulating the petition."

"Weren't the men on your list of seven among those robbed by the bandits?" the commissioner was asked.

"Yes," he said, "but I have no doubt their money and valuables were returned to them later."

The commissioner said that he had talked to Johnson about the hold-up. He said the former detective had admitted that when the gang came into the restaurant, which is on the second floor, he was at the foot of the stairway and had been in a good position to draw his revolver and resist the raid.

"Detective Johnson used very poor judgment that night," he added. "When the gunmen approached the table he should not have tried to get his gun out of the holster at that time. As a detective and as a policeman he should have waited until the robbers had departed and then gone downstairs and attacked them there. There would then have been no question about the risks to any of the other guests."

Leniency Asked for Johnson.

Commissioner Whalen admitted that Mr. Vitale and Mr. Dalagi had called at his office on Wednesday. Their visit, he said, had been to obtain leniency for Johnson, who they thought had been unjustly treated.

"I told them that my investigation had shown that Johnson had not properly performed his duty," said Mr. Whalen.

He was asked about a report that three other detectives had been at the dinner, and that when the hold-up men entered they had thrown their service revolvers under the table.

"I had not heard that," said the Commissioner, "but my investigation is not closed and I shall look into that report. If I find it to be true I shall take the same course with these men as I have with Johnson."

The murders of which Terranova was acquitted took place on the night of July 20, 1916, at 54 James Street. The victims were Joseph Di Marco and Charles Lombardi. Terranova was accused of hiring a professional gunman, who testified that he made murder his trade at a wage of $15 a week.

Vitale Mentioned in Campaign.

Magistrate Vitale came in for a great deal of the limelight during the municipal campaign. Fiorella La Guardia, Republican-Fusion candidate for Mayor, charged in a political speech that the Magistrate had obtained a loan of $19,940 from Arnold Rothstein, the gambler who was slain on Nov. 4, 1928. Magistrate Vitale explained that the loan had been obtained by a friend, whose visit to Rothstein for the money had been without his authority or knowledge.

The magistrate, who declined to disclose the identity of his friend, explained that the money had gone to bolster his holdings in Bascidaly stock. The loan was made in June, 1929, when as stock market quotations showed, the shares were sliding rapidly toward the bottom of a bear market.

Magistrate Vitale was told of Commissioner Whalen's list yesterday as he presided in the West Side Court. He dictated a statement to a reporter for a news agency and then, when the statement had been delivered to newspaper offices, asked the agency to withdraw the statement.

The magistrate said that he would issue a statement later. Efforts to reach him subsequent to this failed. Mr. Delagi's only reaction to the commissioner's list was surprise. He said that he expected to get in touch with Magistrate Vitale later.

PATTON IS BOUND OVER.

He Is Accused in Florida of Shooting Former Mrs. Curwood.

ORLANDO, Fla., Dec. 12 (AP).—R. C. Patton of Lima, Ohio, traveling salesman for a Brooklyn metal stamping company, was bound over to the Orange County Criminal Court of Record today on a charge of assault with intent to murder Mrs. Cora Lee Eden at her home on the Winter Garden Road on Nov. 12 last.

Mrs. Eden was divorced from the late James Oliver Curwood, the writer. Patton told authorities he shot her because she rejected his love after accepting his attentions for six years.

Bond was fixed at $2,500 and the case was set for the next term of court.

CITY ACTS TO MERGE TWO WELFARE BODIES

Estimate Board Votes to Appoint Committee of Five to Suggest Necessary Legislation.

Definite steps were taken yesterday by the Board of Estimate to effect the long contemplated consolidation of the Board of Child Welfare with the Department of Public Welfare, which jointly dispense annually $16,000,000 of the city's funds.

Recommendation of such a merger was made in a letter from Richard H. Childs, president of the City Club. After it had been read to the board Aldermanic President McKee, who said he knew the plan had long been in the mind of the Mayor and others, moved that Mayor Walker be empowered to appoint a committee of five to study the subject and recommend legislation to effect the consolidation. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Childs wrote that the proposed consolidation would reduce overhead and promote efficiency. He said that each of these agencies dispenses $8,000,000 annually, with a joint expense for personnel of $800,000.

The Board of Child Welfare is now administered by a non-salaried board of ten, of which the Rev. William A. Courtney, rector of St. Stephen's Roman Catholic Church, is president. It has 125 salaried investigators who supervise the annual disbursements to care for 35,000 children in their homes.

James A. Kelly, commissioner, has been acting head of the Department of Public Welfare since Bird S. Coler resigned. When the Hospital Department was created the functions of the Public Welfare Department were greatly curtailed, as some of the hospitals had been under its jurisdiction.

What . . . ! Another Scotch story?

ST. JAMES TATROSS BRANROSS

YES, another Scotch story—but don't stop us. We speak not of the Scot who makes one penny do the work of two, but of his equally canny brother who makes Scotch grain—a single leather that does double duty!

The shoe of Scotch grain is a smart shoe when the sun shines; a storm shoe when dark clouds gather and wet winds blow.

Handsome, Scotch grain is quite correct for business and informal wear. Stubbornly resistant to wet and chill, it's quite indispensable for wintry streets.

Scotch grain has long been a staple leather in John Ward's winter stocks; long a prime favorite with John Ward patrons. Hence our range of lasts, styles, and sizes is unusually complete.

Prices, you will observe, are of a sort to make even a hard-working Scotch dollar go farther.

RETAILERS PLEDGE CLOAK INDUSTRY AID

Huge Store Interests Agree to Cooperate in Eliminating Outstanding Evils.

ROOSEVELT ASKED ACTION

Governor, at Conference, Warns Against Policies of Drastic Retrenchment Now.

The cooperation of the country's leading retailers in steps to stabilize the cloak and suit industry, with an annual output of more than $500,000,000 and employing 40,000 men and women in New York City, was promised yesterday at a conference called by Governor Roosevelt at the Hotel Roosevelt.

Appeals for cooperation were made by Governor Roosevelt, Lieutenant Governor Herbert H. Lehman and George W. Alger, chairman of the Cloak and Suit Commission. Franklin Simon, president of the Garment Retailers of America, a nation-wide organization of department stores, chain stores and other retailers, then announced that he would arrange for an early meeting of the members of his association. The meeting, explained Mr. Simon, would draw up plans, in conjunction with the representative manufacturers, for eliminating outstanding evils of the industry as between the retailers and the manufacturers.

The meeting was attended by 125 leaders of every phase of the industry, including the union, inside shops, jobbers, subcontractors and retailers. Of especial significance was the presence of nearly 100 retailers, representing the most important department stores, chain stores and buying agencies in the country, for whom the meeting was arranged.

"Padrone" System Attacked.

Benjamin Schlesinger, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, urged the retailers to cooperate in eliminating the "padrone" shops where, he said, one or two workers profit by exploiting their fellows under sweated and substandard conditions. He declared that most retailers did not wish to buy garments made under such conditions and indicated that at some future time the union would undertake a strike against retailers who purchased the goods.

Governor Roosevelt opened the conference by pointing out that despite some apprehensions of a business recession the Federal Government and the State Governments as well as a vast majority of industrial leaders have chosen to go ahead confidently with works of construction and production.

The great majority of people has not suffered in the stock market, the Governor said, and "this Christmas season is no time for new or exaggerated policies of retrenchment." He suggested that the general situation could be helped if people would go ahead generously and in the usual Christmas spirit.

Governor Roosevelt emphasized the importance of the New York needle industry, with its 200,000 workers, of whom 40,000 were employed in cloak and suit establishments, and told of the efforts of the Cloak Commission, headed by Mr. Alger, to stabilize the industry.

Difficulties Are Explained.

Mr. Alger explained the impartial machinery for settling disputes in the industry and referred to the difficulties confronting the stabilization program, particularly in the relation of retailer to manufacturer.

Colonel Lehman spoke of the "cut-throat competition" in the cloak industry and of the responsibility of the retailer to help manufacturers who live up to the highest standards. He declared that cut-throat competition hurt retailers as well as all others and said that if the retailers did not encourage the manufacturers who created the styles the most responsible manufacturers would be driven out of the market.

Colonel Lehman said that as the meeting was the first occasion the retailers had had to learn of the program of stabilization fostered by the Governor, no resolutions would be in order. He suggested, however, that after Mr. Simon and his colleagues had conferred on the program they should meet with Mr. Alger and Raymond V. Ingersoll, the industry's impartial chairman, to further the work of mutual cooperation.

Simon Promises Help.

Mr. Simon concurred at once and expressed confidence that the meeting would result in much good for the industry. He then announced that he was instructing the secretary of his association to arrange for an early meeting.

GANG PLEADS GUILTY TO STORE THEFTS

Eleven of Mauro Band Accept Reduction of Charge to Second Degree Robbery.

FACED TRIAL IN GROUPS

Prisoners, Who Specialized in Looting Druggists, Rounded Up in Three-Day Drive.

Eleven members of the Mauro gang, whose specialty was robbing Brooklyn drug stores, pleaded guilty before Judge Taylor in Kings County Court yesterday to second-degree robbery, without guns. The men were rounded up in a two-day drive several weeks ago and all pleaded not guilty to indictments variously charging robbery and grand larceny.

Yesterday they were segregated in three groups and brought to court for trial. Five members of the first group had heard the State present its case, and when a chance was offered to them to plead to second-degree robbery, they readily acquiesced.

Two others, who were waiting in the detention pen, were told it was "bargain day" upstairs and signified their desire to plead to the reduced charge rather than risk the jury's verdict. The third group, which was also awaiting trial, soon learned of the pleas, and when they were brought before the court a few hours later they also capitulated.

The first group included Frank Falcone, 19 years old, of 2,812 West Twenty-fourth Street; Orlando Mogduorri, 19, of 1,415 Sixty-ninth Street; Carmine Martone, 24, of 133 Bay Forty-eighth Street; Carl Manro, 30, of 2,340 West Eleventh Street, said to be the leader of the gang, and Patsy Varriale, 18, of 6,618 Sixty-sixth Street, all Brooklyn. They were charged with holding up and robbing Jacob Tiemon, druggist, of 218 Foster Avenue, on Oct. 22, taking $44 from him at the point of a gun.

The second group included Nunzio Accardo, 20, of 2,825 Twenty-first Street, and N. Mennella, 19, of 2,825 Twenty-first Street, charged with holding up Bitore Testa, 6,702 Eleventh Avenue, Brooklyn, on Oct. 7, taking $85.

The last group included Neil Mooney, 21, of 4 Bay Forty-eighth Street; Angelo Perro, 24, of 2,808 Stillwell Avenue; Harry Zinns, 19, of 1,516 Sixty-fifth Street, and John Jackson, 19, of 2,862 Stillwell Avenue, all Brooklyn. They were indicted for the robbery of Abraham Kolber, a druggist, on Oct. 7. They refused at first to plead to the reduced charge, but finally decided to follow the example of the rest of the gang. Judge Taylor will sentence them later.

The eighteenth annual appeal for the Hundred Neediest Cases continues in today's issue of The New York Times.

GOV. LARSON TELLS OF POLLUTION FIGHT

Testifies Future Economic Life of Jersey Is Menaced by Refuse Washed on Beaches.

BOTTLES SHOWN TO COURT

New York Containers Floated Ashore, Attorney Says—Hearing Goes Into Value of Resorts.

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Dec. 12.—Governor Morgan F. Larson testified this afternoon at the trial of New Jersey's suit to restrain New York City from dumping garbage into the ocean off the coast that the economic future of the State is threatened by the pollution of its beaches.

Thomas A. W. Crowe of the office of the Corporation Counsel of New York City waived cross-examination of the Governor.

Mr. Larson told of various bills introduced during his nine years as Senator, and he presented a portion of his inaugural message.

"The resorts along the New Jersey coast represent one of the greatest industries of the State," he said. "Unless a stop is put to this pollution immediately, the New Jersey resorts will be ruined."

The Governor also referred to the message of preceding Governors, and to platforms of both parties to show that pollution had long been an issue in New Jersey.

Duane Minard, Assistant Attorney General of New Jersey, arrived at the hearing with two dripping milk bottles. Although emptied of milk, they bore caps with the name of a New York dealer and were dated as having been bottled last Friday. Mr. Minard said he had picked them up on the Asbury Park beach, just off the Boardwalk. He offered them as evidence that refuse dumped by New York City twenty miles at sea is floated to the Jersey shore.

Mr. Crowe opposed the introduction of the bottles, declaring there was no evidence they had been washed in from the New York dumping ground. Mr. Minard insisted they had, and he added:

"I'll have a wagon load for you tomorrow, because there is a northeast wind blowing and that brings in the stuff in great quantities."

Over the protest of Mr. Crowe, Mr. Minard obtained the admission of data concerning the valuations of beach property in this vicinity. Through this evidence, Mr. Minard said, New Jersey will prove that property valued at millions of dollars is endangered if beach pollution does not cease.

The question of admission of the data arose when the Rev. Melville E. Snyder, general superintendent of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, was asked to testify as to the apportionate of tax ratables in the resort. Mr. Crowe objected on the ground that the witness was not competent to testify as to the authenticity of the figures.

After Mr. Minard offered to produce assessors and others who compiled the figures, Special Master E. K. Campbell admitted the data to the record.

Mr. Snyder testified that Ocean Grove's valuations exceeded $9,000,000 and that $3,000,000 was invested in hotels in the resort. He testified that $1,500,000 was invested in Summer residences, while additional sums were represented by Boardwalk and beach improvements.

Similar figures from twenty-seven other municipalities will be introduced by Mr. Minard. Mr. Snyder told of sums spent to keep the beaches clean. Mayor Frank C. Borden of Bradley Beach and Mayor W. Warren Barbour of Rumson told of refuse on the beaches.

PROPOSES ARBITRATION FOR ARMY-NAVY GAME

Fish Asks Hoover to Name Five Football Captains—Urges Negro for Haiti Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. of New York made a short call upon President Hoover at the White House today and later issued a statement which, he said, described the subjects of his talk with the President.

He said he had suggested that Mr. Hoover or the Secretaries of the Navy and War appoint five former football captains of Princeton, Yale, Harvard, Pennsylvania and Georgetown to act as arbitrators for the restoration of the Annapolis and West Point football games. Mr. Fish desires that whatever decision is reached should be binding upon both academies.

Mr. Fish's second proposal was to include at least one well-known negro on the commission the President proposes to send to Haiti. He suggested the names of Emmet J. Scott of Howard University, James W. Johnson of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People or Representative De Priest of Illinois.

Mr. Fish's third subject was the elevation of the American legation at Warsaw, Poland, to be an embassy.

I'M ALONE FOUND AMERICAN-OWNED

Evidence of Registry of Rum-Runner Sunk by Coast Guard Affects Canadian Arbitration.

AWARD NOW HELD UNLIKELY

Adjudication of Case, Delayed for Some Time, Is Expected to Be Speeded to a Conclusion.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—New evidence recently uncovered, it is understood, tends to show that the rum-running schooner I'm Alone, although under Canadian registry, was really owned by Americans when it was sunk by the guns of the Coast Guard 200 miles off the Louisiana coast last March. The information is said to be in the possession of former Senator George Wharton Pepper of Philadelphia, American agent in the arbitration of the case with Canada.

While there is no doubt that the arbitration will not be held as scheduled, legal experts admit that if it can be shown the I'm Alone was owned by American nationals the Canadian Government would be put in the peculiar position of seeking to collect an award for damages done to an American citizen. Under such circumstances, it is believed, an arbitral court might make no award whatever or fix a nominal sum of a few cents.

Almost from the first days of the career of the I'm Alone, the question of its real ownership was in doubt. At various times the names of the Eastern Seaboard Shipping Agency, Ltd., the Eastern Seaboard Shipping Corporation, the Eastern Seaboard Company and the I'm Alone Shipping Company appeared as the operating concern.

Progress in the preparation of the case for arbitration has been slow. At present delay is due to the absence, in London of John E. Reade, the Canadian agent, who is attending an imperial conference on shipping.

The Canadian Government already has submitted a tentative draft of the so-called "terms of submission" for the arbitration. The United States in turn has submitted a counterdraft, which has not been answered.

When Mr. Reade returns to Canada he is expected to take up this matter. Once it is disposed of each side will have two months in which to submit memoranda showing exactly what they hope to prove in the case. It is possible that neither side will take anything like the allowed time.

PUTS LIMIT ON ISSUES OF SPECIAL STAMPS

Postmaster General, Facing 72 Applications, Restricts Memorial Issues.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Faced by requests for special stamp issues to commemorate seventy-two different anniversaries, Postmaster General Brown today issued a warning that the established policy of the Postoffice Department "has been to restrict special stamps to commemorate anniversaries of important historical or industrial events of national interest."

He said the policy was based upon administrative limitations.

Among the requests before the Postmaster General are those asking special stamp issues to commemorate the 2,000th anniversary of the birth of Vergil, the signing of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact, the opening of the international bridge at Detroit, the Antarctic explorations of Commander Richard E. Byrd, the sesquicentennial of the capture of Major Andre and the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

SAYS RUMANIA PLANS TO LET CAROL RETURN

Bucharest Paper Asserts Former Crown Prince Would Have to Pledge Quiet Life.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 12.—The newspaper Curentul reports that the government has consented to allow the return of former Crown Prince Carol to Rumania on condition that he does not participate in politics and live as a simple private person, like former Crown Prince Wilhelm in Germany.

Premier Maniu is said to have supported this solution of the latent dynastical crisis, despite the opposition of the Liberals.

Official confirmation of the report is unobtainable. It is suggested that the news item may be a trial balloon sent out by the government to test popular feeling as the government undoubtedly plans to settle the entire Carol question.

Indirect confirmation, however, was furnished by the fact that Premier Maniu had a long audience with Dowager Queen Marie this afternoon. This is the first time he has been near her since the notorious interview in Universal, in which she was quoted as having criticized severely Premier Maniu's refusal to give her a seat on the Regency Council.

It was admitted tonight that Premier Maniu's audience with the Dowager Queen was connected with "urgent dynastic questions."

SENATOR CHARGES 'FIXING' IN COTTON

'Overpowering Influences' Have Been Depressing Prices, Smith Asserts at Senate Inquiry.

'BEAR' PRESSURE ADMITTED

But President Miller of New York Exchange Insists That World Factors Guide the Market.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Charges that some "overpowering" influence has been exerted in the cotton market to keep the price of the commodity down despite growing consumption both at home and abroad were made today by Senator Smith of South Carolina, sitting as a member of a subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry to investigate the speculative activities of New York, New Orleans and Chicago Cotton Exchanges.

"I know that if there was not some influence somewhere holding in its hands the law of supply and demand you could no more have kept the price of cotton from going higher than you could have kept the sun from rising," said Senator Smith.

The Senator's charges were made during the testimony of Gardiner H. Miller, president of the New York Cotton Exchange, the first witness called in this investigation directed by a resolution introduced during the special session by Senator Heflin of Alabama, a member of the inquiry subcommittee.

Asked what had driven down the price of cotton during the present season, Mr. Miller said it was due to the rapidity with which the South harvested and marketed its crop, coupled with the general recession of business accompanying the recent collapse in the New York stock market.

"Influencing" of Market Denied.

"Do you know of any large firms or agencies who are combining their strength to influence the market at will?" Senator Smith inquired.

"No, I do not," Mr. Miller replied. "I do not think any force can alter the law of supply and demand."

"Don't talk about that law unless you are going to call it 'supply and the man,'" the Senator retorted.

Senator Heflin interrupted to charge that the old influence of Anderson-Clayton Company (a Houston, Texas, cotton concern) was one of the chief causes of the price decline.

"That old influence hangs over the cotton market like a sword of Damocles," he said.

Mr. Miller denied vigorously that the activities of the cotton exchanges of the country had contributed in any degree to the relatively low level at which cotton has been selling in recent months. Asserting that the price was a true reflection of world supply and demand, he added:

"There is an unmistakable tendency in the United States to ignore or forget the great increased production of cotton in foreign countries and the greatly increased competitive influence exerted by foreign cottons in the determination of the price of American cotton," he said.

He cited figures to show that foreign production in foreign cotton had risen nearly a 1,000,000 bales within a two-year period, and remarked that, "if America is going to insist on 15 to 20 cents a pound for export cotton, the world is going to do on as little American cotton as possible."

Senator Smith took issue on this point, insisting that foreign competition was negligible and declaring that the average American production for the past ten years was nearly a half million bales a year under the consumption of American cotton on the spindles of the world.

He quoted average production from 1919 to the present at 12,698,000 bales annually, with an average consumption of 13,214,000.

"How do you reconcile the decline of cotton prices with this unprecedented demand?" asked Senator Smith. "You invoke the law of supply and demand. The demand is unprecedented and yet the price goes down."

Mr. Miller replied that many mills bought ahead. Some, he said, were consuming cotton which they had bought for 12 cents a pound.

"Who bought it at that price?" demanded Senator Smith. "If American dealers sold it at that price, then the whole trade has whipped it down."

Senator's Shirt as an Exhibit.

Senator Smith asked Mr. Miller what could be done to bridge the gap between what the farmer gets for his cotton and the price he has to pay for finished merchandise made from it.

"I've got a shirt on my back I paid $3 for. It weighs about five ounces, but I'll bet the manufacturer of the cloth bought the cotton for 15 cents a pound," he said.

"You paid too much for it," put in Senator Townsend of Delaware, chairman of the committee.

"I know I did!" shouted Senator Smith.

Mr. Miller admitted knowing definitely of "certain people of bullish tendencies who have gone into the market," and he agreed with Senator Smith that there had been a considerable lessening in the entry of outside speculators.

He agreed further that part of it might be due to the new rule of the New York Cotton Exchange allowing the sellers of New York contracts to deliver cotton at Southern points which they could specify at times of delivery.

Senator Smith argued that this rule created an uncertainty on the part of the buyer as to where his cotton was to be delivered and hence deterred him from trading. Mr. Miller answered, however, no Southern deliveries had yet been made under the rule.

Senator Heflin asked Mr. Miller what his recommendation would be concerning some plan whereby the cotton farmers could withhold their cotton from a speculative market if they chose.

Mr. Miller replied that this would eventually do away with all speculative trading in the commodity, explaining that the main purpose of the Cotton Exchange was to furnish a ready market at all times for cotton through a regulated system of trading in futures.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—It is estimated that another 90,000 unemployed men and women will qualify for the dole under the new clause in the unemployment bill which Parliament accepted tonight.

The cost to the State will be between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000 instead of $13,750,000 as allowed for in its bill before it was amended in consultation with the Liberal party.

The bill passed the second reading by 287 to 192 votes.

EXECUTION OF EDEL STAYED IN LASTHOUR

Governor Phones to Sing Sing From City, Granting a Reprieve Until Dec. 30.

FIRST SUCH ACT SINCE 1916

Doomed Man, Convicted on March 7 of Killing Actress Here, Maintains He Is Innocent.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Less than one hour before the time set for his execution in Sing Sing prison tonight, Frederick W. Edel, 30 years old, who had been convicted of slaying an actress in Manhattan on Dec. 23, 1927, won a reprieve from Governor Roosevelt. The Governor telephoned from New York to Warden Lawes at 10:10 P. M. that he had signed a reprieve, which expires the week of Dec. 30. Preparations had been made to carry out the death sentence at 11 P. M.

Edel was informed of Governor Roosevelt's action by the Rev. Dr. Arthur Peterson, Protestant chaplain in the prison, who was with the prisoner when the Governor was telephoning to Warden Lawes. He is the first man since 1916 to get a reprieve at the last moment in this State. Thirteen years ago Charles Stielow was reprieved half an hour before he was scheduled to die.

"Thank God!" Edel exclaimed. "The Governor did the right thing."

Edel had steadfastly maintained that he was innocent of killing Mrs. Emmeline O. Harrington in her apartment at 617 West 190th Street, for which he was convicted by a jury in General Sessions Court in New York City on March 7.

Warden Lawes, speaking by telephone from the prison, said that Edel "was very happy" at the news that a reprieve had been granted.

Recently, Edel wrote a letter to Governor Roosevelt asking for clemency and saying that he had received an opportunity to plead guilty at his trial to a charge of second degree manslaughter, but that he had refused this offer because he was innocent.

After Mrs. Harrington was killed with a hammer, Edel was traced to Springfield, Mass., and then to St. Paul, Minn., where he was arrested in March 1928.

During the seven months of his confinement here Edel received no visitors other than his lawyer. Tonight, however, a few hours before the reprive order came through, he asked to see a Sing Sing prisoner whom he had known when they were at freedom. The name of this prisoner was not made known. Edel's request was granted.

ITALIAN ENVOYS VISIT HUNGARY ON WAR DEBT

Budapest Hopes for Roman Support and Reparations at The Hague.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, Dec. 12 — Signori Brecchi and Suli, Italy's representatives at the eastern reparations conference at Paris, arrived unexpectedly at Budapest today on instructions of the Italian Foreign Minister, Dino Grandi, to study the whole question of Hungarian reparations.

The delegates were enthusiastically welcomed by the Hungarian press, which sees in their visit an indication of Italy's determination to support whole-heartedly the Hungarian standpoint at the next Hague conference.

This afternoon the Italian delegates had a long conference with Hungarian experts. The Telegraphen Compagnie reports that they already had indicated to Premier Count Bethlen and Foreign Minister Valtso late tonight their conviction of the justice of the Hungarian attitude, promising Italy's fullest support at the coming Hague conference.

ISOLATES GERM OF INFLUENZA

Dr. Falk of University of Chicago Announces Discovery of Microbe of Disease.

14 AIDES CAUGHT DISEASE

Experiments Conducted on Monkeys Have Failed to Bring Successful Vaccination.

ANTI-TOXIN IS SOUGHT

Bacteriologist, Native of Brooklyn, Names His Find Pleomorphic Streptococcus.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—A year of research in the laboratories of the University of Chicago to discover and isolate the germ of influenza which has taken a heavy toll of human life in eleven years, has been crowned with success.

This important announcement was made this afternoon by the discoverer, Dr. Isadore S. Falk, 30-year-old Professor of Bacteriology at the university and a native of Brooklyn.

The announcement was accompanied by a cautiously-worded statement that there is "a hopeful prospect" that an antitoxin for influenza will be discovered.

"What we are hoping," he said, "is that a vaccine prepared from dead microbes of the influenza germ can be absorbed through the mucuous membrane of the nose and throat and thus effect a cure."

The germ has not been named other than by the descriptive term pleomorphic (many-formed) streptococcus, which Dr. Falk applies to it. About 3,800 different microbes were studied before Dr. Falk decided that "pleomorphic streptococcus" was the one that caused the disease.

Dr. Falk is now able to "produce" the dangerous germ by swabbing the throat of any one who has influenza, picking out the streptococcus in its mild form and intensifying its virulence. By spraying the throats of monkeys with microbes from the virulent culture, he is able to produce at will an acute influenza resembling human influenza in practically every symptom.

Characteristics of the influenza germ are that its colonies or "clumps" containing billions of bacteria turn the blood culture in which they are kept alive slightly greenish, and that the dangerous clumps have a rough, porous surface.

The smoother clumps have been proved to be progressively less dangerous. They range from those which can produce bronchitis, and others which can produce a variety of common colds, to those very smooth-surfaced clumps which are innocuous and which are present in the "normal" throat.

The influenza germ was actually found during the epidemic of December, 1928, along with many other bacteria, but was not definitely identified as such until long afterward when hundreds of other microbes were gradually eliminated as suspects.

The medium which Dr. Falk was finally able to apply in sustaining both the virulent and non-virulent forms of this particular streptococcus was found to be a heated protein broth with sheep blood.

14 Aides Caught Influenza.

Fourteen members of the Bacteriology Department, all of whom developed influenza during the epidemic, assisted Dr. Falk in the work, toiling an average of sixteen hours a day and sleeping on their desks, in order that they could get samples of all the suspect germs before the epidemic ran its course.

Samples of throat swabs were taken from twenty-four people, mostly students or assistants.

The germ which later proved to be responsible was taken from the blood of Miss R. A. McKinney, one of the research assistants.

Dr. Falk made his announcement today at a meeting of the Bacteriology Club.

"An enormous amount of research work has been done on the influenza problem since the great epidemic of 1918-19 killed millions of people," he said.

Vaccination Not Yet Successful.

"Our researches at the university have been carried on since 1918 under the joint auspices of the university and the influenza commission founded and aided by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

"When large sums of money became necessary to buy monkeys and supply equipment and salaries, generous grants were made from the fund given to the university by Julius Rosenwald.

"This microbe is one of the kind that is called streptococcus. It does not grow readily when blood is lacking from the foodstuff on which it is kept alive in the laboratory. It is rather unusual because it varies considerably in size and shape, and is thus called 'pleomorphic.'"

Dr. Falk declared that attempts have been made to vaccinate monkeys against the pleomorphic streptococci, but that these experiments have not been conclusive.

Dr. Falk explained that there are two general types of dangerous germs, those which invade the tissues and live inside them; and those which produce poisons which get into the blood stream. The pleomorphic streptococcus, in its virulent form, is probably of the latter type. That is why its effects are felt so generally throughout the body in dizziness, pain in the back and sore eyes.

Dr. Falk Going to Washington.

Influenza alone does not kill human beings, Dr. Falk pointed out. It serves to destroy tissues in such a way that the normal resistance of the body to germs always within it is so diminished that many fatal diseases, especially pneumonia, are given a chance to flourish.

AMSTER SEES MORE ELEVATED DIVIDENDS

Says Figures Indicate That a Considerable Sum Is Still Available for Back Payments.

Nathan L. Amster, chairman of the Manhattan Stockholders' Protective Committee, issued a statement yesterday declaring that holders of Manhattan elevated stock may expect more payments on back rental dividends in addition to the 40 cent dividend announced recently by the Interborough.

"This announcement of an additional 40 cents toward the back rental dividends due the holders of Manhattan Railway stock by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company," said Mr. Amster, "coming, as it does, right on the heels of the already announced dividend of $1.25 for Dec. 17, is good news. It seems, however, to have been taken by some stockholders as an inference that this 40 cents is all the money that the Interborough has, or will have, available for these back-rental Manhattan dividends already long due the Manhattan Modified stockholders. However, from my own studies and investigations I am perfectly convinced that this is not all the money that is, or will be, available for the Manhattan back-rental dividends.

"Of course what the Interborough Company necessarily intends to do is to conform to the so-called Krech committee's modified contract of 1922 with respect to paying all the Interborough earnings over and above the interest to Manhattan Modified stockholders. But the present fact is that the Interborough is paying out only just so much money to Manhattan stockholders as the Interborough's bookkeeping shows is available. For future payments, however, it has not been determined how much money is available and it will not be until and when auditors have finally checked up the entire operations of the past two years during which these stockholders have not been paid."

Mr. Amster added that figures at hand indicated that a considerable amount was available.

$100,000 HOLIDAY FUND FOR MIDTOWN NEEDY

Merchants in Clothing Centre Expect to Help 2,500 Families at Christmas Time.

In its first campaign to give Christmas cheer to poor families living in the clothing centre, the Midtown Merchants' Association is planning to spend about $100,000 in addition to articles of wearing apparel it will give away.

Members of firms in the area between Seventh and Eighth Avenues and Thirtieth and Fortieth Streets, obtained first-hand information about the conditions of the families after the recent strike in the clothing industries. Working overtime to catch up with orders following the strike, the manufacturers, on leaving their places of business, at 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning, saw women searching for food wherever they could pick it up.

The merchants plan to give a complete outfit of clothing to every needy person in the neighborhood.

The headquarters of the association in the Hotel Claridge is well stocked with clothing. Members of the association include manufacturers of dresses, coats, hosiery, women's underwear, fur, millinery, &c. Besides giving articles they manufacture, the members donated $50,000. Further contributions are expected to double this amount.

The grand ballroom of the hotel has been engaged for Dec. 20, 21 and 22, when needy families will be completely outfitted. The association figures on about 2,500 families, with an average of about four members for each family. Most of these are believed to need help.

The association will have tailors and fitters to measure and fit all clothing. Wives and friends of the manufacturers will act as hostesses and help the women to get outfitted as thoroughly as possible.

MAIL PLANE CRASHES, LANDING IN FISHKILL

Pilot, on Newark to Albany Flight Forced Down by Engine Trouble, Escapes Injury.

Special to The New York Times.

BEACON, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Its motor going dead while passing over the village of Fishkill, the mail plane bound from Newark to Montreal crashed this morning when the pilot attempted to make a forced landing in a field. The plane was completely wrecked, but the pilot, James N. Peyton of Elizabeth, N. J., escaped serious injury.

The plane, a six-passenger Fairchild, took off from Newark this morning with nineteen sacks of mail for Albany to Montreal. The first hint of trouble came near West Point, when the engine began to sputter. The pilot kept on flying, being over heavily wooded country.

The motor picked up and the plane had just winged its way over the pass through the mountain east of Beacon when it began to miss again.

The pilot headed for a small field but was unable to clear a line of trees and the plane crashed when the right wing was torn away.

The mail was brought to Beacon and shipped by train to Albany.

13 PLANES DESTROYED IN TAMPA AIRPORT FIRE

Inquiry Begins as Equipment in Hangar Is Said to Have Been Covered With Gasoline.

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 12 (AP).—Fire swept through the steel hangar at the municipal airport here early today, destroying thirteen airplanes. The loss was estimated at $100,000.

The cause of the fire was not determined. Assistant Fire Chief Ben Torres said he found planes and equipment covered with gasoline, and together with R. Wallace Davies, aviation commission chairman, began an investigation. The structure of the hangar was not damaged, and Torres said this indicated to him that the planes had been set afire.

Because a night watchman was not employed little insurance was in force on the planes. The airport is outside the city limits and water was not available to fight the blaze.

BARNES SEES TRADE AT NORMAL IN YEAR

Business Is Sound and Will Recover Slowly but Surely, Chamber Head Declares.

STRESSES FOREIGN TRADE

It May Hold Key to Revival, He Tells Economic Club Here—Warns of Unfair Methods.

A general note of optimism with respect to American business and industry and a forecast of renewed prosperity during the second half of 1930 was sounded by Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the board of the United States Chamber of Commerce; Julius Klein, assistant secretary of the Department of Commerce, and other speakers at the dinner of the Economic Club of New York last night at the Hotel Astor.

More than 1,000 members and guests were present. The speakers included Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company of Cleveland, Ohio; Michael H. Cahill, president of the Plaza Trust Company, and Richard T. Ely, director of the Institute for Research in Land Economics and Public Utilities. The subject of the evening's discussion was "Current Developments in Finance, and Business Prospects."

In consideration of the recent crash in the stock market, which was the point of departure for all the speakers, Mr. Barnes pointed out the complexity of American business and economics today in contrast to conditions even half a century ago, and emphasized the vital inter-relation of industries which permit a deflection in one quarter to react unfavorable upon the whole. Such a situation, he said was responsible for the recent complete collapse of the stock market.

He said that a return of the credit market and business activity will perhaps be slow during the first half of the coming year, but that conditions will obtain their regular equanimity before the year is out.

He suggested that a contributing factor would be an increase in the foreign trade of the nation.

"Through a systematic and sensible promotion of our trade relations abroad," said Mr. Klein, "the products of these small manufacturers can be sold, they can be made to prosper and stability in our economic life can be induced to a remarkable degree. But we must not indulge in a foolhardy sale of our surplus in foreign markets and incur the enmity of the foreign business leaders. We must move with a sober realization of good-will, for the sins of one national are visited upon all."

CURRY RETIRED BY CITY.

Tammany Chief Pensioned at $3,600 a Year—23 Other Cases Approved.

The Board of Estimate approved yesterday the application of John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, for retirement from the city's service on pension after more than thirty years' employment. Mr. Curry will retire as Commissioner of Records of the Surrogate's Court on Monday to devote all his time to the Tammany organization.

Mr. Curry has been Commissioner of Records since 1911 and his salary is $9,000. He will receive a pension of approximately $3,600 a year.

He was formerly an Assemblyman and Deputy County Clerk and was employed in the paymaster's division of the Finance Department.

Twenty-four pension applications were approved by the board. Among these were those of Justices Francis B. Delahanty and John M. Tierney of the First Judicial District, and Surrogate Daniel A. Noble of Queens, who are approaching the age limit. Alderman Frank J. Doetzler, minority leader of the board, who was defeated for reelection, also had his application approved. Mr. Doetzler, who is 57 years old, is a member of the Pension System.

HOOVERS RECEIVE RADIO FINALISTS

President and His Wife Greet Ten Audition Contestants at the White House.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The ten finalists of the third national radio audition of the Atwater Kent Foundation, five young women and five young men, were presented to President Hoover today and later talked with Mrs. Hoover in the Blue Room of the White House. The winners are making a two-day visit to the capital, prior to the nation-wide test in New York City on Sunday night.

Mrs. Hoover expressed particular pleasure in meeting Calvin Hendricks, blind baritone, of Los Angeles, because California is Mr. Hoover's home. She was also interested in chatting with Miss Genevieve Irene Rowe, one of the division winners, and her mother, Mrs. Neill Rowe of Wooster, Ohio, because Mrs. Hoover's parents were Ohioans.

The other finalists presented were Floy Louese Hamlin of Los Angeles; Agnes Skillin of Springvale, Me.; Josephine Louise Antoine of Boulder, Col.; Frances Tortorich of New Orleans; John Jameson of Denver; Charles Edward Carlile of Central Falls, R. I.; Edward A. Kane of Atlanta and Carlyle William Bennett of Chicago.

Today the visitors toured the city and visited Arlington Cemetery. They attended a luncheon at the National Press Club and spent the afternoon visiting Mount Vernon. Tomorrow they will be received by Vice President Curtis and attend a luncheon at which Mr. Curtis will preside. Among the guests also will be Senators Norbeck and Hawes and Representatives Ruth Hanna McCormick and Ruth Bryan Owen.

Mr. and Mrs. Atwater Kent with their daughter, Elizabeth, and son, Atwater Kent Jr., who came here with the finalists, dined at the White House and spent last night there. Invited to meet them at dinner were Senator and Mrs. Moses and Senator and Mrs. Watson.

WOLBER TO SUPPORT MORROW FOR SENATE

Breaks With Essex Chairman on Course for Action in Senate Nomination.

State Senator Joseph G. Wolber of Essex County announced yesterday in Newark, his support of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow for the Republican nomination for United States Senator in the 1930 elections. Mr. Wolber was one of the backers of Jesse Salmon for county chairman early this year. Mr. Salmon is supporting former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen for the Senatorial nomination but Mr. Wolber said he did not expect this to affect his relations with the county chairman.

"Rarely has the Republican party," said Mr. Wolber, "been able to offer to the people of New Jersey the candidacy of a man so well equipped by character, calibre and capacity as Mr. Morrow for the office of United States Senator.

"His candidacy is particularly fortunate because it comes at a time when there is a strong call for big men in the Senate of the United States."

Stressing Mr. Morrow's career as a lawyer, banker, public worker, and statesman, Mr. Wolber said the Ambassador's willingness to represent New Jersey in the Senate afforded the Republican party "the greatest opportunity to present a real statesman to the electorate."

business survey conference," said Mr. Barnes, "indicates that there is nothing to cause further timidity or hesitation, but rather warrants confidence in the early stabilization of business activity, without justifying excessive optimism before the close of the test period of the next few months.

"Provisions for study and comparison of conditions in the various industries through representative trade organizations is being made by the formation of a large committee, comprising competent and recognized leadership in the more important business fields. This committee will be announced later.

"To shape and direct major policies as occasion requires, a small committee, which can meet more frequently and act with greater dispatch, has been appointed to summarise and weigh the information obtained through the larger contact committee. In selecting this smaller committee so that it would not be unwieldy in size, it has been necessary to choose from a wealth of proved leadership, ability and character.

"In enlisting the service of the members the chairman of the conference, with his associates, has been guided by many considerations. Geographical distribution has been taken into account, but greater weight has been given to breadth of experience. Many of those selected have had this experience in various fields of business and in the direction of different types of industry.

"Necessarily, in making up a small committee, it was impossible to include many outstanding men of tried experience and judgment or to include representatives of every line of business, many of which are of great importance.

"The small committee will be called into consultation at an early date, but nothing of an emergency character exists in the present business situation to require undue haste in its work."

Construction Division to Cooperate.

Secretary of Commerce Lamont said this afternoon that the new Division of Public Construction, just created in the Commerce Department at President Hoover's request, would cooperate fully with the committee named by Mr. Barnes. The division will concern itself with building and construction, while the Barnes committee will specialize on the industrial outlook.

"The newly organized division, which is under the direction of Dr. John M. Gries of Ohio, former chief of the Division of Building and Housing of the Department of Commerce, serves as a clearing house of information on methods and plans," Mr. Lamont stated.

"In general, it is helping to coordinate the efforts of the Federal government departments and of State and local governments in their programs to help stabilize business and employment conditions by speeding up construction projects.

"The State Governors, in response to telegrams from President Hoover, have assumed responsibility for carrying out the idea in their own States and for encouraging similar efforts on the part of county and municipal officials.

Reports Being Analyzed.

"Some of the Governors have indicated that they wish to be informed of measures and methods being used elsewhere, particularly where the best results are achieved, and the division is analyzing the reports already in hand from this point of view.

"The new unit is also making an intensive study of Federal Government projects now under way, or which can be put in motion within the next few months. Such information on the position of the many Federal departments and bureaus which carry on construction is necessary for the most effective mobilization of the Federal Government's own efforts.

"Facts on many phases of the problem are already in the hands of Dr. Gries as a result of the study of public works by the Division of Building and Housing of the department and the National Bureau of Economic Research."

The daily average of building contracts in thirty-seven Eastern States during the first week in November, Mr. Lamont stated, was $21,722,000, as compared with $21,466,000 during the previous week and $17,000,000 in the comparative week a year ago.

Here's the greatest surprise and convenience of all. For a modest down payment—merely enough to cover cost of installation—you may begin to enjoy Kelvinator's priceless advantages on Christmas Day.

You have probably planned to own a new Super-Automatic Kelvinator in the Spring. Why not decide to own it now, and solve, at the same time, the most perplexing of your Christmas problems?

That all-embracing gift you have sought for your family—one that brings health, happiness and good cheer the year around—is now on display at our showrooms.

Brilliant new product of the oldest experience in electric refrigeration, the new Super-Automatic Kelvinator entirely revises all previous standards of automatic refrigerating service.

Three amazing conveniences in one—the world's fastest automatic freezing of ice cubes and desserts, separately controlled cold for food compartments—and in larger models, a cold storage chamber where perishable foods can be kept indefinitely.

No electric refrigerator has ever before offered this correct balance of perfect automatic refrigeration. And Kelvinator embodies this service in all-metal cabinets of surpassing beauty, with porcelain-lined interiors and massive hardware of artistic design.

With all their improvements in fully-automatic operation, record fast freezing and far finer cabinet construction, the new Kelvinators are most moderately priced. Twelve sizes and types from which to choose, many with new electrically lighted interiors. See them today and compare their exclusive features with any electric refrigerator you have ever known.

The NEW HAVEN RAILROAD

TWO LINERS ARRIVE BATTERED BY GALES

The France and the Berengaria Dock Two Days Late—Latter Damaged by Storms.

DESCRIBE RESCUE ATTEMPT

Passengers on French Ship Tell of Racing Through Wild Storm to the Aid of the Volumina.

Two liners, the Berengaria of the Cunard Line and the France of the French Line, arrived yesterday, each two days late, after crossings in which they battled terrific gales and in which the France made a gallant attempt to rescue the crew of a crippled British freighter in mid-ocean.

The France brought two involuntary passengers to New York, both of whom had been prevented from landing at Plymouth, England, by a whole gale in the English waters. These passengers were Captain William Williams, a Plymouth pilot, who said this was the first time in his twenty-three years' experience that a storm had prevented him from taking a ship into port, and Miss Doris White, a fair-haired 16-year-old English girl. Miss White had boarded the France at Havre, intending to go ashore when the ship touched at Plymouth, which is about 200 miles from Havre. When the France hove to five miles outside of Plymouth, Captain Williams went aboard to pilot her into the English port, but was finally prevented from doing so by the terrific gale.

Miss White, who was en route to her home in Davenport, England, for the Christmas holidays, from Paris, where she is attending school, and Pilot Williams will return to Europe on the France, which is scheduled to leave tonight. They expressed the hope when the ship docked last night that they would be permitted to "see the sights of New York today," before leaving.

Tell of Rescue Attempt.

All the passengers aboard the France and Captain Sir Arthur Rostron of the Berengaria were high in their praises of Captain Jean Simon of the France for his daring attempt to rescue the crew of the British freighter Volumina last Sunday and for his masterly handling of the ship in a fierce Atlantic hurricane and snowstorm. Captain Simon merely said that this had been the worst weather he had ever experienced.

The France received the Volumina's distress signals last Saturday morning, saying the 5,000-ton freighter had lost her rudder. Despite the fact that a howling gale was raging, sending seas sixty feet high, Captain Simon sped at 17 knots an hour to the aid of the British vessel, which was 200 miles distant. The France reached the vicinity of the Volumina last Saturday night and Captain Simon executed the dangerous maneouvre of turning his ship around in a beam sea.

Two freighters, the British vessel Manchester Regiment and the American ship Saco, were standing by the Volumina, but, like the France, they were powerless to aid the Volumina's crew, because of the gale. All night long the France played her searchlights on the stricken vessel. The weather did not abate sufficiently to send a lifeboat crew to the rescue, and finally last Sunday the France proceeded, leaving the Manchester Regiment and the Saco standing by. Last Sunday night Captain Simon received a message from the Manchester Regiment saying that the crew of the Volumina had been rescued.

Sir Arthur Rostron of the Berengaria said the crossing was one of the roughest he ever experienced in more than forty years on the Atlantic. The wind blew at times with hurricane force and the seas appeared fifty 80 feet high, he said.

Waves Smash Berengaria Deck.

At 4:30 P. M., Dec. 5, the day after leaving Cherbourg, a giant roller came over the starboard bow of the Berengaria, smashed eight windows on the forward end of the upper promenade deck, sixty feet above the water, carried away two big ventilators by the fo'c'sle and bent in concave form the half-inch steel bulkhead of the forward deck house.

Two nights later, during a hurricane of more than 100 miles velocity, with the liner reduced to a speed of five knots, another huge wave struck the starboard quarter and doubled up the bulkhead of the after wheelhouse containing the steering gear.

Five passengers suffered cuts and bruises, which were treated by Dr. J. D. Doherty, the senior surgeon of the ship. Charles Hiendhorn, 71 years old, a passenger, died of heart failure brought on by seasickness and nervousness.

Captain Rostron said the Berengaria rode over the waves well, and made the passage in 7 days, 20 hours and 18 minutes at an average speed of 16.41 knots, having been reduced for 102 hours. The lowest day's run, ended at noon Sunday, was 193 miles.

Two gangs of fifty men each were sent from Robbins Yard, Brooklyn, to the Berengaria soon after she had docked to repair the storm damage. The work will be completed before the ship sails at 12 o'clock tonight.

Among the Berengaria's first-cabin passengers was the Grand Duchess Kira, the 18-year-old daughter of the Grand Duke and Duchess Cyril of Russia, who has come to America as the guest of Mrs. Deming Jarves of Washington, D. C. She is a great-granddaughter of Queen Victoria and a niece of Queen Marie of Rumania.

Asked if it were true that King Boris had expressed a desire to marry her, the young Russian aristocrat smiled and replied: "I can say positively no to the question."

After a few days in New York she will visit the Siltorsky plant at Bridgeport, Conn., which is chiefly operated by Russian expatriates. A tea will be given in her honor at Delmonico's restaurant tomorrow afternoon by the members of the Russian colony in New York. In Chicago the Grand Duchess Kira expects to meet two cousins who are in business there. Her costume for landing was gray, with a mink coat and a soft brown hat. A single strand of small pearls was the only jewelry she wore.

Another passenger was Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, who said the seas appeared 75 feet high and were the highest he had ever seen in any part of the world. He said the repair work on the cables damaged by the recent earthquake had been delayed by the heavy weather prevailing over the Atlantic for the past two weeks.

Mr. Carlton added that he had instructed the officers of the cable ships to take soundings where the breaks had occurred but did not think these would show any dramatic changes in the ocean bottom from Nova Scotia southeastwardly though there probably would be minor changes and shiftings to indicate the extent of the earthquake disturbance.

Richard E. Enright, former Police Commissioner of New York, returned with Mrs. Enright from his brief visit to Europe as president of the International Police Association. He said he was surprised to hear of the second riot at Auburn prison.

"Year after year these questions of prison reform come up and nothing is done," Mr. Enright said. "We are still in the Stone Age of prison reform."

HARBORD DEMANDS PARTY DISCIPLINE

But Says Republicans in City Must Have Better Leadership to Obtain Cohesion.

SCORES LA GUARDIA BOLT

Mrs. Pratt, at Luncheon, Also Says Action to Strengthen the Local Management Is Needed.

The necessity for discipline in the Republican party in New York City was stressed yesterday by General James G. Harbord in a speech at a luncheon of the New York Young Republican Club in the Lawyers' Club. General Harbord added that a better quality of leadership was needed to get discipline.

General Harbord cited the result of the recent Mayoralty election and condemned the failure of many Republicans to support the party nominee for Mayor, Representative F. H. La Guardia. He said he believed that Mr. La Guardia had been entitled to the support of all Republicans because he was the party standard bearer. Discipline such as prevails in the army, he said, would have brought these Republicans to the support of Mr. La Guardia.

Mrs. Ruth B. Pratt, Representative in Congress and member of the Republican National Committee, who is a leading member of the original Hoover group believed to favor a general party reorganization in New York City, also indicated a belief that something should be done to improve the party leadership. Mrs. Pratt, however, said that it should not be necessary to lose old friends in getting new friends for the party organization.

Samuel S. Koenig, New York County Republican chairman, spoke of the desirability of getting cooperation from all elements willing to support the Republican party.

F. Hodges Combier, chairman of the State affairs committee of the club, emphasized the importance of getting a united party in preparation for the State election next year. Mr. Combier indicated that he did not favor further changes in party leadership.

"The purpose of this meeting," he said, "is to demonstrate that we have confidence in the capacity of our leaders to unite the party, eliminate friction and win the approval of the electorate."

McCREERY ARCADE OPENS.

Public Figures Hail Addition to 5th Avenue Department Store.

Former Governor Smith, Senator Wagner, Representative Ruth Pratt, Police Commissioner Whalen and Captain William J. Pedrick of the Fifth Avenue Association were among those who sent messages of congratulation to James McCreery & Co. on the opening of their new Fifth Avenue arcade between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth Streets yesterday. Throughout the day visitors were escorted through the four "little shops" that are the feature of the arcade.

"I send my heartiest congratulations to McCreery's on the opening of their new arcade," read the ex-Governor's telegram to C. P. Perrie, president of the company, continuing: "We are neighbors now on the finest avenue in the world, and McCreery's have done much to attain that standard."

WHOLESALE ARRESTS CHECK MINE STRIKE

Illinois Authorities Start Round-up of 49 Leaders of Insurgent Union on Riot Charges.

Special to The New York Times.

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Dec. 13 (AP).—With their efforts to spread the coal strike to Southern Illinois thwarted by deputies who used tear bombs, members of the National Miners' Union returned tonight to Christian County where their efforts have halted operations this week.

The number of strikers in this region continued to grow today when 200 workers in the Penwell Company mines at Pana voted to join the ranks of the National Miners' Union.

The first effort of authorities to round up ringleaders among the insurgent miners was made late today when the State's Attorney of Christian County obtained warrants for the arrest of forty-nine, charging rioting and inciting to riot. The sheriff and his deputies immediately began the round-up.

Word came from a mass meeting of strikers at Pana that mines at Bulpit and Nokomis were to be picketed. The meeting was held on the public square, and Frank Davis, an organizer for John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers, was ousted when he attempted to make a speech.

Deputies used tear bombs to disperse picket lines in the Coello Field near West Frankfort, Ill. At the Wasson Mine No. 1 in Harrisburg, a group of thirty, mostly women and children, harassed workers but no violence occurred.

Adjutant General Carlos E. Black promised mine operators full protection for every mine they chose to operate. National guardsmen and deputies, armed with machine guns, guarded mines at Pana and Nokomis today.

GOVERNMENT EFFICIENCY.

When Mr. OWEN YOUNG told the Senate committee that, in his opinion, government operation of a great utility company would not be so satisfactory as private management, Senator BROOKHART leaped to a characteristically perverse inference. "Then you do not believe in the Government of the United States?" Mr. YOUNG smilingly replied that he did believe in it, and let the matter go at that. But the question, while it makes one as anxious as CHARLES LAMB was to examine the bumps of an absurd talker, reveals what is probably a frequent confusion in the public mind. We may believe that our Government is the best in the world, but it does not follow that we believe it best fitted to do all our public work. It can do many things well. But of some things which it attempts it makes a pretty sad mess. However efficient it may prove itself in some directions, it is neither all-powerful nor all-wise. This is a country of delegated powers and rights and functions, and our historic policy has been not to concentrate too many of them in one person or one legislative agency. We have never wished to create in the United States a system like that which used to prevail in Russia, when a man could not build a house in Vladivostok until he had got his plans approved at St. Petersburg. If everything is loaded upon the Government, it loses what little efficiency it has and gets congestion of the brain, while the extremities are paralyzed.

Even Senator BROOKHART did not venture to say to Mr. YOUNG: "If you want efficiency, just look at the Senate!" For weary weeks and months that body has been a shining example of how not to do it. The Circumlocution Office was a miracle of speed compared with the Senatorial pace. There were hopes, and even promises, that the Senate would do better after the regular session had got under way. But it is the same old dreary and futile debating again, without getting forward except at a snail's pace. As the political humorist of The New Republic wrote: "The Senate cannot pass a bill, cannot pass the buck, and cannot even pass a given point." The present schedule is redolent of delay and disappointment. The tariff bill, which was to have been passed in August, may possibly drag itself out of the Senate in a mangled form by the end of February. Tax reduction must wait the convenience of Senators whose bosoms are stuffed with amendments. Then there are the big appropriation bills looming ahead. The House has begun its work on them, but when they reach the Senate they will fall into the creeping shadow which seems to overtake all the important business of that body. Does one believe in the Senate? Yes, but one believes that it should stick to its job without seeking fresh woods and pastures new for the display of its efficiency.

PUBLIC WELFARE WORK.

Departmental reorganization has long offered the City Administration an unusual opportunity for public service. It has already taken two important steps to bring about improvement. The consolidation of all the municipal hospitals under a single directing head should make for both efficiency and economy. The newly instituted Sanitary Commission has been given powers adequate to deal with the emergency created by long neglect of sewage disposal. The City Club recently gave its endorsement to another reorganization move that has been under discussion for some time among social workers. It has urged the Mayor to appoint a committee to consider the possibility of combining the Department of Public Welfare and the Board of Child Welfare. One has jurisdiction over all municipal institutions for the care of the destitute and infirm, as well as allowances to families of veterans and pensions to the blind. The other is charged with the administration in this city of the widows' pension act. Together they spend something like $16,000,000 on the care of the city's wards.

Without wishing finally to commit themselves to the wisdom of this step, several important groups of welfare workers have reached the conclusion that it is at least worth serious consideration. In another column on this page Mr. SOLOMON LOWENSTEIN of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies urges the appointment of a special committee to look into the matter and recommend a plan of action. Mayor WALKER took this sensible way when he first turned his attention to the hospital situation. It would seem entirely appropriate for him to follow the same course now. If responsible members of the administration could get together with representatives of the welfare societies, they should be able to devise a workable plan to avoid duplication and improve child-care methods.

Mayor WALKER himself has always taken a special interest in this side of the city's work. In his speech before the Merchants' Association the other day he spoke of his desire to extend it. If there is to be consolidation, now is a peculiarly good time to bring it about, because the Department of Public Welfare has lately been shorn of its hospital functions and, with the resignation of Commissioner COLER, has been left temporarily headless.

ONCE A YEAR.

"The grandest of heroic deeds are "those which are performed within "four walls in domestic privacy," said RICHTER. Full of such heroisms are the stories of New York's One Hundred Neediest Cases; the mother suffering from an incurable disease, but toiling to provide food for a child dying from heart trouble, and saying, "For me to die doesn't matter, but a boy of 15 might mind "dying"; the girl who on her meager earnings is supporting a father who cannot live, an ailing mother and six small children in a sunless tenement; the boy of 17, who had given promise of becoming a musician, working for a few dollars a week to care for his mother and three young children; the crippled man of 47 and his daughter of 16 making shift to feed and clothe six smaller children; the wife and husband, 80 years and over, who keep flowers blooming in their window.

These are but a few of the cases of courage and pathetic hope that make up the roll of the Neediest Cases. To read about them is to realize what the lives of the unfortunate may be in New York. Restoration of broken families, whose members are not asking for charity or expecting it, is the main purpose of the appeal.

It is a beautiful thing about this yearly statement of facts that sympathizers are willing to make sacrifices in order to help. Some who themselves have known adversity give from their small savings, and children are so touched by a story of wretchedness that they send in their pennies. In a way the Fund is a course in philanthropy. Many who had not been in contact with any form of relief make a gift to the Hundred Neediest Cases, repeat or increase it another year, and the habit is formed. No one was ever sorry to be a contributor. If it involves a sacrifice it will be a satisfaction to light a candle in a world so dark for the destitute and friendless at the season when most of us "play and make good cheer."

RETURNING TO THEIR MUTTONS

Were it not for the sadness caused by the successive splits and defeats of the Coalition on the wool schedules, the debates in the Senate on the subject would have been a pure joy. Poetry is combined with business. Some light has been thrown on the often misunderstood character of the sheep. It appears from the reminiscences of Mr. FESS that ovine lawn-mowers used to shave the verdant closes of Antioch College. How dangerously sheep and shepherd live was told by Mr. SMOOT in a passage rich in imaginative suggestion and disclosing in one delicious touch the sound Republicanism of the '80s:

> Do you want to take care of the man who raises the sheep, who spends his time in Winters and Summers away from home, guarding and protecting them against wild animals of every kind, and all the inclement weather that comes in the mountains and the floods? Why, Mr. President, when I owned sheep myself—and I sold them just as soon as GROVER CLEVELAND was elected—I want to say to you that I have had as high as 1,100 head drowned in one day. They were off in the desert; they were thirsty; they came in for water; and if they happen to come in at a place where there is a steep bank, the first one goes in, and all of them follow and they are smothered.

These Winter nights promise to the reader of the Congressional Record many an exhilarating hour over wool rags and mungo and noils, carbonized and uncarbonized. Mr. WALSH of Montana, who represents the second wool-growing State in the Union, voted against an increase of the duty on virgin wool because he thought the additional three cents would bring so little to the sheep-raiser that he wouldn't know he had received it. As the Senate had consented to the increase, he wanted higher rates on woolen rags and other substitutes. He said:

> It is my judgment, generally speaking, that those who are engaged in a particular industry are the best judges of what is for their own interest; and all of those engaged in the sheep and wool industry are here asking that this duty be imposed at a very substantial rate.

That is plain "Grundyism." "Best judges" tell the Senate what they want. This is not to say that their interest is selfish and individual. They are looking after what they believe to be the interests of their States and of the country. The vote on the wool rags amendment, dividing regular Republicans as well as the Coalition, is an instructive lesson in tariff-making and in the hollowness of the vindictive nagging of Mr. GRUNDY by so many of his present colleagues.

ANNIVERSARY OF THE WIRELESS.

Spoiled children of an age of wonders, we have grown to accept nonchalantly even such miracles as the practically instantaneous receipt in Times Square of radiograms dispatched by Commander BYRD as he flies across the South Pole. But even this blasé generation must have thrilled to the account broadcast from London yesterday by GUGLIELMO MARCONI of the history of his invention—the wireless. Twenty-eight years ago this week the first transoceanic message was successfully sent from Cornwall to Newfoundland by Mr. MARCONI'S equipment, and it was in recollection of this that he stepped to the microphone in England yesterday and, with the entire world as his immediate audience, reviewed the amazing story.

Mr. MARCONI first signalized his belief in wireless communication as early as 1896, and before the last century was ended he effected ship-to-shore transmission abroad. But this hemisphere did not awaken to what was being done to aerial distance until the three dots which spelled the letter "s" came to this newspaper by relay from Cornwall in 1901. It is a source of satisfaction to THE NEW YORK TIMES that early in the history of wireless it encouraged and utilized the invention in every possible way. One of Mr. MARCONI'S primary difficulties was in sending transoceanic messages westward. This was surmounted, and on Oct. 17, 1907, when a regular westward service was opened, the first message was addressed to THE TIMES. When the steamship Republic was sinking, this newspaper had become so identified with support of wireless that JACK BINNS addressed his famous account of the rescue to this office. That was in 1909 and is remembered as the most dramatic evidence of what the Marconi system meant in preserving human life. But over a year before a correspondent of The Chicago Tribune aboard the Cymric dispatched to that newspaper and to this one the story of how it rescued those aboard the burning St. Cuthbert. By extensive patronage of the wireless company on the part of THE TIMES, service was so improved that for several years before the war a great quantity of our foreign correspondence came through the air.

At the outset, when coherent messages were first published, readers could hardly be brought to believe that they were authentic. To that age—the Kitty Hawk period of aviation, when motorists spent most of their time under their machines trying to make them go—the ability to be astounded to the point of incredulity was the happy lot of man. Now it almost seems that a dispatch from a geological party on the moon would be taken as calmly as breakfast coffee.

IMMIGRATION QUOTAS.

Immigrants from Europe during the last fiscal year, according to the report of the Secretary of Labor, numbered 158,598. This is almost exactly the number of arrivals during the previous year. The report would therefore seem justified in speaking of immigration from Europe as stabilized in close accord with the limit set in the quota law. That limit, incidentally, shrinks officially from 164,667 in the 1890-population test to the 150,000 provided in the national-origins test proclaimed by President HOOVER for the fiscal year ending next June. It, however, the total of immigrants from Europe closely approximates the total quota, the same cannot be said for the individual quotas by countries. Thus the report points out that Italy's quota is 3,845, but the number of Italian immigrants admitted was 19,083. The difference is virtually accounted for by 6,303 wives and 7,202 minor children of American citizens of Italian origin, who are exempt from the quota.

Under the circumstances, the wonder is that the total number of arrivals falls well within the quota. It is obvious that if non-quota immigrants were regularly four times the quota arrivals, as in the case of Italy, the total of aliens admitted would be nearer half a million than the approximately 160,000 actually recorded. Part of the explanation is found in one European country which refuses to take advantage of its quota. This is Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the arrivals from which were 23,576, although the quota is 34,007. This disparity, however, is small compared with what the future seems destined to show, for the British quota under the new apportionment has been raised to 65,884, while emigration from Great Britain has been progressively declining. The changes effected by substitution of the national-origins test for the 1890-population test consisted in this multiplication of the British quota nearly by two, the slicing of the German quota to less than half and the reduction of the Scandinavian quotas still more drastically.

In practice, therefore, the total national-origins quota is likely to be nearer to 100,000 than to 150,000. During the discussion of the relative merits of the two quota systems the point was made that Great Britain was being offered 65,500 immigrants annually, despite the fact that she was not availing herself of her existing quota of 34,000. To this the answer was made that temporary conditions served to hold down British emigration, and that the figures were bound to rise under our new immigration policy. There were cited British figures of visa applicants amounting to several times the annual quota. But experience has made it plain that apparently three out of four Englishmen who express an intention to emigrate to the United States undergo a change of heart before departure. When the Secretary of Labor's report says that in the future the arrivals from Europe may be "considerably below" the quota allotments he is very probably thinking of Great Britain. A heavy British deficit is accepted as a certainty in other quarters, which regard the fact with equanimity, on the ground that the national-origins law is designed to be "restrictive" as well as selective.

TERMS OF THE CITY LOAN.

Wednesday's award to competitive bidders for the $65,000,000 New York City 4½ per cent serial bonds, mostly with a maximum maturity of fifty years, was gratifying in so far as a premium of nearly 2⅝ per cent was obtained. The result undoubtedly justified the Controller's decision, a month or so ago, to postpone his sale until the Wall Street panic had subsided; but it was not so gratifying as was the recent oversubscription to the Treasury's $325,000,000 nine months' 3⅛ per cent loan. For that offering, the accepted terms were the most favorable of any United States loan since November, 1927. The highest bid for the city loan made the net interest charge 4.351 per cent per annum and was less favorable than the bid for the loans of November and February, 1928, in which the net charge was 4.2002 and 3.866 per cent respectively.

It will cost the city less than the 4.8065 per cent paid on a four-year loan last May, but the nearer maturity made that bid not fairly comparable. As a matter of fact, Wednesday's award was made on terms less advantageous to the city than those of any loan since the $55,000,000 fifty-year 4½ per cent loan of December, 1921. That the result compared less favorably with recent years than the Treasury's December financing was doubtless chiefly due to the fact that money-market uncertainties of the longer future had to be considered, whereas the Federal borrowing on nine-months' certificates reflected the great ease in Wall Street's short-term money rates after the immense stock market liquidation.

In May, 1927, New York City could congratulate itself on placing a 4 per cent long-term loan at a premium, for the first time since 1909. It has not retained that gratifying position; the terms of this week's bid for the 4½ per cent borrowing would have meant a slight discount from par on a 4 per cent issue. The market for the city bonds has traveled far since New York sold $100,000,000 of 6 per cents at par in September, 1914. But that was a result of previous unwise financing, which had placed in France and England $80,000,000 New York City bonds, payable abroad in gold at the unlucky date of December, 1914. The new loan raised in the Autumn of that year had to allow for obtaining the necessary gold to export against the maturity, at a time when a "gold panic" had seized the entire financial world.

OUR SIBYLLINE BOOKS.

In tradition, the books which contained the destinies of the Roman State were kept in the Temple of Jupiter Capitolinus, where special officers were permitted to consult them on certain high occasions and to interpret them to the public. The most interesting and significant portion of the report of the Librarian of Congress is that which recounts the progress made in carrying out a plan for the development of a system of research consultants, selected because of their peculiar qualifications to give guidance and advice to those who wish to make intensive use of the Library of Congress. Gifts have come from private sources to make possible this new and valuable service. The vast building on our national Capitoline Hill must be still enlarged to accommodate its growing treasure, and "the college of consultants" gives promise of serving a purpose which a separate institution with the title of university could hardly surpass.

Graduate students from various universities of the United States, and in fact from Europe, come to Washington to pursue studies and researches because of the exceptional material that is accessible there, both in the library itself and in the departmental archives and laboratories; and the presence of specialists of high ability and repute is attracting increasing numbers. These studies range from geology to the fine arts. After the close of the fiscal year, but before the report could go to Congress, the range was widened or heightened by the establishment of a "chair of aeronautics," carrying an endowment from the Daniel Guggenheim Fund of $75,000, with $51,000 for the acquisition of material. It is hoped that the "chairs" already established will be increased in number till all the fields of great public fertility are covered.

Here is a sort of Sibylline collection of books in which the destinies of the American nation are written as fully as the most highly competent human minds can discern them in the records of rocks, in human passions and hopes, and in social, economic and political institutions. Here is a potential national university which does not involve the expense and perils of an independent organization. It is and will be a competitor of no existing institution, but will collaborate with all. Such an enterprise suggests, moreover, how private wealth may be permanently useful in putting America's cultural possessions to highest and widest use.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Wasteful Election.

When a purely partisan move in the game of politics is at the same time a stroke in the public interest, politicians who make it feel very virtuous. An occasion of the sort is reported from Wyoming, where the Democratic State Committee has acted to insure the lengthened tenure of a Republican, the newly appointed Senator SULLIVAN. Under the terms of a law passed in 1927, he must win his seat at a special election, to be held soon, even though success will give title only until March, 1931. The committee has petitioned the Legislature to repeal this law and let Mr. SULLIVAN serve until a successor is chosen next November.

The reason given by the Democrats is that the special election would add to the already heavy tax burdens of the citizens of Wyoming. The committee is willing to waive any chance its own candidate might have to defeat Mr. SULLIVAN at the special election, and reserve its efforts for next November.

Cynics may say that the Democrats couldn't win if the special election were held, and that therefore their gesture is hollow. But so handsome a gift horse should not be inspected in that spirit, and it is to be hoped that the Legislature will accept the suggestion. The only reason the special election law exists is because a Democrat was Governor in 1927, when Senator WARREN was ill, and it was passed to prevent a Democratic appointment.

The "Outside World" in the Day's News.

So sensational was the nature of the local and national news printed in yesterday's NEW YORK TIMES that the average reader was perhaps less conscious than usual of the extraordinary range of world events that are covered from day to day. No less than twenty-six columns—the equivalent of three and a quarter pages—were devoted to dispatches from foreign sources or dealing directly with foreign affairs.

Had any one suggested before the war that so much space would be given on a single day in the year 1929 to news from all over the world, he would have been regarded as unbalanced. In yesterday's issue the range of subjects and of countries covered was almost as remarkable as the volume of news. There were stories from South America, China, Haiti and Hungary. Some dealt with floods and war problems, others with business. Several of the articles originated in this country—that is, they came from Washington or New York and bore directly on America's part in the coming naval conference and on the latest subterranean methods of the sugar lobbyists to enlist Latin-Americans. The details are not so important as the proof which these many stories furnish of a growing realization that we are inextricably related to the rest of the world.

A Variable Standard.

With the full authority of the United States Bureau of Standards, it has been announced that the ideal woman is now 34. Let no lady presume that this figure refers to age. It simply means that the bureau has pronounced size 34 as "standard" for feminine proportions—bust 34, waist 28, hips 37.

The "perfect 36" which used to describe the ideal figure is now officially outmoded. Flapper slimness has long been fashionable, and plumpness a synonym for dowdiness. At a time when athletics for girls are unprecedentedly popular, one might have supposed that the national chest measurement would tend to expand. Swimming, rowing, tennis, golf, tramping and camping should add inches rather than subtract them.

Of course the diminished ideal may merely mean that modern women have trained—or dieted—down to muscle and bone. Or the announcement that "size 34" is "standard" may simply mean it is the most admired though not the most common. Certainly the movies and the stage seem to feature smaller heroines and stars, and even smaller chorus girls, than formerly. Novels and short stories seldom revolve around large, statuesque maidens.

The government studies were undertaken for the benefit of the makers of women's clothing. It is to be hoped that the sudden new trend in fashion will not make women belie the official figures. If current styles repeat the frills and furbelows and long skirts of the Mauve Decade, the ideal feminine figure may once more take on Victorian proportions.

The British and the National Theatre.

All sorts of reasons for backing the proposed National Theatre have been mustered by critics, statesmen and dramatists since last July, when Prime Minister MACDONALD offered to listen sympathetically to the joint schemes of the Shakespeare Memorial Committee and the National Theatre Committee. Apologies for the laggard committees, which have languished for some twenty-five years, are abundant, and suggestions for meeting all objections are found on every hand.

The Manchester Guardian is one of the latest defenders of the plan. Like most of the others, it has its own idea of what should be done to keep the national theatre from stagnation, from unfair competition with unsubsidized houses and from the evils of censorship. Holding up the Comédie-Française—recently ridiculed by LÉON DAUDET and other Frenchmen as a stronghold of artificiality—as an example of high standards, it gives us with a toast and a flourish Mr. HARLEY GRANVILLE-BARKER as first commander of the endowed theatre.

The whole idea of a theatre which must be supported by the government is so foreign to the American public and the theatrical profession here that it is difficult to take this suggestion with the proper solemn air. But if such a plan were to be put into operation here, we should like to see the most experienced and practical, and the least poetic, manager in charge.

An Appreciation of America.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have been in the United States for nearly two months interviewing American manufacturers who are contemplating the establishment of foreign branch plants at the port of Liverpool and I have addressed Chambers of Commerce and other trade associations in some of your principal cities on the subject.

Before I sail for England tomorrow I desire to express my gratitude to THE TIMES for keeping me in touch with world affairs and with home; to the spirit of friendliness which greeted me everywhere and made me fall in love with America almost at first sight, and to American cookery, which, in disproof of gloomy predictions on the other side, never gave a chronic dyspeptic like myself a single twinge of indigestion.

As the official representative of the city of Liverpool I feel that I owe America a vote of thanks for sending me back happy and well and rich in new friendships, but full of regrets for leaving her so soon.

A Matter of Environment.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Many persons must wonder why Joseph R. Grundy, after his experiences with the United States Senate, should wish to become a member of that august body. May I suggest the following theory?

Mr. Grundy's remarks about "backward commonwealths" attracted nation-wide attention, and it was generally agreed that he had made a fool of himself. Meanwhile Senators were making fools of themselves every day and attracting no attention at all. The public was used to it; the Senate was constitutionally incapable of perceiving it. Perhaps Mr. Grundy foresees that some day the impulse to make a fool of himself will come over him once more; he seeks the shelter of the one organization in which a man may make a fool of himself as much as he likes, and retain the unmitigated admiration of his colleagues.

IN CHURCH.

I cannot pray when flowers rare have blown Away and winds sing notes of minor
range,
When boughs are swaying with a motion strange,
And every living thing is making moan.
I go to church and hear the choir in-tone
Soft hymns, but thoughts above the range
Of dome and spires will haunt me with the change
From Autumn's song to Winter's monotone.
The Bishop bows his head, exhorting all
To pray, and kneels devout in flowing frock.
But I remember as I crossed the Mall
Today a lost bird's call to the southbound flock.
A pagan I must be. I've tried in vain
To greet with cheer December's snow and rain.

CARE OF CHILDREN.

Committee Should Be Named to Find Best Available Plan.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mayor Walker recently announced that one of the problems awaiting early solution would be the reorganization of those functions of the City Government now exercised by the Department of Public Welfare and the Board of Child Welfare.

All modern private child-caring agencies recognize that the best interests of any individual child requiring assistance from sources other than his own family may indicate at any given time utilization of a variety of methods of care. For example, adoption, placement in private homes either free of charge or by payment of board, care in an institution or, best of all, when there is a surviving mother who is physically and morally competent to care for her children, by the provision of funds to enable her to maintain her children at home.

In the case of a private agency prepared to act in its own discretion and wisdom, the choice of which of these methods shall be used is determined solely by the child's own welfare.

Under our present plan of governmental organization there is no such centralized authority when children require the support of the city. Any of these methods can be utilized by the city, but the responsibility is divided between the two departments mentioned, with resultant difficulty of arriving at a wise decision in any given case.

By reason of the recent withdrawal from the jurisdiction of the Department of Public Welfare of hospitals previously under its control, the work of that department has been very considerably reduced. When the Department of Hospitals was created a year ago it was done as the result of a careful preliminary study by a committee appointed by the Mayor, containing in its membership both city officials and representatives of the public qualified to pass upon the various plans submitted.

It would appear desirable that a similar procedure be followed with regard to the preliminary study of the situation described above and to which the Mayor is evidently giving careful thought. The progress in modern child-care methods during the past quarter century has been very marked. The matter of the best possible preparation of the wards of the city for their future life as citizens of the community is so important that it would appear highly desirable that the city agencies for such care should have the advantage of the best modern practice in the field, and it is submitted that this can be brought about best by the appointment of such a committee as is herein suggested for the careful consideration of the entire subject and the presentation of appropriate recommendations to the Mayor and other interested public officials.

Sino-Japanese Relations.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was distressed to read the heading in THE TIMES of Dec. 8, "Blakeslee Fears Chino-Japan War: Treaty of 1905 May Lead to a Future Clash, He Tells Foreign Policy Group Here."

I do not expect a Sino-Japanese war. I do expect that the two nations will settle this issue peacefully. I believe that the prospects of a satisfactory solution have been greatly enhanced by the recent Kyoto conference.

There is no denying, however, the difficulty and the danger of the South Manchuria problem, nor the strong nationalistic feeling of the politically minded Chinese in that region. It was to show the attitude of some of them that I quoted the extreme statement, made not by me but by some of the Chinese, "It may well mean war in the days of our children." But I also pointed out that among both Chinese and Japanese there are not only strong nationalists but conciliatory moderates; and that many Japanese, including some of their leading men, are anxious to do everything possible to win the good-will of the Chinese.

The Kyoto conference led to valuable personal friendships between Chinese and Japanese, clarified the issues, enabled both groups to understand better the points of view and the feelings of the other, and started a study of practical proposals which it is planned to continue in the near future.

Tunnel and Ferries.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES'S correspondent Carroll D. Winslow springs from the ambush of his electric ferries to bear witness to THE TIMES editorial discussing the income and payment of the Holland Tunnel bonds.

He does not show that the income of the Holland Tunnel is insufficient. He only suggests that the income will be insufficient. He further destroys the effectiveness of his statement by admitting the Holland Tunnel is making money, but not enough. He elaborates on the faint hope it can't make more because, he says, there are now traffic tie-ups and traffic congestion on days when the tunnel traffic is heavy.

I would state, as a student of city planning, first, that a ferry traffic connection between two points separated by a water barrier is as dependable as the weather.

Secondly, that the commercial, industrial and community activities of the city of New York are so highly developed that their success and prosperity depend upon their uninterrupted continuance.

Thirdly, that the Holland Tunnel is a perpetually open line of transport connecting Manhattan with the mainland and this fact earns a community income for the commercial, industrial and community activities of the city of New York.

GEN. ELY SEES NEED FOR PREPAREDNESS

Prospects of Disarmament and Stripping Clamour From War Do Not Alter Case, He Says.

WOULD AVERT BLOODSHED

But We Must Be Ready for It, He He Tells Veterans—Such Thing as "Horrors of Peace," He Adds.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Dec. 12.—Despite the prospect of international disarmament agreements and the widespread reading of war novels stripping war of its glamour, adequate preparedness against war is still a necessity for the United States, Major Gen. Hanson E. Ely, commander of the Second Army Corps Area, said tonight in an address at the annual dinner of the New Jersey Commandery, Military Order of Foreign Wars, held here at the Winfield Scott Hotel. The armed forces of the nation, said the General, are like fire and police departments and do not mean a desire for bloodshed, but a determination to prevent it or meet it if it comes.

"'Let us abolish war!' say some well-meaning persons," declared the General. "God hasten the time when war shall be no more! But the abolition of war is not in the control of any nation.

"'Let us cease to prepare for war and so set an example to the rest of the world,' say some other persons. Such persons delude themselves. They would have us believe that the sheep are safer from the wolves when all watchdogs are driven away and killed than when these self-same watchdogs vigilantly patrol the spaces between the grazing sheep and unchanged, fierce-eyed wolves.

"To this point our President has well said: 'I have no faith in the reduction of armaments by example alone.'

"Every individual in his or her right senses desires peace. Men like you who have witnessed the horrors and sufferings of war have a deep longing for peace. But you rightly demand that peace be had without the sacrifice of our independence or of those principles of right and justice that are the basis of all civilization.

"You would no more bow your heads in submission now than in 1917, when we were told that our ships must cross the ocean on a certain course on certain days of the week in limited numbers only, otherwise they would be sunk. They were sunk with loss of lives of our nationals. There is such a thing as the horrors of peace being more unendurable than the horrors of war."

Commenting that Commander Byrd's flight over the South Pole could not have been made without preparedness, General Ely continued:

"You veterans of foreign wars cannot all be Byrds exploring icy continents under the Southern Cross, but you can explore the icy barrens of ignorance of national defense on the part of your fellow-men. You may be surprized at the peaks of fallacy or the depressions of absolute ignorance, the crevasses of falsehood or the pressure ridges of misstatements, and even encounter actual inroads made by the 'killer-whales' who would destroy our security without compunction."

ASSAILS HUMANIST CULT.

Dr. W. W. White Says New Religion Cannot Be Propagative.

The new religion of Humanism cannot be propagative, Dr. Wilbert W. White, president of the Biblical Seminary of New York, declared yesterday at a conference of faculty members and students in the seminary chapel, 235 East Forty-ninth Street. Dr. White quoted excerpts from sermons on Humanism and asserted that the Humanist objection to Christianity was based largely on a misconception of the central motive of Christianity, the essence of which, he said, is "its interest in humanity."

"The Humanists do not recognize that the interest they have in humanity comes from Christ Himself," Dr. White declared. "They are operating on the momentum which they, in their own lives, have received from Christianity. They cut themselves off from the roots of Christianity. Therefore they cannot be propagative. Humanism is a parasite taking the life out of a living organism. The Humanists are all indebted to Christianity, but they do not recognize their parentage."

Dr. White described the religion of Humanism as a "half-way house" and said it offered a challenge to the church to do its duty toward meeting human needs.

BRITISH VETERANS HONORED

American Legion Head at Luncheon Urges Work for Peace.

The promotion of international good-will is the task of World War veterans, according to O. L. Bodenhamer, national commander of the American Legion, who was host at a luncheon at the Hotel St. Regis yesterday in honor of the British officers, members of the delegation of the British Empire Service League, who recently placed a wreath at the foot of the Eternal Light and honored American World War dead in other parts of the country.

"If we stand together in presenting a solid front," he said, "our ideals in unity, and suppressing the petty incidents which all too readily sway great peoples, the force of the English-speaking veterans would present a bulwark for peace which can and will tend to prevent the repetition of that orgy of bloodshed through which we passed."

The guests of honor included Captain Sir E. Beachcroft Towse, Captain Donald Simpson, honorary secretary of the British Empire Service League; Colonel H. de Salles La Terriere, Capt. V. de Sarigny, Captain H. Arthur Evans and Captain F. Johnson.

T. A. Kunst of Hollis Captured Machine Gun Post in France.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Theodore A. Kunst of Hollis, L. I., formerly battalion sergeant major in the headquarters company of the 107th Infantry, Twenty-seventh Division, was today cited by the War Department for bravery near Vendhuile, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

"After his battalion commander and adjutant had been wounded," the citation said, "Battalion Sergeant Major Kunst, without regard for his own personal safety, voluntarily organized a detachment of men and led them into effective combat, capturing an enemy machine-gun post that was inflicting heavy losses upon our troops."

CLUB IN PALM BEACH READY FOR SEASON

Bath and Tennis Manager Supervises Adding of 10 Cabanas for January Opening.

R. L. JORDANS ARE HOSTS

They Have Picnic Luncheon at Boca Raton Club—Mrs. Peter Doelger Is Among Arrivals.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Dec. 12.—Members of the Bath and Tennis Club who have already arrived in Palm Beach are enjoying the daily use of their cabanas and of the pool, although the formal opening of the club will not take place until the first of January. Several changes have been made since last season. Ten new cabanas have been set up in the space formerly occupied by tables and benches around the beach cafeteria, which will not be in use this year.

R. O. Middleton, manager of the club, arrived several weeks ago to direct alterations and additions. John Cardegna, tennis professional, has arrived for the season.

Moby Dick, the large schooner yacht which belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Fish, is the latest addition of the fleet awaiting the arrival of the owners. Mr. and Mrs. Fish will arrive in Palm Beach in January.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Macdonald of Morristown, N. J., arrived this morning to spend the season at their Sea Spray Avenue villa.

The Earl and Countess of Gosford, who spent a few days at the Hotel Royal Worth in West Palm Beach, have returned to New York.

Lady Gosford's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Claflin, have leased their Palm Beach house this season to Mr. and Mrs. Milton W. Holden.

SERVICES HELD HERE FOR HENRY G. CROSBY

Funeral of Mrs. Bigelow, the Other Victim in Duel Shooting, Is in Old Lyme, Conn.

While funeral services were being held yesterday for Henry Grew Crosby, poet, and Mrs. Josephine Rotch Bigelow, wife of a Harvard graduate student, who were found dead Tuesday night in a studio apartment in the Hotel des Artistes, 1 West Sixty-seventh Street, the attempts of police to find a motive for the double shooting were still unsuccessful.

Funeral services for Mr. Crosby, who, the police believe, shot Mrs. Bigelow and then himself, were held in the morning at the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Heavenly Rest, Fifth Avenue and Ninetieth Street. The Rev. Dr. Henry Darlington, rector of the church, conducted the services. Among the few persons who attended the services were Mrs. Caresse Crosby, the widow, and Crosby's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Van Rensselaer Crosby of Boston.

Following the services the body was cremated. Stanley Mortimer Jr., portrait painter, in whose apartment the couple were found, announced on behalf of the Crosby family that the ashes would be taken to Paris by the widow.

The body of Mrs. Bigelow was taken to Old Lyme, Conn., for burial. Her husband, Albert Bigelow, former Harvard hockey star, and New York relatives accompanied the body.

Mr. Mortimer, though admitting that relatives "were mystified as to the motive for the tragedy," advanced "temporary insanity" as a possible cause yesterday.

COUNT SAYS BROTHER TRIED TO KILL HIM

Leo Hardegg Charges Max Drew Revolver, Threatening to Shoot, During Movie Show.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Dec. 12.—The scene at the Schwarzenberg Movie Palace here last night has resulted in a charge of attempted fratricide, made by Count Leo Hardegg and his wife against Count Max Hardegg.

Count Max Hardegg the senior, the father of the two brothers and one of the richest members of the old Hapsburg aristocracy, has run through part of the vast fortune and contracted debts of $150,000 in the last two years. Although still possessed of a considerable fortune which the creditors cannot claim, Count Max the senior cut the allowance of his son, Count Leo, to $80 a month, believing Count Leo was responsible for his affairs being placed in the hands of the trustee. The younger Count Max supported his father's action against Count Leo.

When the lights were turned on between the acts of the film drama, Count Leo recognized his brother sitting in the next row and overwhelmed him with reproaches. In the darkness of the ensuing act, Count Max rose and, according to Count Leo, drew his revolver and threatened both Count Leo and his wife.

Both Counts were removed, struggling, to the manager's office, where police were summoned to arrest the alleged would-be murderer.

DR. J. H. ROGERS DIES; RADIO INVENTOR

Pioneer in Underground and Undersea Communication by Wireless.

HELPED NAVY IN THE WAR

Submarines Able to Send Messages While Submerged—Experiments in Dugout at Front.

Special to The New York Times.

HYATTSVILLE, Md., Dec. 12.—Dr. James Harris Rogers, inventor of multiplex telegraph printing machines and pioneer in underground and underwater radio communication, died suddenly here today of heart disease at the age of 79.

His other inventions included cylindrical automatic telegraphy, an improved electric light, a central telephone system, the thermotele meter, an insulated submarine cable and apparatus for automatic synchronism and the production of high-frequency oscillating current. From 1877 to 1883 he was chief electrician in the Capitol at Washington.

Dr. Rogers in his young manhood attended St. Charles's College, London; the University of Maryland and Georgetown University, receiving degrees in science from the last two. In 1919 the Maryland Legislature commended him by resolution for his scientific achievements.

During the World War he won recognition by devising means of successful radio communication with submarines. For a certain period he had a dugout on the front in France in which high government officials heard messages sent from the great radio centres of Europe. From Germany they heard stories broadcast telling of German achievements on the battlefront. The secret of the dugout was well guarded. Visitors, no matter of what rank, were not allowed to come in uniform.

A patent for undersea radio communication was granted to Dr. Rogers on May 13, 1919. Later the patent right was questioned and the case was fought in the courts for a long time. Dr. Rogers won in the lower court, but Federal Judge Soper at Baltimore decided against him.

COL. CHARLES GOODNIGHT.

Pioneer of Texas Panhandle Dies at 93 in Tucson, Ariz.

GOODNIGHT, Texas, Dec. 12 (AP).—Colonel Charles Goodnight, 93 years old, who blazed cattle trails and fought Indians in the early days of the Southwest and became one of the largest ranchers in Texas, died today at Tucson, Ariz., where he was spending the Winter.

He is survived by his widow, whom he married about two years ago. His first wife died four years ago and on his ninety-first birthday he married Miss Corinne Goodnight of Butte, Mont., then 26 years old. Miss Goodnight was not a relative.

Colonel Goodnight was known as the "Father of the Texas Panhandle." Born in Macoupin County, Ill., he was brought to Texas as a child. Before the Civil War he began raising cattle, and during the struggle between the States he was a guide and scout for a frontier regiment.

In 1866 in partnership with John G. Adair of Wrathdair, Ireland, Colonel Goodnight was grazing 100,000 head of cattle.

Colonel Adair attracted national attention years ago by domesticating buffalo. He succeeded in crossing buffalo with polled angus cows and produced what is known as the catallo, an unusual beef animal, having fourteen ribs instead of the thirteen usual for a cow.

The pioneer disposed of most of his ranch holdings in recent years, but had led an active life until his final illness, resulting from an attack of influenza.

FROM THE FOUNDER'S WRITINGS

No One Has a Right to Rob His Son or Daughter of a noble and virtuous example.

Preoccupation, absence from the family circle owing to business necessities, intensity of study and personal engagements in the work of authorship may seem natural and excusable, but nevertheless the fact remains that one's own offsprings have the first call and claim upon the father and mother to set their children the right example and give them practical guidance in forming the habits of life. Does it seem so to you?

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. White Send $1,000 and $678 Comes From the Wilbur Estate.

TWO $500 GIFTS RECEIVED

One Is From W. L. Johnson, the Other Is a Memorial—Letters Voice Eagerness to Aid in the Work.

An unknown woman walked into the office on the street level of the Times Building at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and went directly to the cashier's window.

"I want to contribute to the One Hundred Neediest," she said.

She laid a one-thousand-dollar note on the window ledge as the cashier reached for the proper record blank.

"What name?" the cashier asked.

The young woman cashier has asked this question under the same circumstances year after year, always in the middle of a cold afternoon about a fortnight before Christmas.

The answer has always been, as it was yesterday, "Anonymous."

There was no attempt at conversation. There never is. The cashier remembers the kindly face outside the window only vaguely, for she sees it only once a year; and she does not even know whether the unknown contributor returns to an automobile waiting at the street edge or calls a taxicab. This annual transaction was accomplished yesterday so quietly that no one at the busy counters on either side of the cashier's cage knew that it was not just another five-dollar note for a "Help Wanted" advertisement instead of a thousand-dollar reply to one.

Fund Still Far From Goal.

The replies yesterday to the Eighteenth Annual Appeal for New York's One Hundred Neediest Cases added $12,996.64 to a fund which now stands at $67,207.08 and must still go to $338,111.01 if the same relief is to be extended this year as last.

The relief was described in a letter received yesterday from Robert W. de Forest, president of the Charity Organization Society, one of the nine organized charities that submit their cases to THE NEW YORK TIMES for annual selection of the neediest of all. Mr. de Forest is a lawyer who is also vice president of the American Red Cross and president of the Russell Sage Foundation for the Improvement of Social and Living Conditions. He had deposited his contribution of $250 with the Charity Organization Society the previous day and his letter became available for publication yesterday, as follows:

Hundred Neediest Cases Fund:

It always gives me a great deal of satisfaction to send my check for the Hundred Neediest Cases. I consider that THE NEW YORK TIMES is doing one of the most constructive pieces of social work that is being done anywhere and I am glad to have a part in it.

As president of the New York Charity Organization Society I have an excellent opportunity to see the results accomplished each year. The Charity Organization Society maintains a staff of eighty college women specially trained for their work. Their best efforts are bent on restoring to independence the unfortunate families that come to the society for help. This, however, is a slow process and many of the families need material help while they are working toward their goal of self-maintenance. The fund raised by THE NEW YORK TIMES makes such hel, possible.

I wish to express to you my sincerest thanks both as president of the Charity Organization Society for the efficient help which you give the society and as a member of the New York public who is privileged to contribute.

I send you my best wishes for the success of this year's appeal.

Sincerely yours,

ROBERT W. DE FOREST.

Wilbur Trust Gift Sent.

Among the 427 contributions received yesterday was one from a trust established by the late James B. Wilbur, banker and philanthropist, who thought so highly of the One Hundred Neediest Cases Fund that he set aside $100,000 at interest to continue his contribution after his death. The interest available since his death some months ago was $678.99. This contribution was transmitted yesterday by C. O. Price, trust officer of the Bankers Trust Company, with the expressed hope that the Wilbur estate would be adjusted so that the Neediest Fund might receive the full benefit of the trust next year. He wrote in part as follows:

"We are enclosing a check to the order of THE NEW YORK TIMES One Hundred Neediest Cases Fund for $678.99. This represents the first remittance of income due as a contribution from the trust created under Article 10 of the supplemental indenture dated March 5, 1928, to the James B. Wilbur trust indenture dated Aug. 12, 1919, for the benefit of THE NEW YORK TIMES One Hundred Neediest Cases Fund."

Yesterday's mail also brought a check for $1,000 from Mr. and Mrs. James Gilbert White, $500 from Walter L. Sedgwick of the governing committee of the New York Stock Exchange, and $500 in memory of G. H. M. and S. S. M., to be applied to Case 8 or Case 1; a check for $250 from Mrs. Jerome J. Hanauer; five checks for $200 each came from B. F. Bloch, Charles E. Miller, M. Newberg, Anonymous and "Christmas Greetings from a Friend." Twenty-seven contributors sent $100 each; forty-two asked to be published as "anonymous"; and fifty-seven were sent in memoriam.

Many contributions were accompanied by letters telling how the givers felt about this charity or why they were moved to give. Typical letters are quoted, in whole or in part, as follows:

Saves Pennies All Year.

A Night Doorman—Being a man of 63 but lucky at having employment as a doorman at $90 a month, $20 of which goes for rent, I guess you will wonder how I am going to give my mite, if ever so little, to all Christmas funds that all newspapers are getting up. For years I have had a habit of laying aside all those red pennies that come into my possession, and the result is for this year I have a charity jackpot of $15; $1 of this favor me by adding it to that fund for the 100 worthiest that THE TIMES has selected, as well as another $1 in behalf of my wife, the rest of this fund going to the Salvation Army and other Christmas funds. I hope this letter will be the means of others following my example that cannot give one red cent for charity, but by laying away a few cents every day, which, like myself, they will not miss, will have the means of giving their mite as well when Christmas comes around every year.

Frank V. Storm—I take pleasure in enclosing my check to your order for $100 toward the One Hundred Neediest Cases Fund. I consider this cause the worthiest in the world and trust the response will be very generous indeed.

Edith Rowley, Librarian, Allegheny College Library—Once again I am sending a small check to add to the fund for the Hundred Neediest Cases and wish it were larger. The good done and the great interest make it seem to me one of the worthiest charities of which I know.

A. N. M. Enclosed please find $10. You present so many worthy cases that it is hard to decide. So just put it into the general fund.

Murray Rushmore—Please apply this $50 to any case where little children need help. Surely at no other time of the year do they need help more than at Christmas; and at no other time does the fact of their needing help affect the fortunate among us so deeply.

Patricia Mills Foote—Just in time to help a little. For the dressmaker in Case 100, who is too old to sew, 80 years old, from one who is 5 days old.

Children Send Their Savings.

Joan and Gilbert Augenblick—Kindly accept the enclosed $5 contribution to be applied wherever most needed to your very worthy cause. It is the savings of two children.

David Van Alstyne Jr., 63 Wall Street—It gives me great pleasure to send my annual contribution of $25 to your fund. Here's hoping your grand total will go way over the top this year.

"A Matter of Principle"—Please find enclosed check for $1.25.

The Pupils of Mrs. Bolton's School, Westport, Conn. (the letter was signed by Mary S. E. Bolton, as principal)—It is with great pleasure I am enclosing a check for $40, being a collection made in our school for one of the Hundred Neediest Cases.

Anonymous—Am enclosing check for $10 which I would like applied on Case 6 (Title: No One Wants an Old Music Teacher). I had a lame sister who taught music under great difficulties to help put me through a school, and my little contribution is in loving memory of her.

From Princeton—Enclosed please find a check for $25. You do a great work!

A young man left $10 at the downtown office of THE NEW YORK TIMES to be acknowledged under the name of "Slim."

Betty Farintosh—I think the cases this year are more pitiful than ever before and no one with a heart can possibly read them without longing to do their bit to help. I should like the enclosed $20 check to be used in aiding Mrs. D. in Case 91.

Several contributors sent checks to be applied in general to cases submitted by some one or other of the nine charitable organizations which submit their cases for this annual selection by THE NEW YORK TIMES, and, like THE TIMES, administer the resulting funds without any "overhead" whatsoever. These societies are listed at the end of the typical cases reprinted in the adjoining columns.

Among the contributions received late yesterday were checks for $100 from A. M. P., A. M. S., H. R. Baltz, Gertrude Burgheimer, Louis A. Cerf, Louis Guenther, Stuard Hirschman, H. R., Marion and Jane, H. D. Moran, Mr. and Mrs. Jack C. Ottenheimer, R. Hobart Porter, Mrs. Joseph M. Schulte, Stanley Smith Jr., Charles C. Thompson, Mrs. Joseph Parsons, J. C. Van Eck, Mrs. 2. Van Raalte, P. R. Welch and Nancy W. Zeulle. Also among the $100 contributions received yesterday was one from A Friend, two anonymous and five in memory, respectively, of Mary Dixon Dunham, of Maurice W. Levy, of Frederica A. Nichols, of "Poor Boys" and of W. A. Purrington.

CASE 86.

Nora Clings to Her Sister.

For more than forty years Nora, 65, and Susan, 60, supported themselves decently by sewing. Susan's eyesight gradually went, and Nora, who now supports both, is finding work scarcer. Nora needs help in keeping her blind sister with her. "Let us not be separated," she asks, "before it pleases God to call one or the other."

CASE 49.

They Were in Sight of Happiness.

When Isabel was 6 and Harleigh was 3 their mother fainted at the head of a stairway, fell and was killed. She had had a hard life. Her husband, who drank and gambled, also had beaten her and starved his family. The two children, after her death, were exposed to his cruelty. But their salvation seemed assured when a woman who could not bear to separate them took both children into her home and carefully led them into the normal happy life of childhood. Ten years have passed. Now the woman who rescued them has lost most of her money and finds it impossible to provide food and clothing for them any longer. The charity association which has watched her wisely shaping their lives feels that she is the right mother for them. Money is wanted to pay her the children's board, so that she may continue to guide them through their adolescent years.

Amount needed, $750.

Victim of Tuberculosis.

Mr. J. refused ever to let any doctors examine him and he would not allow any of his children to be examined. When he was finally removed to the hospital in the last stages of tuberculosis, his wife and children still feared him so that they dared not accept medical aid until they knew he was dead. His daughter Jean, 22, who had provided most of the family income by working day and night as a sewing machine operator, earning at piece rates, was found to be in an advanced state of tuberculosis. Rose, 21, also was tubercular, but not hopelessly. Philip, 20, who was working his way through college and making an exceptional record, developed the same malady. The two remaining children, who are twins, Edwin and Elsie, 17, and Mrs. J. herself, are underweight, but the doctors say they need only sufficient care, food and shelter and they will escape.

Amount needed, $534.

Ten Children in Want.

Edmund G. enjoyed his ten children so much that he never thought of them as a problem. The children enjoyed life, too. Their father had a flourishing butcher shop on a corner. Three years ago heart and kidney disease began to trouble him. He lost his shop and now he cannot even work as a butcher. The health of ten children has suffered with his fortunes. They no longer have the strength for average school work and they catch every infection that passes their way. The mother can do no more than care for her large family. Immediate financial support may prevent Mr. G.'s misfortune from wrecking their lives.

Amount needed, $1,500.

Old Age of a Ballet Dancer.

She could remember audiences calling her for encores, and she found it hard to ask for food. But "you can't be a ballet dancer at 66," she explained. She spent her savings in bringing up Milton, her grandson, so frugally that they have both been half-starved for the past six years. Now Milton, who is not a strong boy because he has not had enough to eat, has his first job, as a clerk "with a promise of a future" and a meager salary, on which both were attempting to live. The grandmother explains that she suddenly realized she had no right to starve her grandson further for the sake of her pride. Both are in want of food.

Amount needed, $300.

Cases attested and administered free of cost by the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, 105 East Twenty-second Street. (Telephone, Gramercy 7040.)

CASE 64.

She Believes He Can Start Again.

William M. was a skilled tailor, with a prospering business of his own and money in the bank, until illness made it more and more difficult for him to keep up with his work. His customers fell away. The comforts of his home gradually vanished. His children, Mary, 9; Dick, 7; Clarence, 4, and Victor, 2, did not have enough to eat. Their condition was noticed at school and the visiting nurse who came to investigate discovered their distress. The sick father, by that time out of work and out of funds, was humiliated. His wife had never lost confidence in him. "It is only because he has been sick," she explained. "He can get started again if we can only get some one to give us a hand." Assistance temporarily given has already improved the health and spirit of the whole family. Mrs. M. is contributing to the new start by doing janitress work for their rent. Her husband is already talking of building up a business again and has begun to do a little work at home. If he can have help until his recovery is complete, Mr. M., with his wife and four small children, will be restored to happiness.

Amount needed, $530.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the Charity Organization Society, 105 East Twenty-second Street. (Telephone, Gramercy 4068.)

CASE 36.

Deserted His Family of Five.

Mrs. L. always worked hard for her family. After her marriage she helped her husband run a farm. Things seemed to go well at times, but the spells of temper which her husband began to develop grew more frequent and more violent. She made excuses for him to the neighbors and to her children: Francesco was tired; he had been disappointed; she had not been patient; she would try to make things easier. She went to court only when he beat her. Standing before the magistrate she said: "I don't think it's right that a wife should be beaten by the husband she loves, and I don't think the children should see it." After that her husband deserted her. She now lives in a dilapidated tenement with Jennie, who is 7; Frank, 4; Joseph, 3, and Amelia, 2. She believes she can give them what no one else can, and she is attempting to support them by finishing dresses. But she cannot do everything alone.

CASE 42.

A Pioneer Drops by the Wayside.

Antonio and Carmella, newly married, came to America seven years ago to establish their home because conditions would be better for them here. Antonio was lean and strong, and he found work in a building trade. Carmella, his wife, and little Carmella, now 5; Angelina, 3, and Serena, 1, were happy until Antonio fell ill with kidney trouble. The doctors say he will probably never work again. He sits at home now. Carmella makes buttonho le in men's suits and earns a little, but not enough. These pioneers need assistance in bringing up their three healthy American children.

Amount needed, $700.

Two Old Women Lost Their All.

After a lifetime of domestic service, Bridget, 80, and Maggie, 60, invested their hard-earned savings in a small candy store near a school. All went well until a competitor opened across the street with more varieties than Bridget and Maggie could afford to stock, at prices they could not meet. Then business dwindled. One day they paid all their bills; paid the landlord, and closed the doors. They said: "We couldn't let anybody be in debt." They had nothing left but a collection of excellent references and were too old to return to domestic service. While arrangements are being made to keep them together, they need food and shelter.

He Asks to Remain at Home.

Edward B. left the hospital without leave and went home to his wife. He was 56, far advanced in tuberculosis and he knew it. He said he saw no reason for remaining separated from Rose, since very little of life was left to him. The doctors found the change did him good. At home he was able to move about and sit in the sun on the front doorsteps, whereas in the hospital he had been bedridden. Rose, from long practice, knows how to take care of him and the doctors agreed that it would be inadvisable to separate them. Funds are asked that the two may be kept together.

A Family Who Ask Encouragement.

The doctor says Mr. K. is making valiant efforts to shake off the drug habit after years of addiction to it, and is in need of sympathy and encouragement. Mrs. K., his wife, is attempting to carry out the prescription. There are four children to be fed, however: Charles, 10; Florence, 7; Blanche, 3, and Stanley, 15 months old. Mr. K. is unable to work because of his weakness. Mrs. K. is expecting another child. Now encouragement is asked for both Mr. and Mrs. K.—money for food and rent.

At 70, His Eyes Are Failing.

Ten years ago, when M. was a widower of 60, esteemed in his trade, he married a young woman of 30. At 63, when a daughter was born, he was overjoyed, because his first marriage had been childless. Later came two other children. At 65, he went into business for himself, but his partner ran away with M.'s life savings, and at 66 he started again to work at his trade. But failing eyesight finally cost him his job. At 68 he began to do heavy labor and kept at it until his sight was so poor that he was twice hit by trucks. When he was 70 his wife, who was then 40, went out to work and left him at home to mind the three children and do the housework. Every day his eyes grew worse. Doctors can do nothing. M. wishes desperately to keep his little home together. Help must come from outside.

CASE 8.

Victims of Racketeers.

Furtive men begin to slip in and out of Frank's home, and his wife heard disputes and threats. At dawn one morning, when Frank was out, a policeman came for her. She reached the hospital in time to see her husband breathe his last. The police told her of a roadhouse meeting, a quarrel and a volley of shots that left her husband and another man on the floor. They explained to her that she had to get into a racket such as she had read about, where gangsters make easy money. She understood for the first time why, in the past two years, funds had been so plentiful and life so smooth for her and the five children. She is only 26, but during the year that has elapsed, she has worked herself into complete exhaustion in caring for the five children, Caroline 8, Annie 7, Sarah 6, Jennie 4 and Dora 2, who are equally innocent of their father's adventure. Funds will enable this family to go on.

His Heart Has Failed Him.

George W. tried to enlist in 1918, but the doctors said, "You can't go with your heart." As a cutter in a high-grade tailoring shop, however, he was able to work. He married. He and his wife were happy and they got on. They had four children. Last year George was told that he had chronic heart disease and that he would be unable to work for the rest of his life. His wife now embroiders, twelve hours a day, and earns $5 a week. George helplessly watches her and the four children grow thinner. Betty is 8, Millie, 7; Jessie, 5, and Jack 2. The rent is unpaid, and Mrs. W. has told the diet kitchen nurse that she can no longer buy milk for the children. She must have help for her family.

URGES AID TO MERGE RADIO AND CABLES

Sarnoff Tells Senators a Policy Backing Unification Is Vital to the Government.

ADVISES FEDERAL CONTROL

But Radio Corporation Official Warns That Monopoly Alone Can Maintain Service Abroad.

FOREIGN SYSTEMS UNITED

Similar Method of Government Support Needed for One American Company, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Adoption by the government of a policy to help and not hinder the development of the radio industry, and, by so doing, assure the independence of the United States in international communication was urged on the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today by David Sarnoff, executive vice president of the Radio Corporation of America.

Mr. Sarnoff advocated a policy in support of a unified, government controlled, American system of external communications, insisting that in the world at large "competition no longer exists, and you cannot meet unification abroad with division at home."

"Behind the companies controlling communications in foreign countries," he testified, "are the power and prestige of their governments.

"If you don't think the R. C. A. deserves to be put in an equally commanding position, then give it to some other company. The foreign companies hold their present more important positions because their governments are back of them. An American company should have the same support from the United States Government."

He was in full accord, the witness said, with the proposed creation of a commission on communications to regulate radio and communication service. He agreed with the principle that the assignment of wave lengths should be within the power of such a commission, emphasizing that what he recommended was government control in preference to government ownership, though willing to accept the latter as a "lesser evil," than that presented by the present situation.

Urges Settled Government Policy.

Above all, the witness urged the necessity of a well-defined and continuing attitude on the part of the government.

"You have a golden opportunity before your committee, gentlemen," Mr. Sarnoff exclaimed, "to establish what the United States has never had—a communications policy. Every other country in the world has one. When the British company, for instance, wants to know what it can do, it knows where it can go. It knows it has behind it a Foreign Office policy. It gets support and not interference from its government."

Senator Dill demanded to know in what way the government had interfered with the Radio Corporation. There had been "a considerable amount of interference" during the last ten years, especially in the past five years, was the reply.

"What else," Mr. Sarnoff demanded, "would you call the constant criticism and investigation by the Federal Trade Commission and committees of Congress of what the R. C. A. is doing and trying to do; the fact that it is constantly charged by the government with being a monopoly, the continuous investigation of our contracts with foreign companies, five years of investigation by the Federal Trade Commission, at the end of which we are told there is nothing wrong with us and we are discharged?

"I don't want to be captious, but this constant investigation by the Federal Trade Commission and by Congressional committees has its effect. If you are asking me if I call that interference, yes, Senator, I do."

Every time the Radio Corporation wanted a wave length, Mr. Sarnoff said, it had to compete with others whether they had a record of efficiency and service behind them or not. He conceded that the government had dealt fairly in the wave-length division.

"But," he contended, "in the matter of international wave lengths we ought not to be asked to divide. There should be no division between companies on this side. One company, ours or another, should have a monopoly."

Says Britain Could Dictate.

Radio, Mr. Sarnoff declared, should not have to compete with wires and cables. Great Britain, having both, he said, was in a position to dictate.

"And as a result," he added "you might have to route all your messages to India through Great Britain."

Senator Dill asked if he thought the latter case was likely. Mr. Sarnoff replied that at least there was nothing to prevent it.

"There is a difference," he said, "between having power to do a thing and doing it. But I certainly think that Great Britain will seek to make London a centre of communications under radio, as it once was under cables and wires, and which position it lost with the development of radio."

Senators Dill, Brookhart and Wheeler argued that conditions in Great Britain were different than in the United States, and that the relationship existing between the British Government and Imperial Wireless was a different and much more direct and important connection than was advocated by the witness between the Radio Corporation and the government.

"What you really want," Senator Dill told the witness, "is not government control, but government support of whatever the R. C. A., as a privately owned and operated company, might do."

"It depends on what you mean by government control," Mr. Sarnoff replied. "If by control you mean direction, I would not agree with you. But I do favor government control, provided opportunity be retained for the exercise of private initiative. I believe the government should have control as to rates, but not control of operations."

Brookhart Questions Witness.

Senator Brookhart asked Mr. Sarnoff why he thought there could not be equally efficient direction and control by the government, citing successively the Rochdale Cooperative system, the United States Post Office, the barge system on the Mississippi River, and the operation of the railroads by the government during the World War. He asked if the witness did not believe in public roads and public schools.

Mr. Sarnoff replied that he had never heard of the Rochdale Cooperative, and that he would not presume to discuss the Post Office Department. Neither did he feel in a position to express an opinion on the Mississippi barges, or the war-time operation of the railroads.

"But, don't you think," Senator Brookhart persisted, "that the railroads were managed as efficiently as you could have managed them; that the government director did as good a job as you could?"

"He may have done a better job," Mr. Sarnoff conceded. "I don't know what he did or how he did it."

Senator Brookhart told him that it had cost the railroads $14,088,000 more than the government operating costs had been to run the railroads during the first year the owners took them back. Mr. Sarnoff suggested that it "might have been due to what the government did to them."

Asks About Barge System.

"Well, all right," said the Senator. "How about the barge system under the inland waterways? That's a case of government ownership and operation."

"And the government is trying to get out of that," commented Senator Glenn of Illinois.

"What's that?" exclaimed Senator Brookhart. "Who suggested that?"

"The President of the United States," Senator Glenn replied. "He has advocated return to private ownership."

As to the relations between foreign governments and their companies, which the witness agreed was close abroad, especially in Germany, Senator Brookhart maintained that the German Government even regulated the stock issues and "made them honest."

"The German Government also guarantees an 8 per cent return," Mr. Sarnoff retorted. "And, furthermore, American companies don't have to be made honest. They are honest."

"Well," Senator Brookhart replied, "you and I might differ about that."

The Iowan showed a disposition to pursue the discussion, and Senator Glenn turned to Senator Cousens, the chairman, demanding:

"But, really, is all this pertinent to the question?"

"Everything is pertinent, to a Senator," replied Senator Cousens, and joined in the general laughter.

Points to Growth of Radio.

Getting back to the radio industry, Mr. Sarnoff asserted that it had grown in less than a decade from a minor enterprise to a giant service. During the same period the radio audience had increased from 75,000 to about 40,000,000. The principle of association, rather than destructive competition, he said, had governed development of the industry.

"Radio's association with the phonograph industry," he observed, "has resulted in the progress of both industries and the protection of capital investment and the creation of new services in the entertainment and educational field through the combined facilities thus established. Its latest development has been in the field of motion picture entertainment. Television beckons."

"So far we have done a good job under competition," he said, but maintained that in the present stage of development broader fields of usefulness could be entered and more efficiency developed with unification.

Against Broadcasting Monopoly.

He did not advocate unification as to broadcasting. There, he said, he thought monopoly was not necessary or even desirable.

"Because," he said, "that is a different type of service. What is needed there is variety. People's tastes differ in the matter of programs. And that kind of service does not call for a monopoly. A varied management is likely to produce more varied programs and, therefore, in that regard, a better service."

As to external communications, however, Mr. Sarnoff asserted, a point had been reached where unification was essential, and it would result in a further reduction of rates and better service, he added.

Senator Wheeler commented that monopoly might be more efficient, but he had not observed that, even with government regulation, the public profited greatly in the matter of rates. He did not contend that competition is always satisfactory.

"I think, as a matter of fact," the Senator observed, "that we are headed for monopolies in every line of business. It should mean lower rates. So far, even with government regulation, it does not seem to have helped the public much."

As to industry at home and abroad, even in communications he said, there is a great difference between conditions under our system of government and any imperial government.

"Don't you know" Senator Wheeler continued "that the British Government has much more power, not only over its communications but its industries, in oil as well as wireless, for instance, than the United States Government would have under the kind of control you want."

"That is because the British have a policy on oil as well as communications in the international field," Mr. Sarnoff replied. "The British Government not only controls but helps to develop and shape, not only policies, but operations. A fellow does not mind being controlled by any one that tries to be helpful."

Warns Against Hampering Radio.

The witness insisted that he was in full accord with what he understood to be the primary purpose of the suggested government commission on communications, for the regulation "in so far as is practicable" of radio and all other communication services.

"I agree with the principle that the assignment of wave lengths should be within the regulatory powers of such a commission" he said, "and I am sympathetic with such general provisions of the measure as would promote, and not restrict, the progress of the communication arts. But I would beg of you not to hamper the radio industry at the moment of its greatest development.

"Onerous legislation that would place the radio art in a straight-jacket, isolate it from fields and activities with which it has a relationship, and restrict its service possibilities, would retard the advance of the radio industry at the most vital moment of its development, and defeat the very purpose which your committee is trying to accomplish."

Mr. Sarnoff picture the radio art as now being "at the crossroads."

"Television or sight broadcasting," he said, "is beckoning to the industry. Again a new series of vastly complicated scientific, technical, industrial and service problems arise for solution in the radio industry.

"New channels of transmission must be provided in the air. Improved instrumentalities of transmission and reception must be created for the art. New services of entertainment and education must be established for this purpose.

"At a time when the nation calls for industrial initiative, when our government is properly using every effort to quicken and develop private enterprise, when large capital investment requires encouragement and security, and when a new art is knocking at our doors, an open road for radio development would help to maintain public confidence in the radio industry."

Filing and Delivery Problems.

Mobilization not only of patents, processes and manufacturing equipment but of other facilities is necessary, Mr. Sarnoff said. Too much emphasis is placed by technicians on the speed of transmission, when the point is the time consumed between sending a message and the hour of its delivery. The customer is not interested in the speed of radio transmission, but in the lapsed time between the hour he files his message and the time it is received by the person to whom he sends it, the witness observed.

And there the question of filing and delivery enters. The proposed merger between the Radio Corporation and the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, Mr. Sarnoff argued, would give the former the added advantage of the sending and delivery facilities of the latter and double the public usefulness of both.

As to the efficiency of government regulation of monopolies, he suggested that perhaps that also was a "developing art."

"If you find that the government cannot properly regulate the monopoly I am advocating," he said, "then I don't want the monopoly."

Not since the time of Morse, Mr. Sarnoff asserted, had there been any real advance in the matter of sending. The "antiquated system of dots and dashes," he added, is still in use because it is the best we know at this time, but he predicted a better way.

"Television is coming, he said, "and then you will have a new system of communications, and the present system will be a thing of the past."

Even then, the question of delivery of messages would not be entirely eliminated, he said, but it would be a less serious problem than at present.

Mr. Sarnoff reviewed "the steps by which radio, initially established for ship to shore wireless communication, and subsequently spanning the ocean with a new system of international communications, should have reached out to the home, to the motion picture studio, to theatres, to the phonograph industry and other industries and arts."

"Any consideration of the radio art," he said, "discloses the extraordinary complexities of the problem that developed with the establishment of the first completely and created system of transoceanic radio communications.

"The signal radiated from a transmitting station has no limits in space. It spans the continents. It ties ship to shore with wireless communication. It enters every home. Even if we would, the grasp and reach of the new art could not be restricted to a specified field."

Mr. Sarnoff endorsed at every point the statements of Owen D. Young on his appearance before the committee. Senator Cousens indicated that some confusion still remained in his mind as to the agreement described by Mr. Young as having been made by the Radio Corporation with the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, and said he would like further enlightenment on that subject.

Mr. Sarnoff said he was prepared to answer any question along that line, and Senator Couzens and Senator Dill advised him that the committee would take up with him that question, and also the matter of Radio Corporation of America tube contracts, at the hearing tomorrow morning.

BRITISH SHIP LINES FIGHT OFF SUIT HERE

Federal Court Dismisses Action of United States Navigation Co. Under Sherman Law.

SEES JURISDICTION LACKING

Holds Complaint Against White Star, Cunard and 11 Others Should Go to Shipping Board First.

The Sherman law suit of the United States Navigation Company, Inc., against thirteen British steamship companies, including the Cunard and White Star lines, was dismissed yesterday by Federal Judge Caffey because of lack of jurisdiction. The plaintiff, an American enterprise, alleged in the complaint that the defendants had been engaged for five years prior to last September, when the suit was filed, in a conspiracy to restrain foreign trade and commerce in the transportation of general cargo from North Atlantic to United Kingdom ports, and to prevent competition.

The plaintiff operates freighters under charter and, according to its complaint, carries less than 1 per cent of the general cargo of the transatlantic trade, while the thirteen defendants carry the rest. All of the defendants are members of the North Atlantic United Kingdom Freight Conference. The conference was not named as a defendant. It was charged that the defendants sought to eliminate the plaintiff and used coercive measures which made it impossible for American exporters to retain the liberty of directing their shipments, and that the defendants jointly refused to carry shipments at their contract rates from any shipper who gave any of his business to the plaintiff.

Counsel for the defendants held that the court was without authority to act under the allegation set forth in the complaint, and that while the plaintiff was incorporated in this State, it operated chartered foreign steamers and did not own any vessels. In dismissing the complaint Judge Caffey held that the shipping act, cited in support of the suit, had not yet been judicially construed so far as pertinent sections were concerned. He ruled against a judicial decision under the Sherman anti-trust act on the ground that the complaints should have been brought, under the law, before the Shipping Board as a preliminary to court action.

Besides the Cunard and White Star Lines, the complaint named as defendants the Atlantic Transport, Anchor, Canadian Pacific, Furness-Withy, Bristol City, Donaldson, Ellerman Wilson, Hayn, Leland, Manchester and Cairn Lines.

PASSES FRENCH DEBT BILL.

House Approves Measure First Passed Three Years Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The bill approving the plan for payment of the French debt to the United States, amounting to $4,025,000,000, was passed by the House today by a vote of 239 to 100.

The vote, taken after a short discussion of the measure, came rather as a matter of course. The House passed the same bills three years ago, but it died in the Senate.

With the approval of this plan the House ratified the last remaining debt settlement agreement made between the United States and its debtor nations.

The French Government has ratified the plan and has made one payment under its terms in anticipation of favorable action by Congress.

JOYCE PHIPPS WEDS REGINALD GRENFELL

Niece of Lady Astor Married at St. Margaret's, London, Before Notable Throng.

AMBASSADOR DAWES THERE

Bishop of Bradford Performs Ceremony—Bridegroom a Relative of Lord Desborough.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Miss Joyce Irene Phipps, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Phipps of New York and London and a niece of Lady Astor, was married at St. Margaret's, Westminster, today to Reginald Pascoe Grenfell, elder son of Lieut. Col. Arthur M. Grenfell and kinsman of Lady Astor's neighbor, Lord Desborough. The American Ambassador and Mrs. Dawes were in the large and fashionable assemblage. The ceremony was performed by the Bishop of Bradford.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a long gown of cream ring velvet, with long, tight-fitting sleeves and a flowing train of the same material, that fell from the waist of the dress. Her veil was held in place by a halo headdress of green leaves and orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of madonna lilies. Besides child attendants in gay costumes there were nine bridesmaids, including Lady Astor's daughter, the Hon. Phyllis Astor.

After the ceremony a reception was held at Lord and Lady Astor's town house in St. James's Square.

Mr. Grenfell and his bride departed for Paris.

The bride has many relatives in this country, especially in New York and Virginia. She is a great-granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Butler Duncan, whose home for many years was at 1 Fifth Avenue, and a grandniece of the late Mrs. Paul Dana of this city.

The bride's mother, the former Miss Nora Langhorne, is the youngest of the five daughters of the late Chiswell D. Langhorne of Virginia who were noted for their beauty. One of them, Miss Irene Langhorne, is the wife of Charles Dana Gibson, the artist, and was the inspiration for the celebrated Gibson Girl of a quarter century ago. The other sisters are Lady Astor, Mrs. Robert H. Brand, who lives in Europe, and the late Mrs. R. Moncure Perkins of Richmond, Va.

On the paternal side Mrs. Grenfell is a granddaughter of Mrs. William Wilton Phipps of London, the former Miss Jessie Butler Duncan of New York. Mr. Grenfell's mother, who died some years ago, was Lady Victoria Sybil Mary Grey, daughter of the fourth Earl Grey and a sister of the present Earl Grey. She was named for Queen Victoria, who was her godmother.

Money Will Come From World's Series Receipts—Action Taken to Clarify Scoring Rules.

By JOHN DREBINGER.

Moved by a spirit of generosity, engendered, doubtless, by the time of season, the magnates of the National and American Leagues, sitting in joint session before Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis in the Hotel Biltmore yesterday, voted favorably on appropriations amounting to $65,000 for several activities that have been sponsored in the interests of baseball.

They also discussed voluminous matters pertaining to the intricacies of organized baseball law and then passed out into the sleet and snow, leaving behind a group of baseball correspondents from all parts of the country, who appeared at a loss to understand what could have occupied the magnates for all of five long hours.

Such rather interesting topics as the opening and closing of the next baseball season, the domestic tangles of the Brooklyn Baseball Club and radio broadcasting were not even discussed, it was announced after the meeting.

No Action on Length of Season.

Regarding the opening and closing dates, it was pointed out that this no longer was the business of the joint session, the task of making the schedules having been turned over in its entirety to the two major league presidents, John A. Heydler of the National and E. S. Barnard of the American.

However, as both these executives have expressed themselves in accord on an early closing, it can be taken for a certainty that the next season will open on April 15 and close on Sept. 28, although official announcement of this will not be forthcoming until the schedules are completed.

Strident tones occasionally could be heard coming from the other side of the closed doors, but what caused these could not be learned. It may have been chain store baseball, which has cropped up in the game in recent years and has been so highly developed by such enterprising owners as Sam Breadon, whose Cardinal interests own clubs in every class of minor league division. Commissioner Landis has been quite outspoken in his opposition toward this growing practice among major league clubs, and President E. S. Barnard of the American League recently expressed similar sentiment.

Minor Leagues in Favor.

But so far as was announced, the only time this matter came up for discussion was when Breadon submitted numerous telegrams from presidents of minor leagues, all of whom regarded the chain store baseball idea in high favor. This may have ended the discussion.

Most important of the appropriations voted was one for $10,000 for the position of instructor in the campaign of the National Amateur Federation to institute a system of coaching for sand-lot teams and also to assist in the coaching of school and college teams throughout the country. Leslie Mann, former major league outfielder, is to hold this position as instructor.

A sum of $5,000 was appropriated for the Baseball Players' Association fund, and another of $50,000 was set aside for the American League junior baseball campaign, which next year will embark on its third season.

What should not be such pleasant news for the major league ball player, however, was the announcement that these expenditures are not to come out of the pockets of the club owners but out of the next world's series receipts, it being approved that the advisory council's share of the gross receipts be increased from 10 to 15 per cent.

Will Confer With the Minors.

After passing on numerous amendments affecting the relations between major and minor leagues, a motion was adopted to appoint a committee of four from each major league to confer with the minor leagues and report back.

A motion by Colonel Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, that would increase the number of optional players a major league club may have in the minors from eight to fifteen and would also increase the period of option from two to three years, was adopted, but cannot become effective unless accepted by the minor leagues.

A ruling was passed giving a player seventy-two hours in which to report to a club to which he has been transferred.

Favorable action also was taken on two resolutions adopted earlier in the day at the annual national meeting of the Baseball Writers' Association of America. One aims to clarify the present scoring rules and bring about a uniformity in the rules of the two major league, which at present differ on certain points.

The other vests in the two major league presidents the power to appoint the official scorers in each city instead of the club presidents as has been the custom in the past.

Regarding the highly involved Brooklyn situation no action was taken, it being explained that the joint session had no jurisdiction over the matter.

School Children to See Chicago Ball Games Free

CHICAGO, Dec. 12 (AP).—Chicago school children who lack the price of admission to see the Cubs and White Sox play baseball will not have to search for peekholes next season. They will be admitted free to three games a week, President William Veeck of the Cubs and Secretary Harry Grabiner of the White Sox announced today. A charge of 25 cents will be made for other games, except those played on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

Veeck and Grabiner announced the free admission following the suggestion of Commissioner K. M. Landis to charge a smaller fee for school children so they would become interested in the game.

ROBINSON LEAVES, STATUS UNCHANGED

Off to Baltimore in Jovial Mood; Still Storm Centre of Brooklyn Controversy.

SCHALK TO COACH CUBS

Returns to City Where He Starred With White Sox—Pirates Sell Fussell to Buffalo.

Appearing in highly jocular mood but declining to so much as intimate what he expected would be the next step in the developments of the Brooklyn Baseball Club's internal feud, Wilbert Robinson departed for Baltimore last night, leaving the Brooklyn situation apparently the same as when he arrived last Sunday. He will remain in Baltimore a few days visiting relatives and then return to his Winter home on the hunting preserves at Dover Hall, Ga.

Emerging from the joint major league meeting in the Biltmore yesterday, Uncle Robbie at once was surrounded by baseball writers who plied him with questions.

"How is the big fight coming along?" Robbie was asked.

"Fight—what fight?" was his rejoinder. "Do I look like a fighting man?" and his sides shook with laughter as he took a few playful pokes at the writers. Then he obligingly spent some fifteen minutes posing before motion cameras and, although in his sixties, the bulky pilot pranced about like a 2-year-old, declaring himself "fit as a fiddle."

But all efforts toward drawing him out on the future affairs of the Brooklyn club proved unavailing.

Still Subject of Controversy.

As matters now stand, Robbie is still the president and manager of the Robins, supported by the Ebbets interests for retention after his present contract expires on Jan. 1, and opposed as vigorously as ever by Steve McKeever, owner of the other half interest in the club. It is understood that should this deadlock endure, Robbie automatically remains president under the club's constitution, but what will become of the managerial post in this event is not at all clear at present.

President Heydler of the National League, whose effort to bring about a reconciliation between the warring factions last Wednesday before Commissioner Landis ended in complete disaster, pointed out yesterday that under baseball law a manager must be signed to a regulation player's contract to be permitted to sit on the bench. This would indicate that even should Robbie legally remain president of the club in face of the deadlock, he would have to be signed by the club to a player's contract in order to direct his team from the bench as heretofore.

However, all this seemed to worry Robbie not at all as he left the city last night, apparently thinking only of his shotguns and hunting dogs.

Almost Devoid of Trades.

The Winter baseball meetings just ended were almost devoid of player trades and sales, but the three outstanding transactions brought about the return of former stars to the cities where they shone brightest. Grover Alexander's return to the Phillies and Wally Schang's re-acquisition by the Athletics were followed yesterday by the signing of Ray Schalk, veteran catcher, as coach of the Chicago Cubs.

Schalk returns to the same city, but not the same club. For sixteen years he was catcher and, for a short time in 1928, manager of the White Sox. Last year he was coach and sometimes acting manager of the Giants. He was released a short time ago by the New York club. William Veeck, Cub president, announced Schalk's signing yesterday.

Fred Fussell, left-handed pitcher for the past two years on the Pittsburgh Pirates' staff, yesterday was sold to the Buffalo club of the International League.

ALBRIGHT DEFEATS MANHATTAN FIVE

Losers in Sensational Rally Threaten to Tie 26-24 Score When Game Ends.

KELLEHER LEADS ATTACK

Tallies 3 Goals in Succession, but Victors' Defense Halts Last Attempt to Score.

The Albright College basketball team continued its winning streak last night at the expense of the Manhattan College five in a game at Manhattan. The final score was 26 to 24 and at the end Manhattan was making a sensational rally and threatening to tie the score but the final whistle spoiled the flurry.

With only two minutes to play, Kelleher, who was the outstanding player on the Manhattan team, launched a sudden attack, scoring three goals in succession. The Albright defense stiffened and halted Kelleher in another attempt to cage a goal, and with only seven seconds to god Kelleher again broke loose and was dashing down the court to make a try for a goal that would have tied the count when the game ended.

Manhattan reserves faced Albright at the start and rolled up a lead of four points. The Manhattan first team then came onto the floor and Albright quickly staged an offensive that put the latter in front. However, Manhattan showed a fine defensive game throughout the remainder of the half and the score at half time was Albright 11, Manhattan 7.

SNOW FORCES ARMY TO INDOOR PRACTICE

Squad, Preparing for Stanford, Sent to Riding Hall After Limbering-Up Outdoors.

ONLY 2 SESSIONS REMAIN

Military Drills Today and Monday Curtail Preparations of Team Which Goes West Wednesday.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Army's football squad is being seriously handicapped in its preparations for the Stanford game by the continuance of Winter weather. Snow began falling today as the men came out for practice, and, although Coach Jones kept his players in the open long enough for a limbering-up exercise and calisthenics, the entire squad was soon sent indoors to the big riding hall, where, ankle deep in the tanbark, the players tossed the ball about in the uncertain light, and several combinations of players were sent through signal rehearsal. The cadets had planned to try some of the new plays which they have been rehearsing against the scrubs, but the snow forced a change in plans.

Even though the Winter weather breaks, Army has only two days left for practice, Saturday of this week and Tuesday of next. The cadets on the football squad are obliged to report for military drill tomorrow and Monday. The West Point party will leave for California next Wednesday.

Mentor of Champion Eleven in Western Conference Gets Three-Year Contract.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 12 (AP).—Earl Campbell, graduate manager of athletics at the University of Washington, announced today that Coach James M. Phelan of Purdue University has signed a three-year contract to coach football at Washington. It was reported that Phelan will receive $12,000 a year.

Campbell made the announcement after a telephone conversation with Phelan, who is in Lafayette, Ind. The Washington graduate manager arrived in Seattle this morning from Chicago and said at that time he was only awaiting official word from Phelan, who was seeking his release from the Purdue board of control.

The Washington board of control was called to approve the selection of the Purdue mentor, who will succeed Enoch W. Bragshaw, resigned.

Phelan Authorizes Statement.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Dec. 12 (AP).—James M. Phelan, football coach at Purdue University, today authorized the statement that he had signed a contract to coach the University of Washington football team.

Major Nelson A. Kellogg, director of athletics at Purdue, indicated that there would be no opposition by Purdue authorities to the acceptance of the contract, although Phelan has a contract with the Lafayette institution that has two years to run.

Phelan has been football coach at Purdue for eight years, and during the season just closed his team won the Western Conference championship. He is a former Notre Dame player.

PENN STATE GETS 3 SOCCER PLACES

Leads List of Selections for All-Collegiate Team Named by Princeton Coach.

TWO YALE MEN CHOSEN

Advance of Game in New England Noted by Nies in Announcing Teams.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 12.—Penn State is represented by three players while Yale has two men on the 1929 all-collegiate soccer team, announced here today by Coach Al Nies of Princeton University. Princeton had no positions on the first team, although two Tiger players were placed on the second line-up.

In making the selections, Coach Nies said:

"The past few seasons have shown a tremendous improvement in the play of the New England colleges so it is not at all surprising to find this year that the South Atlantic colleges no longer have a monopoly on stellar players.

"Penn State, undefeated during the past season and champions of the Intercollegiate Association, placed three men on the first team, McKune at goal, Allen at fullback and Lutz at outside right.

"The centre forward position presented the greatest problem as there was a host of unusually fine players to select from.

"However, Stollmeyer of Dartmouth was the best of the lot. He has great speed, is a fine dribbler, packs a wicked shot in either foot and, in addition, distributes well, having played the game in British India as a youngster. He is undoubtedly the most finished player in collegiate ranks today."

The selections:

FIRST TEAM.

Goal—McKune, Penn State.
Right Back—Johnson, Swarthmore.
Right Half—Frazier, Haverford.
Centre Half—Robertson, Yale.
Left Half—Bland, Harvard; or Lutz, Penn State.
Inside Right—Bright, Williams.
Centre Forward—Stollmeyer, Dartmouth.

Goal, Jenifer, Princeton.
Right Back—Harvey, Penn State.
Left Back—Stollmeyer, Harvard.
Right Half—Holme, Navy.
Centre Half—Lewis, Amherst.
Left Half—Bowman, Yale; or Carey, Cornell.
Inside Right—Egan, Dartmouth.
Centre Forward—Straus, Lehigh.

Goal—Wellst, Navy.
Right Back—Ellis, Springfield.
Right Half—Craner, Amherst.
Centre Half—Hurlinski, Penn.
Inside Right—Campbell, Penn; or Hughes, Syracuse.
Centre Forward—Anderson, Penn.

Haverford Coach's List Differs.

James McPete, soccer coach at Haverford, agrees with Coach Nies of Princeton that three Penn State players should be included on the 1929 all collegiate soccer team, but otherwise his selections differ widely. Each maker an annual habit of picking all-American soccer squads.

Coach McPete's selections as announced through The Associated Press follow:

Goal, Hubbell, Swarthmore.
Right back, Harvey, Penn State.
Right half, Frazier, Haverford.
Centre half, Hrusinski, Penn.
Outside right, Lutz, Penn State.
Inside right, Anderson, Penn.
Centre forward, Strouse, Lehigh.

CARNEGIE TECH DUE AT PASADENA TODAY

Eastern Eleven to Practice in Rose Bowl in Preparation for So. California Game.

Special to The New York Times.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 12.—The Carnegie Tech football squad is due to arrive tomorrow bent on being the first team from the city of Pittsburgh to give Southern California's Trojans a defeat. As the University of Pittsburgh plays here New Year's Day, Southern California thus meets two teams from the Smoky City within a period of eighteen days.

The Tartans are scheduled to arrive at 6:45 A. M. from the Grand Canyon, where they spent today sightseeing. Carnegie Tech headquarters will be established at the Hotel Huntington and it is expected that Coach Steffen's team will work out in the Rose Bowl tomorrow afternoon.

Showers have been forecast. A wet field in the Los Angeles Coliseum Saturday would prove a distinct handicap to the Trojans, who haven't played a game under such circumstances since 1926, when they defeated Oregon State, 17 to 7.

Coach Jones and his players have spent a strenuous week preparing for Carnegie Tech.

Southern California's line-up, aside from the quarter and full back positions, will be the same as against Washington State. Edelson and Pinckert will occupy the halfback berths, Tappan and Arbelbide the end positions and Anthony and Hoff the tackle posts. Galloway will be at one guard station, with either Captain Barragar or Baker opening at the other. Dye is to start at centre.

IOWA GIVES NAMES OF BANNED ATHLETES

Fourteen Players in 5 Sports Declared Ineligible—Men Borrowed From Trust Fund.

SUMS RAN FROM $15 TO $80

Schmidt, Varsity Fullback, Only One Who Has Completed Athletic Competition at School.

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Dec. 12 (AP).—The University of Iowa's athletic house today received its most thorough cleaning since the Western Conference voted last Spring to sever relations with the Hawkeyes.

Fourteen athletes who had borrowed sums ranging from $15 to $80 from a trust fund which was one of the points upon which the conference based its ouster action, were crossed off the list of eligible players in five sports. Only one of them had concluded his competition prior to today.

The wholesale action removed four regulars and two reserves from the list of men eligible for Coach Rollie Williams's basketball team. Three of these men also were expected to play on the 1930 football team. Among them was Mike Farrah, Michigan City, Ind., football halfback and basketball guard, who only last night was elected co-captain with Marcus Magnusson, centre, of the football team for next year. Magnusson was not affected.

Was Object of Investigation.

Oran Pape of Dubuque, the spectacular halfback who scored the touchdowns that beat Minnesota both in 1928 and 1929, was on the list. Pape was the object of investigation of charges of professionalism much of the last football season, and clearing of him was said to have been a factor in the Big Ten's refusal to readmit Iowa into athletic relationship.

Irving Nelson of Omaha, drop kicker of the football team and basketball forward, was another two-sport athlete named. Doyal Plunkett of Frankford, Ind., star basketbal forward, and Seward Leeka of Independence, Mo., basketball centre and reserve halfback in football, were others.

The basketball reserves named were Floyd Mitchell of Highmore, S. D., and Laurence Benson of Michigan City, Ind., guard and centre, respectively.

Schmidt Put on List.

Marvin M. Schmidt of Moline, Ill., former varsity fullback, was the man who had finished his athletic competition before he was banned. He is still in school, however, so was placed on the list of men who owe the "trust fund" money. Pete Affrse of Quimcy, Ill., reserve halfback in football, was the fifth gridiron player on the list.

From the track team the action removed F. L. Wilcox of Fort Madison, Iowa, broad jumper; Theron Boyer of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, pole vaulter; Pape, a sprinter, and Farroh, discus.

The basketball team lost Boyd B. Musgrave of St. Louis, while the swimming team lost Boyd Liddle of Davenport, holder of numerous A. A. U. championships.

Charles M. Stewart of Iowa City, whose sport was not designated, was the fourteenth man.

C. C. Williams, chairman of the eligibility committee, said the names of fourteen other men who had borrowed from the trust fund would not be revealed, since they had left school.

Sought to Certify Eligibility.

He said tonight that the committee's action was not in the hope of regaining the favor of the Western Conference, but due to the necessity of certifying a list of eligible performers to the non-conference schools with whom the Hawkeyes are to compete in the near future.

"Whether such a move will aid in getting Iowa back into the conference is beside the point," Dean Williams said. "I hope that it will. But the action was dictated by the necessity of certifying our list of eligible athletes to schools with whom we are about to compete this season. We could not claim to be certifying under the rules of the intercollegiate conference, of which we are still a member, if we ignored the opinion of the conference which formed the basis of the action in denying our petition."

The men affected in today's ruling are believed to be among those named by the Big Ten Conference as athletes who must be declared ineligible if the conference is to again recognize Iowa athletically. The Big Ten's list was said to have contained twenty-two names, six less than were on Williams's roster.

Another Petition Indicated.

The action taken today was seen as evidence of Iowa's intention to conform strictly to Western Conference regulations despite the fact that the Big Ten will not meet its teams in contests, at least temporarily. Indication was given that the Hawkeye athletic board hopes to petition for reinstatement again unless the conference itself invites the Hawkeyes back into the playground.

E. H. Lauer, athletic director, announced that football contracts for 1930 games would be signed for only one year, evidence that the Hawkeyes hope their ouster is not permanent. The single exception is the Nebraska contract, which includes a 1931 game at Lincoln.

Still another evidence of Iowa's intention to live up to Big Ten regulations was given by announcement that the Penn State game, scheduled for Nov. 15, a week before the Nebraska contest, would be played in Iowa City. Coach Burt Ingwerson had hoped to play the game at Soldier Field in Chicago, but the conference rule requiring teams to play on the home field of one of the contestants was said to have caused the athletic board to act against the proposal.

ST. MARY'S SEEKS GAMES.

Starts Negotiations With Iowa for Home and Home Series.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 12 (AP).—Negotiations with the University of Iowa for a home and home football engagement next year were opened by the St. Mary's College authorities today. The first game would be played in San Francisco, under initial plans.

The St. Mary's team was the most brilliant on the Pacific Coast this year, being one of the few in the country to complete its schedule undefeated.

Driggs Named President of Long Island Golfers; Miss Waring Wins at Pinehurst

LONG ISLAND ELECTS DRIGGS GOLF HEAD

Association Names Fulkerson, Boone and Redmond as the Other Officers of Board.

STATEN ISLAND LOSES PLEA

Petition to Affiliate Is Denied—Three Clubs Added in Year to the Membership.

By LINCOLN A. WERDEN.

Edmund H. Driggs Jr., a football star in his days at Princeton and the present holder of the Long Island amateur golf title, assumed the responsibilities of a new office yesterday when he was elected president of the Long Island Golf Association.

The others who will constitute the board of officers with Driggs are W. Neal Fulkerson Jr. of Cherry Valley, vice president; Perley Boone of Hempstead, secretary, and W. R. Redmond of St. Albans, treasurer.

Taking over his duties at the annual meeting of the association at the Hotel McAlpin, Driggs outlined his attitude toward several topics that are apt to be in the minds of his colleagues during the next few months. One centred about the controversy concerning the paying of team expenses in the Lesley cup matches.

Classing the competition as an "international match," Driggs said he was in favor of paying the expenses of the contestants, and that he would favor paying expenses of any team that represented a section or State.

"It's done in football," asserted Driggs, "and the players are not considered pros. Why should a golfer who represents his section of the country be considered a pro if his expenses are paid?"

However, none of the delegates, after a general discussion of the subject which showed a divergence of opinion, were in favor of officially recording the attitude of the association, and the matter, accordingly, was dropped.

Interested in Tournament.

In commenting on the hope for a successful season, Driggs said he was especially interested to have the Long Island father and son tournament assume a place of real importance on the tournament program. Driggs admitted, amid laughter, that his entry for this event presented another problem he would have to solve. His father and he have played together as partners in past years. Last season Driggs and his son Edmund 3d, aged 11, began their activities as a golfing team, and now since his other son, Dickinson, who is 8 years old, would soon be another golfing factor in the family, the 1930 team of Driggs and Driggs is undecided.

The petition of the Staten Island clubs asking to become part of the Long Island association was again denied. It was decided to follow a precedent set several years ago to keep the organization strictly a Long Island one.

Staten Island golfers have been anxious to affiliate with one of the district associations, because of the small number of their private clubs, but it is unlikely that any other action will be taken, following the refusal of the Long Island body.

The two other members who with the four officers will comprise the 1930 executive committee are Gardiner White of Nassau, who retired yesterday as president, and Fred Kiendl of St. George's. The year book, which included the reports of the various committees, was distributed and the treasurer's report showed a balance of $2,067.06, while three clubs were added to the membership.

Clubs Offer Their Facilities.

A number of offers were received from clubs for the various tournaments, the dates and sites of which will be announced later. Bids for the Long Island amateur championship were received from Cherry Valley, North Hills, Engineers and the St. Albans Golf Club. Southward Ho, Engineers and St. Albans also submitted their links for the open, while Southward Ho, Hempstead, Engineers and St. Albans presented their requests for the senior tournament.

North Hills, Engineers, St. Albans and Southward Ho filed offers for the junior and father and son events. Hempstead offered its course for the caddy tournament. The following clubs bid for the one-day tournaments: Engineers, Hempstead, Southward Ho, St. Albans, Lakeville, Cherry Valley and Inwood.

MISS WARING WINS PINEHURST TOURNEY

Three Down at 4th Hole, New York Entry Rallies to Defeat Mrs. Chapman, 1 Up.

VICTOR NERVOUS AT START

Regains Form to Be Only 1 Down at Turn, Then Triumphs by Halving the 18th.

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 12.—Staging a come-back from being three down going to the fourth hole, Miss Helen Waring of New York, medalist and defending titleholder, today won the annual season members' tournament for women by defeating Mrs. John D. Chapman of Greenwich, 1 up. Mrs. Chapman won the Carolina tournament last week.

Miss Waring seemed affected by nervousness at the start, which accounted for poor work around the greens. Steadying as she went along she had cut the margin to one hole at the turn, though running up what is for her the high total of 50 strokes. Mrs. Chapman was out in 47 after using four strokes from the edge of the green at the ninth. Both players frittered away many strokes on the greens coming in, Miss Waring excelling on the long holes and Mrs. Chapman on the short ones. The match was square going to the sixteenth. Mrs. Chapman was trapped on the seventeenth and took a losing 7. Miss Waring won by halving the home hole.

The cards:

SKIPPER OF SHAMROCK NOTED SAILING MASTER

Heard, Named to Pilot Challenger for the America's Cup, Has Won Many Laurels Abroad.

While all four contenders for the defense of the America's Cup will be skippered by Corinthians, members of the New York Yacht Club, Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger Shamrock V will have Edward Heard, a professional sailing master, at the wheel.

Prior to his return to Great Britain a few days ago, Sir Thomas said that he hoped to have Shamrock V in the water by the end of April, and would have the new cutter in racing trim early in May. In all probability Heard will be at the wheel of the cup challenger in the races against White Heather, Astra, Britannia, the King's yacht, and other big sloops and cutters on the Solent before Shamrock is sent over here.

Virtually all the tuning-up of Shamrock V will be done in American waters, and Sir Thomas said he expected to race his challenger on the Sound and off Newport before the cup series in September.

Heard is one of the best known sailing masters in British yachting circles, and last year with the late Sir Mortimer Singer's Astra had a very successful season.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Dec. 12.—Frank Taberski, the defending champion, triumphed today in the world's pocket billiard championship tournament, defeating Joseph McCann of Jacksonville, Fla., in twelve innings, 125 to 31. The victory was the second for the champion in the three games he has played to date.

Spencer Livsey of Los Angeles downed Pasquale Natalie of this city in the opening match of the day's play, 125 to 96 in 31 innings. The result of this game gave Livsey his first victory and cost Natalie his first defeat.

The night match resulted in a victory for Marcel Camp of Detroit, whose triumph over Taberski at the start of the tourney singled him for much attention. He took the measure of Ralph Greenleaf of New York, former holder of the world's title. The score was 125 to 113 and Camp triumphed in twenty-three innings. The victory placed him in a tie with Taberski for second place, Greenleaf having held second position until his defeat. Marcel now has won two matches and lost one.

Greenleaf Leads, 40 to 0.

As a matter of fact, the game was the most highly seasoned put forth thus far. Greenleaf, with evident mastery, started with a broad flourish and had a lead of 40 to 0 at the end of the fifth frame. The former champion added a run of 28 to that and seemed certain to win with ease.

But Camp continued steadily along and finally reached the best form he has displayed, overhauling his rival and going on to win in sensational manner. Camp was aided by a penalty against Greenleaf for three consecutive scratches, which cost him 15 points.

Taberski, who was beaten in his first match in the title series only to come back with brilliant playing to annex his next struggle, again showed his remarkable skill in taking the measure of McCann. Off to a bad start and trailing through the first two innings, Taberski found himself in his third trip to the table and clicked off seventeen to assume command.

Taberski Clinches Contest.

In his eleventh inning Taberski made a high run of fifty, his best effort in his three matches, and it determined beyond question the outcome.

Taberski did not have a run-away victory, however. After taking the lead in the third frame, Taberski drew a blank in the fourth frame while McCann made five. In the fifth Frame Taberski ran nine and McCann fourteen, which gave McCann the lead. Taberski added fourteen in his sixth time at the table, McCann got none in that inning but came back in the following frame with fifteen, while Taberski got none. That put McCann ahead at 44-41 but it also marked the end of McCann's threat, for Taberski stepped out in his eighth inning with a string of twenty-eight.

McCann failed to score for three innings, Taberski for two. Then Taberski added his run of fifty. McCann made six and Taberski ended the contest with a run of nine. McCann suffered a penalty of 15 for three successive scratches.

Natalie Misses Opportunity.

The match between Livsey and Natalie was marked by considerable scratching and safety play. Rounding into the thirtieth inning, Natalie still had an excellent chance to win and had run thirteen when he scratched. He left the balls in fine position for Livsey and the latter, needing only eight to go out, quickly took advantage of the opportunity and ended the battle.

The scratching on the part of both players was costly, but executed in the name of strategy. Livsey forfeited 14 and Natalie 12 points by this play. As a matter of fact neither player seemed to be at his best game and missed many apparently easy shots.

Livesey came near ending the game in the twenty-second inning, when he got off to a long run and netted 23 before he tried a difficult shot, which resulted in a scratch and prolonged the game.

100 ATTEND DINNER OF THE CRUISING CLUB

Commander Hawley of Geodetic Survey Tells How U. S. Charts Coast Lines.

Commander Hawley of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey Department was the speaker of the evening at a dinner of the Cruising Club of America at the Yale Club last night. Approximately 100 club members attended. Commodore Edward Crabbe presided.

An extensive informal discussion in regard to next year's race from New London to Bermuda preceded the dinner. It was estimated that more than thirty schooners and sloops will take part in the race next June, the largest number of yachts ever to participate in an ocean yacht race.

Commander Hawley discussed briefly the work of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey Department, which has now surveyed and charted 17,000 miles of coast line in the United States and its island possessions. He said the interest taken by yachtsmen in deep-sea sailing is evidenced by the fact that every year at least 250,000 demands are received for the department's charts, of which there are 700.

Commander Hawley illustrated his discussion by the use of lantern slides which depicted the advantage of airplane photography over the old methods of charting. It formerly took weeks and weeks to survey and chart a given area, but a camera man in an airplane can now do it in an hour or two.

MEXICO LEADS CUBA IN TENNIS SERIES

Triumphs in Two Opening Singles Matches in Competition for the Hidalgo Cup.

BORBOLLA SCORES EASILY

Turns Back Morales, While Tapia Wins Hard Match After Vollmer Is Injured in 5th Set.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12 (AP).—Mexico won the first two matches of the third annual series of tennis matches with Cuba for the Hidalgo Cup today. Ignaco de la Borbolla and Ricardo Tapia triumphed in the opening singles encounters, leaving the Mexican team with only one more victory needed to capture the trophy donated by President Machade of Cuba.

Borbolla scored an easy victory over Ricardo Morales of Cuba in the morning match by scores of 6—2, 6—1, 6—2. This afternoon Tapia defeated Gustavo Vollmer only when the Cuban suffered an injury to his leg in the fifth set of a long, hard match. The score was 3—6, 3—6, 6—4, 6—3, 6—4.

Vollmer had tied the score at 4-all in the fifth set and seemed about to win when a charleyhorse knotted the muscles of his leg and he was barely able to finish the match. After winning the first two sets easily, Vollmer's leg began to trouble him and he dropped the next two sets. His leg finally gave way following the game in which he evened the set, which went to deuce thirteen times.

In the morning match Morales tried to play a forecourt game, but could not cope with Borbolla's steady crosscourt drives. The Mexican's shots forced Morales to make many errors. Morales rallied in the third set to tie at 2—2, but lost the next three games on double faults and drives into the net.

The doubles match, which may decide the series, is to be played Saturday, and the two concluding singles matches Sunday, if they are necessary.

Canadiens Lose to Rangers by 8 to 3 Before Crowd of 13,000 in the Garden

RANGERS DEFEAT CANADIENS, 8 TO 3

Score Five Goals in the Second Period to Clinch Contest in Garden Before 13,000.

ATTACK DAZZLES VISITORS

Boucher, Bourgault and Bill Cook Lead Onslaught, With Each Accounting for 2 Tallies.

By WILLIAM E. BRANDT.

The season's first meeting between the New York Rangers and Montreal's Les Canadiens last night provided Madison Square Garden with a carnival of swift skating and sharp shooting, with the game wide open. Some 13,000 saw the game.

The Rangers by pounding five goals through the Canadiens' gateway in the second period won the game, 8-3. The period set a local record for high scoring by one team in one period.

From the moment the puck was turned loose at 8:45, blue and red streaks fairly burnt up the ice with their dizzy dashes. The Rangers started faster and kept the pace better throughout than did the red jerseyed Frenchmen from the North.

Rangers Set Furious Pace.

The Rangers abated their furious pace only after achieving a 6-0 lead at the close of the middle period. For nearly half of the last period they coasted in leisurely fashion before the Canadiens broke through for a score.

Then Mondou and Morenz counted goals in 9:46 and 10:11 respectively, serving notice on the Blue Shirts that the game was not yet concluded. The Rangers responded by matching the Mondou-Morenz shots with a pair of goals of their own making, so that Leduc's goal in 10:36 had little import attached.

The last two goals of the game, however, made their marks statistically. The eighth Ranger goal was credited to Keeling. His shot glanced off Morenz's stick as the Canadiens' ace desperately tried to intercept it a yard from the goal line. This stood as the first goal of the local National League season slapped by any player into his own net.

Major Penalty for Leduc.

The Leduc goal led to a major penalty for the Canadiens. A few seconds after Leduc scored he became entangled with Sparky Vail, and both were sent off the ice for two minutes to cool off. They chatted in the penalty box, and the tenor of their remarks was revealed when Leduc launched a devastating cross-check at Vail in centre-ice, knocking the local forward all over the place.

For this Leduc received a major penalty, a five-minute impost, almost all of which will be served at the start of the next game played by the French flyers, since last night's game ended a few seconds after Leduc vanished into the visitors' dressing room.

The first line Ranger forwards started the puck rolling the right way and Leo Bourgault distinguished himself by soaring up the ice to gain two goals in the latter half of the middle period.

Boucher and Bill Cook, like Bourgault, had two goals each. The other goals were to the credit of the second line, Paul Thompson and Butch Keeling each lighting the red bulb once.

The line-up:

Curtis High to Get Harrier Trophy Today, Marine Corps Will Take Part in Exercises

The Lieutenant Johnny Overton trophy, emblematic of the city P. S. A. L. cross-country championship, will be presented to the Curtis High School team at special exercises to take place in the school auditorium at New Brighton, S. I., at 10 o'clock this morning.

The principal address will be given by Colonel E. A. Greene of the United States Marine Corps. Others who are expected to speak are Dr. A. K. Aldinger, director of health education of the P. S. A. L.; Ralph McKee, a member of the Board of Education; John A. Lynch, president of the Borough of Richmond; David A. Rendt, Commissioner of Public Works of the Borough of Richmond; F. Porter Caruthers and James Bryan, former president of the Yale University Athletic Association. A detachment of marines from the Brooklyn Navy Yard with color guard and bugler also will attend.

Curtis High also won the trophy in 1928. The Staten Island harriers established a fine record this year and climaxed the season by winning the fourth annual national interscholastic meet at Newark on Thanksgiving Day, thus ending Schenectady High School's six-year dominance of interscholastic cross-country circles.

TEXTILE GAME TOPS P. S. A. L. LIST TODAY

Manhattan Five Can Clinch Title in Its Division by Defeating Seward Park.

Scholastic basketball will occupy the spotlight in virtually every section of the metropolitan area today, with almost a hundred schoolboy quintets scheduled to see action. Outstanding among the games in Greater New York are nine P. S. A. L. contests and five C. H. S. A. A. meetings. The competition in the Westchester interscholastic A. A. will start, and out on Long Island many fives will open their campaigns.

The Textile High School quintet, which has won all of its eight games to date in the Manhattan division of the P. S. A. L., is expected to clinch the Manhattan title today with a victory over Seward Park High. The game will be played in the High School of Commerce gymnasium. Stuyvesant, which is in second place, having lost twice to Textile for its only defeats, will oppose George Washington High on the latter's court.

Textile must lose today and also its final game next Tuesday, and Stuyvesant must score two triumphs to create a tie for the first place in the final standing, which is not anticipated. In the other Manhattan P. S. A. L. meeting slated for today, Haaren, which has lost every one of its eight games, will meet the Commerce five also at Commerce.

Hamilton to Oppose Lane.

The big game in the Brooklyn P. S. A. L. ranks will bring together Alexander Hamilton, which is leading the race, and Franklin K. Lane High, which is tied for second with Thomas Jefferson. Hamilton is ahead only because it has played and won one more game than either Lane and Jefferson. A Lane victory will topple Hamilton from its perch.

Jefferson is expected to keep pace with the leaders by downing Erasmus Hall, which has yet to win a league game, when the teams meet on the Jefferson court today. In the other Brooklyn P. S. A. L. contest Manual Training will play at James Madison.

Bronx P. S. A. L. contests will bring together Evander Childs and James Monroe at James Monroe, and Morris and De Witt Clinton on the latter's floor. Theodore Roosevelt, the Bronx leader, is not scheduled to play. In the lone Queens P. S. A. L. encounter, Far Rockaway and Bryant will clash on the Bryant court.

St. Ann's-All Hallows Play.

St. Ann's Academy, which is out in front in the Manhattan C. H. S. A. A. race, will strive for its fourth victory when it meets All Hallows on the St. Ann's court. In other Manhattan C. H. S. A. A. contests La Salle Academy will play at Regis High and Cathedral Boys High at De La Salle. Two Brooklyn C. H. S. A. A. games are St. Francis at Brooklyn Cathedral Prep and St. John's at Holy Trinity.

The opening of the Westchester Interscholastic A. A. race will be featured by the playing of several games. Contests listed include Mount Vernon at Mamaroneck, Roosevelt High of Yonkers at Gorton, New Rochelle at Port Chester and White Plains at Yonkers. Other scheduled Westchester games are Croton at Mount Kisco and Alumni at Harrison.

Among the many Long Island contests scheduled are Long Beach at Lawrence, West Hampton at Greenport, Woodmere High at South Side, Bay Shore at Patchogue, Malverne at Freeport, Oceanside at Valley Stream, Islip at Babylon, Southold at Centre Moriches, Northport at Amityville, Lindenhurst at Smithtown, Alumni at Hicksville, East Islip at Port Jefferson and Great Neck at Westbury. In New Jersey, Paterson Prep is slated to play at Newark Prep.

PETKIEWICZ HERE FOR INDOOR RACES

Polish Conqueror of Nurmi Arrives on Berengaria—Holds Records in Native Land.

MEET SPONSORS SEEK HIM

Those in Charge of First Four Winter Events Express Interest in Him as Competitor.

By ARTHUR J. DALEY.

Stanislaw Petkiewicz, newest member of the once select but rapidly growing club of the conquerers of Paavo Nurmi, arrived in New York yesterday afternoon on the Cunarder Berengaria, primed for competition on American tracks. The youthful Polish star, who is only 21, bears with him credentials from the A. A. U. of Poland.

He holds the Polish national records for every distance from 800-meters to 10,000 meters with his best times made at 2,000 and 3,000 meters. Recently in Stockholm he vanquished L. G. Lindgren, fourth-place winner for Sweden in the Olympic 10,000 meter run, and this, coupled with his triumph over the once peerless Paavo and his other European performances, have made him a much sought after figure.

He said that he would run here "if anyone invited him." Already those in charge of the first four meets of the indoor season have expressed interest in this University of Warsaw law student taking part in their events. These are the Columbus Council of the Knights of Columbus with its games on Jan. 4; the New York American Legion with its meet on Jan. 11; the Pastime A. C., which is reviving its track carnival after a lapse of many years on Jan. 15, and the Brooklyn College meet on Jan. 18. Acceptance of his credentials by the A. A. U. will enable Petkiewicz to compete in any or all of these meets.

Petkiewicz last ran on Nov. 3 and will have almost a month in which to polish up his speed and stamina before the season opens here. Except for four days of seasickness he stood the ocean voyage well.

M'LARNIN TO BOX GOLDSTEIN TONIGHT

Second Capacity Crowd of Week at Garden Expected to See 10-Round Contest.

BOTH ARE HEAVY PUNCHERS

Louis (Kid) Kaplan to Tackle Callahan, DiVodi to Oppose Lee in Other Ten-Rounders.

Madison Square Garden will hold its second capacity crowd of the week when Ruby Goldstein and Jimmy McLarnin, two of the foremost welterweights, collide in the feature bout of ten rounds at the Eighth Avenue arena tonight. Interest in the meeting between the two gladiators has been so widespread and intense that a crowd of 18,000, equal to that which witnessed the bout between Phil Scott and Otto von Porat at the Garden last Monday night, is expected to be on hand for the encounter.

The bout is regarded as one of the most promising attractions of the indoor season, from the standpoint of competition. Each boxer is recognized as an unusually heavy hitter for a welterweight, and the possibility of the bout ending before the tenth round seems far from remote.

Both fighters have impressed with the power of their punches, especially Goldstein, who has scored fifty-six knockout victories in sixty-six engagements.

Due to his greater experience and more impressive record, McLarnin is favored in the betting at odds of 6 to 5.

The bout is supported by a strong preliminary card. In the semi-final, which is also listed for ten rounds, Louis (Kid) Kaplan will tackle Andy Callahan, hard-hitting lightweight from Boston. Kaplan defeated Billy Wallace of Cleveland in his last appearance in the Garden, while Callahan has been winning regularly in his bouts in the Bay State.

The first ten-rounder will be between Andy DiVodi of Bay Ridge and Canada Lee, Harlem welterweight. In a six-round bout Tommy McInnes of Scotland will tackle Danny Devlin, Allentown, Pa., while the four-round opener will bring together Joe Gorman and Freddy McGrail.

Jimmy Abbott and Johnny Ciccarelli will be rivals in the main bout of ten rounds at the 106th Infantry Armory, Brooklyn, tonight. In the semi-final, which is listed for eight rounds, Charley Raymond will oppose Frankie Cardillo, Tony Ross will clash with Emil Chiafo, and Benny Nabors will tackle Dick Scalzi in the other eight-rounders, while Jack Fiala will box Benny Flax in the opening six-round battle.

STEP ALONG WINS AND PAYS $128.30

CURTAIN CALL TAKES FIRST

Gets Up in Last Stride to Get Nose in Front of Miss Ramsey at Jefferson Park.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—The long shot record for the meeting fell again today when J. H. O'Malley's Step Along galloped a mile and seventy yards around the Jefferson Park course and returned $128.30 for a $2 investment in the mutuels.

Step Along's victory was the most startling sort of a surprise, as every one of the other seven horses was backed heavily in the machines, but not Step Along. The next longest price was slightly more than 12 to 1, and the others ranged downward to the price of about 3 to 2 on Old Slip, the favorite. Step Along's price was slightly more than 63 to 1.

The previous longest price at this meeting was paid when My Beauty won at $34.70 on the sixth day of the session. On the opening day Clemence returned $54 for the usual investment, but his price was surpassed by Kiyi with $58.70. Charm, paying $67.80, won shortly after and then came My Beauty.

Thrills in Final Yards.

If Step Along had many backers, and this is doubtful unless they made sentimental bets on the gelding's form of years ago, they got plenty of thrills in the last few yards of the race, which was the Sunset Limited Purse and the feature.

Step Along, a gelded son of Uncle and Ivabel, is now seven, and his years proved almost too much for him, as he just lasted to win by a head from the fast closing Comet. This horse beat Old Slip by a length and a half, and then came Chum, Donnatina, Sanford, Woolorac and War Time. The time was 1:47 2-5 over the good track and the winner carried 112 pounds, which was the top weight, the same being borne by Old Slip.

Jockey M. Rose was up on Step Along and he proved most alert coming out of the stalls. Several of the horses held matters up by refusing to enter the stalls, and when all were finally in alignment Step Along was the most anxious to go. To say that Step Along's showing was a surprise is putting it mildly, as the old fellow has run frequently in the Chicago district and here without even threatening to get into the money. Any expectation that he would stop was not realized. Donnatina was the first to give up, and this made Old Slip the one to be in closest pursuit of the long shot. But coming into the stretch Rose and Step Along skimmed the fence and saved ground.

Comet Makes His Bid.

Comet made his bid when straightened out and when halfway down the stretch he was gaining with every stride. It was nip and tuck whether Step Along could hold together until he got over the line, but he made the grade although a stride past the finish Comet was in front.

The close finish in the feature was the order of the day as two other races were decided by margins of a head and two winners came home in front with only a nose to spare. The first nose finish was in the curtain raiser when Curtain Call, owned by T. E. Crist, just got up in the last stride to beat Miss Ramsey on the post.

The second race was decided by the comparatively long margin of a length and a half when Kadiak got down in front of Watkinson and Watch On. Then followed a six furlong sprint, which saw Miss M. Kelly's Orestes II charge courageously at the end to beat Chattahoochee by a head.

Sports of the Times

By ROBERT P. KELLEY.

(Pinch Hitting for John Kieran.)

FOOTBALL can no longer claim the exclusive rights on the scheme of changing rules. Apparently, the ease with which football's Rules Committee is able to order its subjects around has appealed to the rulers of others, for the spirit of restlessness is exhibiting itself in a good many of the sports old enough to be football's father.

Lawn tennis, polo, rowing, hockey and golf are all either threatening to try something new or have changed those threats into actual performance.

Baseball, apparently, slid past its annual meeting without any of the gay discussions of ten-man teams which featured last Winter's conclaves. But that doesn't mean there were not plenty of suggestions offered. They went all the way down to one which offered to call every foul a strike.

In some sports, the plans have called for a different system of performance rather than for changes in the rules. This was true of the rowing experiment conducted in recent months in England and rather promptly abandoned.

A Rowing Symphony.

The experiment of the oarsmen was started by scientists. These men, watching crews take their oars out of the water between strokes and, they thought, lose motion between the arms, suggested synchronizing the eight men in the boat.

The idea was to have some oars in the water all the time. Just how this was to be accomplished was not made exactly clear, for the experiment did not last quite long enough for details to reach this side of the water. The men were seated further apart, very probably, or else they wore headguards against bumping skulls. At first, results were hailed with shouts of success. The symphony crew did very well against the watch.

But they didn't do so nicely against another crew. They looked, according to reports, more like a bunch of men killing water snakes than anything else. The experiment was abandoned. There is probably a scientific reason why the plan failed. There always is in rowing.

But such experiments in rowing are nothing new and really a part of the game. There was even a Harvard freshman crew, not so many years ago, with two sets of oars; broad-bladed ones to use going with the wind; narrow-bladed ones to use going against it.

A Lawn Tennis Outrage.

Golf, of course, is using the new ball, and England has just recently agreed to the steel-shafted clubs. It is in tennis that the rumblings of an outrageous plan are threatening. This is a plan to do away with the net-cord. Any tennis player who has ever seen one of his own drives strike the tape, roll along and drop into the other court, will want to prevent any such scheme as this. The rebels want to play it over, just like a let service, or, worse still, call any ball bad which does not clear the net.

Perhaps the moralists are behind the move. Certainly, there is little character building in telling your opponent how sorry you are while you try to stifle the relief you feel.

And the old system of scoring is coming under fire again. This time not so much from sturdy souls who resent the use of the word "love," as from those who feel that an entire set ought to be decided on points and a match scored that way rather than in games. At present, they hold, a man may lose 6—0, 6—0 after sending many games to deuce and not gain credit for the fight he has put up. Not a bad idea.

And then there is, of course, the near certainty that tennis, if not this year, than in the near future, will have an open championship patterned after the open of golf.

Economy Comes to Polo.

In polo the off-season excitement is a well-defined sentiment in the Middle West and elsewhere for shortening the game from eight periods to six.

Here, where—if you believe in fiction and advertising posters—only young millionaires romp about, the movement is one of economy. The reasons are obvious enough. Fewer periods mean fewer ponies. And the proponents further add that shorter games will make it possible for the players to get out to fields from their offices more often.

One by one the illusions are being destroyed. The vision of a polo player rushing from an office desk, leaving letters "dictated, but not read," like an ordinary golfer, does not measure up with the gilded tradition.

And there has been the further suggestion that free hits from fouls be discontinued and the offending player be banished to the sidelines for a minute or so instead as they are in hockey.

Appropriately enough, this suggestion has come from Major Frederic McLaughlin, owner of the Chicago Black Hawks. McLaughlin himself was a fine polo player on the Pacific Coast in his earlier years and still retains his interest in the sport.

Some Hockey Complaints.

The new hockey rules, designed to heighten scoring, seem to be losing some of their edge. Several of the recent games have been decided by just as narrow a margin as they used to be in the past.

The old system of "ganging" the man with the puck in your own defense sector has given way to one of gently grouping about the first man over, thus nullifying the forward passing.

If the game tightens up again this year, they may try sending the attackers down behind whippet tanks. They are still making more goals with prostrate forwards than with the rubber disk, and these don't count in the score.

SPRING LAKE WINS IN PINEHURST POLO

Defeats Fort Bragg Reds, 9-6, in Second Game of Annual Fall Tournament.

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 12.—Spring Lake, N. J., defeated the Fort Bragg Reds in the second game of the annual Fall polo tournament today, 9 goals to 6, qualifying for the final on Saturday with the Fort Bragg Whites.

The army officers played under a five-goal handicap, Captain Peter P. Rodes, the international match referee, alone bearing seven goals, and were able to tally only six times. Spring Lake scored four goals.

The game was one of the fastest played here in several years. At times Captain Rodes gave a dazzling exhibition for the artillerymen with his horsemanship and mallet-work. He scored two goals and pulled his team from several tight places. Captain P. C. Fleming scored three goals for the army team and shone in defensive work. Alex Bullock led Spring Lake and in addition scored two of his team's goals. The Jerseymen exhibited exceptional team-work.

The line-up:

Spring Lake (9).	Fort Bragg Reds (6).
1—Molitor	1—Elliott
2—Maxwell	2—Fleming
3—Bullock	3—Rodes
Back—Drage	Back—Crane

Goals—Spring Lake: Bullock 2, Maxwell, Molitor, by handicap 6. Fort Bragg Reds: Fleming 3, Rodes 2, Elliott.

Actress Defends Longer Vogue Before Women's Federation—Writer Denounces It.

FEMINIST IN OPPOSITION

Elsie Hill Tells Zonta Club Trailing Garments Make for 'Exaggeration of Sex'—Husband Backs Her.

The long and short of the dress problem were debated with spirit by feminists, fashion experts, an actress and a lawyer at two meetings of women in the city yesterday afternoon and last night. When the debates were over the situation remained exactly as it had been in the beginning: Some liked the long skirts of the present season and some did not.

The first debate was at the home-making centre of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs in the Grand Central Palace. The second was at a dinner of the Zonta Club, a business woman's organization, in the Women's City Club, Park Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street.

At the federation discussion Miss Gertrude Lawrence, actress, appeared in and defended the long skirts. She found that the longer skirts made their wearers "easier to look at" and, since they hid the knees, were an esthetic advance for which the world could be thankful. She denied that they made women any the less free.

"They make women more free," she asserted. "They emphasize women's femininity. And every woman knows that the way to get things she wants is to be feminine and her husband will let her have her own way."

Rita Weiman, author, dwelt on the floor-sweeping disadvantages of long skirts and declared them unbecoming.

"The long skirts are a retrogression and a discomfort," she remarked. "Short skirts are honest and healthful, and that does not mean any lack of femininity."

At the Zonta Club dinner Miss Elsie Hill, feminist, declared herself unqualifiedly against the trailing garments. She argued that they had turned women back "to the most extreme exaggeration of sex."

Albert Levitt, Professor of Law at St. Lawrence University, husband of Miss Hill, was the only man at the dinner. He took the same view as did his wife and contended that it was unfortunate that a style committee of twelve men should be allowed to dictate the fashions of more than 100,000,000 women and girls.

Professor Levitt said that the character of growing girls is influenced by fashion; that the change in styles greatly interferes with their conduct in the classroom.

Miss Raymond Ivas of Vogue, fashion magazine, and Miss Marcia Connor, professional stylist, took a less severe view. They maintained that the advent of the long skirt does not necessarily mean that the short garment must be abandoned. Business women, they stated, can wear the short skirt for office and street, but can lift themselves out of the workaday atmosphere entirely by wearing the longer dress for social events.

'DON GIOVANNI' YIELDS $5,000 FOR CHARITY

Mme. Rethberg Sings With Arm in Sling—Mme. Alda, Martinelli in 'Manon Lescaut.'

"Don Giovanni" for the third time and "Manon Lescaut" for the second made a double opera day at the Metropolitan yesterday. Each was heard by many partisans, whether for musical or other cause, and the classic Mozart revival achieved the feat of drawing a special matinee audience that paid $5,000 profit for the annual benefit of the Florence Crittenton League.

Mme. Rethberg as Donna Elvira wore her arm in a sling, owing to a recent mishap in which she was scalded while heating an inhaler for a cold. Singing with her as before were Mmes. Corona and Fleischer; Messrs. Gigli, Pinza, Rothier, Ludikar and d'Angelo in Mozart's delightful ensemble.

Mme. Alda and Mr. Martinelli assumed the leading parts in Puccini's youthful work last night, as they have in other years. Mr. De Luca and a dozen others of this season's opening cast appeared with them, and Mr. Serafin conducted both afternoon and evening.

MOISEIWITSCH RETURNS.

Russian Pianist Welcomed by a Large Audience in Town Hall.

Benno Moiseiwitsch, the Russian pianist, gave his second recital of the season last night in the Town Hall, where he was welcomed by a large audience on his return from a tour of Central America, which embraced Santiago and other cities off the beaten path of concert artists.

For his program last night Mr. Moiseiwitsch chose familiar classics, without the contrasting modern works which he is accustomed to include on his list. His fine art, which has steadily matured since his first appearances here a decade ago, consistently held the interest of his audience. Never a profoundly emotional interpreter, Mr. Moiseiwitsch always gives clearly articulated, sympathetically conceived and technically brilliant performances of genuinely pianistic and musical distinction. His program, opening with Beethoven's "Andante Favori," included Bach's Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue, Brahm's variations on a theme by Handel and three familiar Chopin ballades. To these were added several encores in response to enthusiastic applause.

DONNA ORTENSIA SINGS.

Assisted by Mario Braggiotti, Who Plays Piano With Nine Digits.

Donna Ortensia appeared in a song recital yesterday at the Empire Theatre, assisted by Mario Braggiotti, pianist.

The vocalist displayed an unusual linguistic equipment and clear diction in compositions by Scarlatti and a fifteenth century De Luca with Italian text; German works by Schubert and Brahms, Duparc's "L'Invitation au Voyage" and some Sicilian, Rumanian and Neapolitan folk-songs. The coloring of some of the lower notes of the recitalist's range suggested that she eventually might be more at home in contralto repertoire. Samuel Quincy accompanied her.

Just before Mr. Braggiotti appeared, an announcement was made from the stage that he had had an operation on a thumb and would therefore limit himself to two works. These sounded as if they might have been Debussy's "La Cathédrale engloutie" and de Falla's "Fire Dance" from "The Love Sorcerer." For one playing with but nine digits, Mr. Braggiotti displayed unusual vigor.

MENGELBERG GIVES BEETHOVEN WORKS

Begins With Simple First Symphony and Ends With the Gigantic Ninth.

SCHOLA CANTORUM SINGS

Chorus Again Proves Its Capacity to Deal With the Heights and Depths of Vocal Passages.

By OLIN DOWNES.

A Beethoven program was given by Willem Mengelberg and the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, which commenced with the First Symphony and ended with the Ninth. No doubt the First Symphony is used so frequently by conductors when the Ninth Symphony follows because the First Symphony is so simple and clear and asks so little, emotionally, of the audience about to be inducted into the thunders and portents of the Ninth. On the other hand, the First Symphony is so small in proportion to the Ninth, and relatively such immature Beethoven, and moreover so little in consonance with the inflection or mood of the most gigantic of the symphonys that we always have a deep desire for a concert which initiates the Ninth Symphony with the "Lenore" Overture 3, or some other appropriate example of the greater Beethoven.

Mr. Mengelberg's reading of the Ninth Symphony is well known and respected in this city. He has an admirable grasp of the colossal architecture of the piece, which also displays his technical command of orchestra and chorus. When he is rough or heavyhanded it sometimes occurs that the music endures such treatment. His tempi last night were well judged in the opinion of this writer, although a more ethereal color would probably have relieved an impression of a certain undue weightiness in the slow movement. But that is a debatable place, even among conductors, and the strings, if the coloring was not always the most transparent, sang the melodies with a fine breadth and sonority.

There was some rather mannered phrasing, and in the first movement a coarseness of texture which did not seem precisely necessary to the music. We have heard a Ninth Symphony that was less flesh and more flame, nevertheless the forthrightness, vigor and full-bloodedness of this reading of Mr. Mengelberg's merited the approval the audience bestowed upon it.

There is no need in this day to talk of the work itself, of the manifest superiority of the instrumental movements over the choral finale; of the disproportionate length of some parts and the incompleteness of Beethoven's realization of an impossible dream. He is so much greater in this partial accomplishment than other composers who have wrought perfection within a smaller compass of spirit and form! For there are, indeed, cosmic echoes in this music, over which a vast spirit broods, so that there are pages which remind the listener of Biblical text—of the universe that was darkness and void and the spirit of God that moved over the waters.

One of the best elements of the performance was the singing of the chorus of the Schola Cantorum, trained by Hugh Ross, which again proved its capacity to deal with the cruel heights and depths of the vocal passages. It sang with exceptional resonance and seemed to carry out fully the conductor's wishes. There was some insecure intonation, and more insecure intonation on the part of a quartet which consisted of Jeannette Vreeland, soprano, Nevada van der Veer, contralto; Richard Crooks, tenor, and Fred Patton, baritone, who intoned his opening recitative with a five color. But it is always a chance as to whether the singers can attain and retain the pitch that is desirable when they undertake the passages that Beethoven asks them to perform.

The attention of the audience and its manifest enthusiasm showed how deeply this work appeals to the musical public. At the end there was long applause and even shouts of approval for the interpreters.

FOR STAGE GIRLS' FAMILIES.

Cohan and Harris to Repeat Friars' Frolic Sketch at Benefit.

One of the outstanding numbers in the midnight benefit tomorrow night at the Imperial Theatre for the families of the chorus girl victims of the Pathé Studio fire will be the reappearance of George M. Cohan and Sam H. Harris in the sketch which they performed at the Friar's Silver Jubilee Frolic on Nov. 24. The dialogue, lyrics and music of the sketch, entitled "Good Old Pals," were written by Mr. Cohan.

Others who will appear are the principal members of the casts of "Sons o' Guns," "The Little Show" and Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book," as well as George Gershwin, Fannie Brice and Gertrude Lawrence. Tickets are on sale at the Imperial Theatre box office.

Lee Solomon, treasurer of the Music Box Theatre, has charge of the financial arrangements for the benefit. A donation of $100 for the victims' families was made yesterday by Walter F. Wanger, Eastern production manager of the Paramount-Famous-Lasky Corporation.

WILL HAYS NOT RE-ELECTED

C. E. Milliken Also Is Off Board of Church and Drama Body.

The Rev. George Reid Andrews, executive secretary of the Church and Drama Association, confirmed the report yesterday that Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America and Carl E. Milliken, former Governor of Maine, general secretary of the same organization, are no longer on the board of directors of the same association.

"It was deemed wise," Dr. Andrews explained, "not to have representatives of the motion picture industry on the board of directors. A committee appointed to look into the matter decided six months ago that it would be best not to re-elect Mr. Hays and Mr. Milliken to the board."

I. K. DAVIS INDICTED IN PLAY PRODUCTION

Author Accused of Larceny in Unsuccessful Staging of "Veils" in 1928.

Dozen Men and Women Complain to Prosecutor After Hearings in Magistrate's Court.

Four indictments charging grand larceny were voted by the grand jury yesterday against Irving Kaye Davis, 30 years old, a playwright, in connection with his unsuccessful stage production of his play "Veils" in 1928. The indictments will be handed up to Judge Koenig in General Sessions this morning, according to Assistant District Attorney Edward V. Loughlin, who presented the evidence to the grand jury.

In two indictments, Davis is accused of having defrauded Mrs. Lillian B. Mason of 3,871 Sedgwick Avenue, the Bronx, of $2,500 through sale to her of twenty-five shares of stock of Veils, Inc., which he organized early in 1928 to produce the play, and of inducing her to cash a $1,500 check in May of that year when he had no funds in the bank on which it was drawn.

The other indictments were based on the complaint of George Stevenson, a publicity director, of 19 West Thirty-fifth Street, that Davis obtained $2,500 from him for thirty-five shares of Veils, Inc., and that he also cashed a $135 check for Davis which came back from the bank marked "account closed."

Mrs. Mason alleged that when Davis sold her the stock he told her that Lee Shubert, theatrical manager, had offered him $30,000 for a controlling interest in "Veils" and that Adolph Zukor of the Paramount Pictures Corporation was negotiating for the motion picture rights.

Mr. Stevenson said that Davis had told him that Mr. Zukor had offered him $80,000 for the picture rights, the Assistant District Attorney said, and that Davis also had told him that former Governor Smith and John J. Raskob, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, were interested in the production.

GRACE GEORGE HERE DEC. 28

Her Opening in "The First Mrs. Fraser" Postponed From Christmas.

Grace George will not open at the Playhouse on Christmas night, as scheduled, in "The First Mrs. Fraser," but on Saturday night, Dec. 28. The St. John Ervine comedy will continue next week in Chicago, where it will give its last performance on Dec. 21.

Because of this change of plan, "Street Scene" will not move to the Ambassador Theatre until Saturday, Dec. 28, opening with the matinee performance. "Street Scene" will give matinees on Thursday, Dec. 26, and Friday, Dec. 27, at the Playhouse, and daily afternoon performances through New Year's at the Ambassador.

"Strike Up the Band" Here Jan. 6.

Definite announcement that "Strike Up the Band" would open at the Times Square Theatre on Monday, Jan. 6 was made yesterday by Edgar Selwyn. Clark and McCullough are the stars of the musical comedy, and the cast will further include Blanche Ring, Ethel Kenyon, Jerry Goff, Dudley Clements and Doris Carson. George Gershwin and Morrie Ryskind are responsible for the revised version of the show, which will open in Boston Christmas night.

ARTIST LOSES WORK THAT SHAW SIGNED

Dramatist Autographed Sketches of Himself to Aid Sculptor Sell Them to Americans.

A young sculptor, whose great-grandfather was Marcos Botsaris, hero of Greece's fight for freedom against Turkey, has come to this country to give his first art exhibition, but because of an accident here he will not be able to carry out the joking advice which he received from George Bernard Shaw.

Several years ago when the young sculptor, Sava Botsaris, was starting his career in London Mr. Shaw granted his plea for an opportunity to sketch him. When the drawing was completed Botsaris showed it to the playwright and requested his signature. Smilingly Mr. Shaw autographed the portrait and then signed his name on five blank sheets of the sketching pad.

"Copy the portrait on those sheets I have autographed," advised Mr. Shaw, laughing, "and sell them to the Americans. They will pay more for my portraits if I autograph them."

One of the sketches Botsaris did sell, but kept the four others for his exhibition here, which opens at the Fifty-sixth Street Galleries, 6 East Fifty-sixth Street, on Dec. 20. Meantime he made drawings of other eminent Londoners and obtained their signatures.

Just before sailing for this country several weeks ago, Botsaris called on Mr. Shaw to say good-bye. The playwright reached for his checkbook and drew a check for $80, which he presented the sculptor for passage money to this country. "You are young," Shaw said, according to the sculptor. "I want to give you this for good luck."

ROLE FOR PHYLLIS POVAH.

She Will Appear in "Trevelyn's Ghost," Now in Rehearsal.

Phyllis Povah, who last appeared here in "Vermont" early this year, has been engaged for the principal feminine rôle in Dwight Taylor's farce, "Trevelyn's Ghost." Miss Povah will succeed Violet Vivian (Mrs. Charles Hopkins). Rehearsals are now being held under the direction of the author and Frederick Kerr, who is a member of the cast. Others in the company are Nancy Ryan, Charles Brown and Rea Martin.

"Trevelyn's Ghost" is booked to open in Wilmington on Dec. 27 and then go to Washington before coming to Broadway. A. L. Erlanger and George C. Tyler are its producers.

Will Morrissey Revue in Hoboken.

Will Morrissey, who produced "Keep It Clean" at the Selwyn Theatre last Summer, plans to open a revue, as yet unnamed, at the Lyric Theatre, Hoboken, on Dec. 26. Mrs. Morrissey (Midgie Miller) will stage the dances, and the chorus, according to announcement, will be composed largely of New Jersey girls.

"Mr. Gilhooley" to Be Dramatized.

Liam O'Flaherty's novel, "Mr. Gilhooley," published early in 1927, will be presented in play form by Henry B. Forbes, it was reported last night. The play is concerned with Irish life in Dublin. Chester Erskin, who staged "Harlem" and "Subway Express," will direct the production. He will begin selecting a cast next week. The work of adaptation, it is said, is being done by Frank Elsner.

Miss Frederick Ill; Play Closed.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13 (AP).—Announcement was made today that illness of Pauline Frederick, star of "The Queen Was in the Parlor," has forced the closing of the play. Dr. Edgar L. Craft said the actress is suffering from food poisoning, and will be confined to the hospital for several days.

FAVOR TAN FOR OTHELLO.

Performers in Opera and Play in Chicago Rule Out Black for Skin.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13 (AP).—Othello was a sun-burned Negro and henceforth he will be so depicted by players of the Civic Theatre and singers of the Chicago Civic Opera Company.

A conference between two Othellos, Charles Marshall of the Civic Opera and Louis Leon Hall of the Civic Theatre, and two Iagos, Cesare Formichi of the opera and Fritz Leiber of the theatre, reached a decision on the question today.

Heretofore Marshall has sung the rôle of Othello in coal black make-up, while Hall enacted the character with coffee-tan complexion.

In Shakespeare's play Othello is referred to as a black, but the conference today decided deep sun-burn was meant.

Tyrone Power, veteran actor, was forced to relinquish the rôle of Othello with the Civic Theatre Company yesterday when his voice left him at the close of the matinee performance. He was confined to bed today suffering from laryngitis.

STONE TO REAPPEAR AT NEW AMSTERDAM

Mrs. Stone and Their Daughter in New Musical Show to Follow 'Sherlock Holmes' Revival.

The musical show in which Fred Stone will return to the stage will follow William Gillette's revival of "Sherlock Holmes" at the New Amsterdam Theatre, A. L. Erlanger announced yesterday. Charles Dillingham will be the producer of the Stone show, as yet untitled, which will have a book by William Anthony McGuire and music by Jerome Kern.

Dorothy Stone will appear with her father, as will Paula Stone, another daughter, who will make her stage début. Mrs. Stone will also be in the company which will include Andrew Tombes and Eddie Foy Jr.

Mr. Stone was injured in an airplane crash during the Summer of 1928. "Three Cheers," in which he was preparing to appear at the time, was produced here last Fall with Will Rogers substituting for his injured friend.

The SKY HAWK Conquers THE CRITICS

"A melodrama of the skies which has not been equalled in its adroit handling, its competent acting, its authentic atmospheric effects or the tonal quality of the voices of the participants was launched Wednesday night by William Fox at the Gaiety Theatre. It is a film that even in its early stages catches one's interest to an unbelievable extent."
—Mordaunt Hall, N. Y. Times.

"Searchlights play across the night, London's streets are filled with jumbled, confused people. Theatres go on playing and in the pubs people go on drinking. It is wartime London, and, more particularly, wartime London during a Zeppelin raid. All this is dynamically pictured in 'The Sky Hawk,' the new movietone that came to the Gaiety last evening. 'The Sky Hawk' is enjoyable. There is a definite feeling that things are what they seem to be. In other words, the atmosphere is good."
—John S. Cohen, Jr., Sun.

"The Sky Hawk," a tip-top thriller. Here's a movie! For thrills, action, sound, acting, production, "The Sky Hawk" tops all the previous air thrillers by 5,000 feet! What a movie! New, Fresh, Exciting, Tasteful, Dignified, Convincing. And still a talking movie! John Garrick, a new leading man, plays the hero with charm and ease. You'll like him. "The Sky Hawk" is one of the best talk and sound movies of the year."—Bland Johnsson, Daily Mirror.

"The Sky Hawk" is distinguished by some of the most dramatic and head-stopping sequences seen during a full season of photoreams. . . . The individual characterizations are excellent, every one. The title role is played by an English actor from the stage. His name is John Garrick. He possesses a pleasing screen personality and is a remarkably smooth actor. . . . Garrick seems a distinct addition to the ranks of film juveniles. . . . "The Sky Hawk" is stirring drama and enthralling entertainment."—Regina Crewe, N. Y. American.

"The Sky Hawk" came to Broadway Wednesday night, having its premiere at the Gaiety, and is the most profoundly thrilling aviation picture. . . . John Garrick, a young English actor, portrays the name part and you are hereby cautioned to reserve a place in your album for him. For he is going to be big. He's big now, if only judged by this picture, but you're going to hear a lot more of him. . . . Playing opposite Garrick is Helen Chandler, former stage star, and the choice must have been inspired. The two make a fascinating couple."

"The Sky Hawk" affords thrills aplenty. . . . It brings to a featured talkie role a certain young John Garrick. And make believe you aren't going to see a lot of John in the future."—Irene Thirer, Daily News.

"Its thrill is a mighty one and inescapable . . . it is something to see."
—Quinn Martin, Morning World.

"The new all-talking picture which William Fox presented Wednesday night at the Gaiety is called 'The Sky Hawk' and it deals with airplanes, aviators and the late World War. It is a thrilling, well-acted, expertly directed film . . . diverting and entertaining. The picture has more than its share of exciting moments. John Garrick, an Englishman new to American films, does good work in the title part and so does Helen Chandler as Joan Allen."

ALL AMERICA HEARS MARCONI IN LONDON

Millions Listen as Inventor Broadcasts Story of First Transocean Signal.

PREDICTS POWER BY RADIO

He Says Transmission Over Moderate Distances Is Likely Soon.

REVIEWS HIS EXPERIMENTS

Beset by Series of Misfortunes Before His Triumph Was Gained 28 Years Ago.

Guglielmo Marconi, the inventor of wireless, spoke before a microphone in London yesterday and all America was within sound of his voice. His words crossed the Atlantic on short waves, to be picked up for rebroadcasting by the National Broadcasting Company's coast-to-coast network of fifty-nine stations. Marconi came on the air at 1:45 P. M., New York Time, after a brief introduction by an English announcer whose accent gave sufficient clue that America was in tune with London.

The broadcast marked the twenty-eighth anniversary of the first transatlantic signal, the letter "S" flashed across the sea from Poldhu, on the southwest tip of England, to Marconi and his assistants listening in at the receiving station set up for the occasion in Newfoundland.

"I wonder," said a listener yesterday, "if twenty-eight years ago Marconi dreamed that some day his voice would cross the sea to be picked up by millions as clear as if he were present in the room with the loud-speaker."

Marconi assured his listeners that he not only dreamed that the human voice would span long distances but that he is still dreaming of more triumphs for wireless, including the transmission of power through the ether. He called radio today child's play compared with wireless in 1901, when with crude, cumbersome and insensitive instruments he picked up the first transoceanic wireless signal intercepted by an antenna held aloft by a kite. He used a coherer for a detector. The crystal detector and vacuum tube were later achievements.

Tells of His Difficulties.

"From the time of my earliest experiments I had always held the belief, almost amounting to an intuition, that radio signals would some day be regularly sent across the greatest distances on earth, and I felt convinced that transatlantic radio telegraphy would be feasible," said Marconi. "Very naturally I realized that my first endeavor must be directed to prove that an electric wave could be sent right across the Atlantic and detected at the other side.

"What was at that time a most powerful wireless station was built at Poldhu in England for this purpose and an antenna system was constructed, supported by a ring of twenty wooden masts, each about 200 feet high. In the design and construction of this English station I was assisted by Sir Ambrose Fleming, R. N. Vyvyan and W. S. Entwisle.

"Another similar station was erected at Cape Cod in Massachusetts. By the end of August, 1901, the erection of the masts was nearly completed when a terrific gale swept the English coasts, with the result that the masts were blown down and the whole construction wrecked. I was naturally extremely disappointed at this unforeseen accident and for some days had visions of my test having to be postponed for several months or longer, but eventually decided that it might be possible to make a preliminary trial with a simpler aerial attached to a stay stretched between two masts 170 feet high and consisting of sixty almost vertical wires.

"By the time this aerial was erected another unfortunate accident, also caused by a gale, occurred in America, destroying the antenna system of the Cape Cod station.

"I then decided, notwithstanding this further setback, to carry out experiments in Newfoundland with a seasoned aerial supported by a balloon or kite, as it was clearly impossible at that time of the year, owing to the wintry conditions and to the shortness of the time at our disposal to erect high masts to support the receiving aerial. On Nov. 26, 1901, I sailed from Liverpool, accompanied by two technical assistants, G. S. Kemp and P. W. Paget.

Experiments in Newfoundland.

"We landed at St. John's, N. F., on Friday, Dec. 6. On the morning of Thursday, Dec. 12, the critical moment for which I had been working so long at last arrived, and in spite of the raging gale we managed to fly a kite carrying an antenna wire some 400 feet long.

"I was at last on the point of putting the correctness of my belief to the test. To them I had nearly always used a receiving arrangement including a coherer, which recorded automatically signals through a relay and a Morse instrument. I decided in this instance to use also a telephone connected to a self-restoring coherer, the human ear being far more sensitive than the recorder.

"Suddenly, at about half past twelve, a succession of three faint clicks on the telephone, corresponding to the three dots of the letter S, sounded several times in my ear beyond the possibility of a doubt.

"I asked my assistant, Mr. Kemp, for corroboration if he had heard anything. He had, in fact, heard the same signals then.

"I then knew that I had been justified in my anticipations and that the very enormous distance for radio of 1,700 miles had been bridged. The electric waves which were being sent out into space from Poldhu had traversed the Atlantic unimpeded by the curvature of the earth, which so many considered to be a fatal obstacle and they were now audible in my receiver in Newfoundland!"

Repeats Famous Signal.

At this point Marconi touched a wireless key that repeated the three dots that comprise the "S" so that listeners in Europe and America could hear the signal that he picked up twenty-eight years ago. He said that the Institute of Electrical Engineers was the only technical and scientific body that "first believed in me and my statement of having received signals across the Atlantic."

"The spanning of great distances is now child's play compared with what it was then," said Marconi. "The 1-beam projector and other commercial radio telegraph and telephone stations are exchanging daily hundreds of thousands of words between distant parts of the earth. Wireless telephony over world-wide distances is a reality, together with transmission of pictures, and the day is perhaps approaching when television will also be a commonplace. It may even be that the transmission of power over moderate distances may be developed in the not far distant future. I must leave to your imagination the uses which can be made of these new powers. They will probably be as wonderful as anything which we have experienced today.

"I am glad to think that my friends Mr. Kemp and Mr. Paget, who were with me at St. John's, N. F., twenty-eight years ago, are with me at the microphone now while I am addressing you, and I wish to send my most cordial greetings to all those interested in radio in America. (I feel sure they form the majority of the American people), and to all my friends at the other side of the Atlantic."

Several cablegrams were dispatched from this country to Marconi following the reception of his address. M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company, sent the following:

Heartiest congratulations. Reception of your address was excellent—every word understood. It was rebroadcast throughout the United States over fifty-nine stations.

Mr. Aylesworth's cablegram to Sir John Reith, managing director of the British Broadcasting Company, follows:

Congratulations on Marconi transmission received from G5SW (Chelmsford, England, short-wave station). Rebroadcast throughout the United States over fifty-nine stations.

David Sarnoff, executive vice president of the Radio Corporation of America, sent the following cablegram from Washington to Marconi:

American scientists twenty-eight years ago were proud and glad to recognize your achievement. Today they were thrilled to hear your personal description of the momentous event. Congratulations.

A radiogram was sent to Marconi from New York by the American Society of Electrical Engineers, which entertained the wireless inventor at a dinner here in 1902 following his achievement. The communication follows:

Your statement today regarding the recognition given your first transmission of radio signals across the Atlantic are deeply appreciated. We are pleased to know that the 1902 dinner remains in your mind as a memorable occasion. Sincere congratulations upon your many important achievements in radio communication.

St irred by Marconi Prophesy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Marchese Marconi's prophesy in a speech to America, broadcast from the Chelmsford experimental station tonight that "radio transmission of power over moderate distances may be developed in the not far distant future," attracted considerable attention here. It was recalled that there had been several reports of successful experiments along these lines carried out by the Marconi factories and tonight's utterance has given them added weight. It was recently reported that a filament lamp had been lit to a considerable brilliancy by a radio beam at a distance of 100 feet from a transmitter.

COLUMBIA RUSHING ENDS.

Formal Bids to Fraternities to Be Offered to 250 Freshmen Today.

Protected from the high-pressure salesmanship of fraternity "rushers" by a policing committee of seniors, 250 Columbia freshmen will appear in the trustees' room of the university library this morning to receive formal invitations from the college's twenty-eight Greek letter societies.

The ten-day rushing period which closed yesterday was conducted by interfraternity agreement under regulations imposed by the Interfraternity Council.

Last night representatives of each fraternity filed with Dean Herbert E. Hawkes invitations to freshmen. Fraternity men will be barred from this morning's ceremony, at which Dean Hawkes and Assistant Dean Willet L. Eccles will officiate. No freshman will be permitted to leave the trustees' room this morning until he has definitely decided to accept one of the offers or to reject all. Each will confirm his decision by going to the house of his choice for luncheon.

INEQUALITIES HOLD IN RADIO FACILITIES

Federal Board Tells the Senate States Have Not Asked Power Apportionment.

CHANNELS DECREASED HERE

Division of Frequencies Between Zones Has Been Achieved as Far as Possible, Board Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Although the equality of radio broadcasting facilities demanded by the Davis amendment to the radio law has been achieved "so far as possible" in the allocation of frequencies and time of station operation, the "desired equality of power," through no fault of the Radio Commission, has not been achieved, the commission informed the Senate today in a report submitted in compliance with the Sackett resolution calling for a nineteen-months' comparison of such facilities.

"This was due," the commission said, "first, to the fact that States have not availed themselves of the opportunity of obtaining their proportion of power through lack of applications, and second, to the fact that some applications for power could not be approved. Had the necessary number of applications been received from stations located at suitable points or applications received for increases of power at existing stations at suitable points, this equality of power would have been accomplished."

The report stated that in New York State, on March 28, 1928, there were forty-eight stations operating day or night or both, while on Nov. 27, 1929, there were fifty-three, of which ten were national, twenty-eight regional and fifteen local stations. In New Jersey, in March, 1928, there were twenty-six stations, compared with fourteen in November, 1929, of which three were national, ten regional and one local.

Channels Reduced in Two States.

In March, 1928, New York State had thirty-four frequencies, which were reduced in November, 1929, to twenty-eight, of which ten were national, twelve regional and six local. In New Jersey, in March, 1928, there were eighteen frequencies, which were reduced in November, 1929, to seven, of which three were national, three regional and one local.

In March, 1928, New York State had 127,390 watts power, which was increased in November, 1929, to 162,765 watts, of which 145,000 watts were used on national frequencies, 16,760 on regional and 1,015 on local channels.

New Jersey in March, 1928, had 54,175 watts, but this was reduced in November, 1929, to 14,850 watts, of which 10,000 watts were used on national frequencies, 4,750 on regional and 100 watts on local channels.

The Sackett resolution also sought information as to stations said to be on the air without authority of the commission.

"No transmitters are or have been permitted to operate without a license," the commission stated in this connection.

Special Tests Permitted.

"In a few instances tests have been permitted on written or telegraphic authority of the commission. In certain cases where information has come to the commission regarding stations operating without a license such information has been referred to the Department of Justice for appropriate action.

"The law provides that facilities not used or applied for by satisfactory applicants may be borrowed by another zone. This provision has been used to a very limited extent. At the present time the fourth zone is using a cleared channel borrowed from the second zone, and the second zone has borrowed half a cleared channel from the fourth zone."

Up to Dec. 10 the commission had authorized construction permits for six 50,000-watt stations, of which one was in the first, two in the third, two in the fourth and one in the fifth zone. There were none in the second zone.

"The commission," the report declared, "has presented in a general order, No. 40, the means of equalizing the power of the zones and its distribution to States on the basis of population, but the States have not requested that power, or else presented applications for power assignments which could not be granted without endangering the reception enjoyed by the people.

"The commission has not seen fit to penalize certain States who have asked for power assignments authorized by existing orders," the report concluded, "simply because other stations have not taken advantage of these orders."

SOUTHERN GOVERNOR AIDS NEGRO GIRL HERE

Murder Charge Dropped and Minor Plea Taken on His Show of Interest.

Although George Foster Peabody and Governor Gardner of North Carolina had shown an interest in the case of Leola O'Neil, 17-year-old negress, the girl pleaded guilty yesterday to second degree manslaughter in Judge Allen's part of General Sessions where she was on trial on a first degree murder indictment. She admitted that on May 2 last she killed Manuello Mantera with an axe on the barge of which he was captain at Hudson River and Fifty-eighth Street. The slaying was the outcome of the attempt of the victim to attack her, she said. She is to be sentenced next Thursday.

The interest of Mr. Peabody in the girl's case was aroused by a representative of the New York Urban League, to whom she had told her story after her indictment. Mr. Peabody wrote to Governor Gardner, and the latter replied that, if the girl were freed on the charge, he would see that a home with proper surroundings was provided for her in North Carolina, where she was born. Mr. Peabody had offered to come to court and tell Judge Allen of the Governor's offer, but her decision to plead guilty to the lesser offense made that unnecessary.

Wrecked Celtic Beyond Refloating.

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, Dec. 12 (AP).—All hope was abandoned today of refloating the liner Celtic which stranded on the rocks near here a year ago. The liner has broken her keel. The front part remains on the rock but the stern has fallen into deep water. It is feared the present rough weather may carry the hull into Fairway Block, Cobh Harbor.

GET AUTO DEATH VERDICTS.

Heirs of Two Victims Suing Baking Company Win $100,000 Award.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 12.—A Supreme Court jury awarded today a verdict of $55,000 to Mrs. Irene Degenstein of 43 Cliff Avenue, Yonkers, as administratrix of the estate of her husband, Louis Degenstein, and $45,000 to John F. McCormack of 1 Jones Place, Yonkers, administrator of the estate of William S. Hutchings, in a joint damage suit against the Continental Baking Company for the deaths of Degenstein and Hutchings in an automobile accident.

A motion by Albert Bailey, counsel for the baking company, to have the verdicts set aside as excessive was denied by Justice Morschauser, who granted the defendant from thirty-five to sixty days to file an appeal.

Degenstein and Hutchings, employes of the Massello Brothers grocery and fruit trucking concern of Yonkers, were killed when a truck on which they were riding toward Yonkers on Dec. 13, 1928, was struck and overturned by a truck owned by the defendant company in the Bronx.

The eighteenth annual appeal for the Hundred Neediest Cases continues in today's issue of The New York Times.

REPORTS BATTLESHIPS IN GOOD CONDITION

Admiral Yarnell Finds Engines of Destroyers and Submarines Needing Replacement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The sixteen battleships in the American Navy were today described as "on the whole in good to very good condition" by Rear Admiral H. E. Yarnell, engineer in charge of the navy, in his annual report.

While the comparatively new light cruisers of the Omaha class were said to be in good condition, the condition of machinery in three destroyer squadrons was said to be "not satisfactory."

"The destroyers in commission," the report said, "are all of the same age and have served nine years or more of their useful life. The amount that must be spent on the craft for upkeep of machinery installations will increase materially in the next few years."

Since the report was written the navy has arranged to decommission a number of old destroyers and replace them with vessels kept in reserve in laid-up status since the World War. The latter are said to be in good shape.

Admiral Yarnell sounded a warning as to submarines. With the exception of fleet submarines V-1, V-2, V-3 and V-4, he said, "all submarines in commission are of war construction and will require extensive repair and renewal of machinery in the next few years."

The difficulty in keeping the ships in proper condition has been due to shortage of funds and the age of the craft, the report asserted.

Odd Lots

By diversifying your stock buying you create a reserve strength in your holdings. In the event of depression in one stock the others will not necessarily be affected.

That is why we advocate buying ten shares of stock in ten different industries rather than one hundred shares in one stock.

Our booklet explains the many advantages of buying Odd Lots.

Stocks Break Heavily—Money Rates Little Changed, Brokers' Loans Increase.

The only news of importance yesterday, in a financial way, was the Bank of England's third reduction of its discount rate. There was no reason why that action should have affected the course of stocks in Wall Street, and it had no such effect. On the contrary, the stock market wavered at the start, and in the later afternoon moved downward with more rapid and general a decline than has occurred in many days. Losses ranging from 15 to 20 points were scored in a fairly long list of active shares; the declines were largest and the selling heaviest in many of the high-grade shares.

This movement of the day could hardly be described as response to the general news; it was also rather manifestly accelerated by professional sales for the decline. But the recovery from November's low prices, once it had started, went pretty fast and far. Since the lowest point was reached, exactly a month ago, the "averages" have recovered considerably more than one-third of the precipitous decline from the early prices of September. It is at least a matter of judgment whether so rapid an upward reaction was warranted; the answer to that question depends on how much of the year's advance before September is to be regarded, from the viewpoint of intrinsic values, as pure inflation. Yesterday's selling was presumably designed to test the investor's attitude on the matter.

Sterling was only a trifling fraction lower on the reduction of London's bank rate; Wall Street money rates were unchanged. For the first time in eight weeks the Reserve bank's brokers' loan report showed increase. The week's addition, $33,000,000, was only small; but it showed that part at least of the recent rise in stocks resulted from speculative rather than investment buying. It was not without significance that the "loans by others" should have continued to decrease. Their $22,000,000 reduction of the week makes the total contraction $1,982,000,000 since Oct. 9, the year's high figure, and brings them to the lowest point since the first week of September, 1928.

The Bank of England's reduction of its official discount rate from 5½ per cent to 5 accompanies an increase in its gold holdings for the week of $15,300,000, and follows a total addition of $36,500,000 since the rate went to 6½ per cent in September. This is not much, when the gold reserve is still $61,000,000 below the figure named by the Cunliffe committee as the minimum allowable after amalgamation of the currency. But there is $40,000,000 more gold consigned to the Bank from distant parts and due shortly to arrive; it is now assured of obtaining some large consignments from New York, and British trade has been clamoring for easy money—not less so, one may be sure, after the unfavorable British foreign trade statement just published for November. The new 5 per cent rate is the lowest since a 4½ per cent rate was replaced by 5½ in the first week of last February, but the Bank of England's gold holdings are $60,000,000 less even than at that date.

At the Bank of France the gold reserve is shown by yesterday's statement to have risen $12,500,000 in the week and $45,000,000 since our October panic; yet its "sight balances abroad" have been reduced less than $4,000,000 in that six weeks' period. France has also a share in the $11,000,000 gold reported yesterday by our Reserve bank as shipped from New York in the last seven days. Presumably, the additional $5,000,000 gold "earmarked" for foreign banks during the week is also a French transaction.

CHRISTMAS BONUSES SHOW BIG INCREASE

Chemical Bank to Give 12½% of Salaries—Other Notices Are Posted.

The board of directors of the Chemical Bank and Trust Company have voted a Christmas bonus to all employes of 12½ per cent of their annual salaries. This is an increase from last year when 10 per cent was paid. The increase is explained as recognition of the additional responsibilities imposed on employes this year.

Directors of the Bank of United States and of the Bankus Corporation, its security affiliate, voted yesterday to pay the usual Christmas bonus to its 2,000 employes. The bonus is on a graded scale up to 10 per cent, according to length of service, Bernard K. Marcus, president of the bank, reported to directors that 1929 had been a year of greater progress and expansion than any in the bank's history. He said that during the year the bank had increased its branches from twenty to fifty-eight, and the number of depositors from 150,000 to more than 400,000. He said that the bank now ranks as the twenty-seventh largest in the United States from the standpoint of deposits. The directors also declared the regular quarterly dividends on the Bank of United States units, at the rate of $8 a year, payable on Jan. 20 to stockholders of record of Dec. 20.

Charles Stores Company, Inc., has announced that its employes will receive $300,000 in life insurance from the company in lieu of the usual Christmas bonus of a week's pay.

The directors of the International-Madison Bank and Trust Company, 147 Fifth Avenue, have voted a Christmas bonus to all employes of 5 per cent of their yearly salaries.

The L. S. Starrett Company, mechanical tool manufacturers of Athol, Mass., has announced a plan for a Christmas distribution ranging from 4 per cent of annual salaries to employes of less than one year's standing to 10 per cent for those who have served five years or longer.

The Consolidated Indemnity and Insurance Company yesterday announced a plan of giving its employes a substantial Christmas bonus, but did not reveal the percentage.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

Wall Street attributed the reaction on the Stock Exchange yesterday to a variety of developments, among them a well-timed foray by professional bear operators. Confidence seemed to have been impaired by Roger Babson's latest comments on the market. Further requisitions on the country's gold supply also were emphasized. The pressure was heaviest against the market leaders, such as United States Steel, General Electric, Radio, Simmons, Westinghouse Electric, Anaconda and American Telephone and Telegraph, all of which receded sharply. The selling was most aggressive in the last hour. During that period many stop-loss orders were caught, which served to accelerate the decline. There was a feeble rally in parts of the list just before the close of the market, but final quotations in most instances were not far from the low levels of the day.

A New Crop of "Bears."

While it is recognized generally that the "bear party" is larger than it has been in recent years, few in Wall Street realize the influence of this faction until a situation develops such as was seen yesterday. As if by agreement, the selling orders struck almost every part of the list shortly after midday. The market was ripe for a reaction, traders felt, and no opportunity was overlooked in the concerted rush to sell. One broker remarked that an entirely new crop of "bears" had grown up as a result of the recent convulsion.

Banking Liquidation.

One of the sources of liquidation during yesterday's decline, according to brokers, was the country banks, which were reported to be eager to reduce their loans on securities. So long as the stock market was advancing, the banks were willing to carry customers whose margins on collateral loans had been impaired during the declines of October and the beginning of November. When it became apparent, however, that the market's advance was meeting resistance, many of the bankers were reported to have determined to liquidate their positions, thus hastening yesterday's reaction. Recent statements of members of the Federal Reserve System have indicated that the reduction in brokers' loans has far exceeded the reduction in other loans on securities. Liquidation by country banks of the latter loans is likely to be more of a damper upon bullish activities, brokers assert, than is the support stock which the banking pool is credited with holding.

With the Profit "Chiselers."

It has often been remarked that the board rooms of brokerage houses seem to be as full of customers as during the palmy days before the upset on Oct. 24. As a matter of fact, customers' men have advanced the theory that many of their clients believe the current market is one that will bear close watching and are less willing to keep in touch with proceedings over the telephone. Traders are getting in and out of the market at shorter intervals and in Wall Street parlance are "chiseling" profits when they can. The "tape worm" who stood over the ticker for hours at a time has returned with his friends, who are legion, content to claim profits in fractions. At all events, standing room is at a premium in most board rooms during trading hours.

Federal Reserv. Statement.

Changes in the position of the Federal Reserve Banks shown in this week's statement indicate that progress is being made in cutting down out-of-town discounts and distributing credit. Discounts in the New York district were higher and undoubtedly would have been much higher had there not been a wide expansion in portfolio. For the combined twelve banks of the system, however, discounts dropped $108,000,000. Bill holdings of the system went up $65,322,000 and holdings of government securities advanced $31,790,000. If this trend continues another week or so the proportion of one-third of all discounting lodged in the New York district should soon be reached. Currency demand evidently has been met by the Reserve banks largely through the issuance of gold certificates. Federal Reserve note circulation, instead of expanding, went down during the week.

Mr. Durant Active Again.

It was widely reported yesterday that William C. Durant was directing the latest operation in radio. If this story is true, as Wall Street believed it to be, Mr. Durant is an important market figure for the first time since the recovery got under way. For some time he was on the sidelines, looking on with an impersonal interest. The group operating in radio is said to be made up largely of operators who in the past have been identified mainly with other stocks.

Bank of England Rate.

The reduction of the Bank of England's rate yesterday from 5½ to 5 per cent, the third cut made since the end of October, brings the British bank rate down 1½ per cent from its high point and leaves a differential of only one-half of 1 per cent between the rate in London and that here. Most observers had expected the Bank of England to stick to the 5½ per cent rate at least until a considerable amount of gold had been assembled. Pressure from British business, which suffered severely from the high money rates of recent months, was evidently too much for the Bank to withstand, however. As it is, about $18,500,000 in gold, engaged earlier in the week, will go to England from this market today and tomorrow. Whether the lowered bank rate will halt the incipient gold flow remains to be seen. Some bankers consider the shipments announced yesterday to have been unprofitable, and look for more of the same type.

Weather and Market.

There was little to choose between the stock market and the weather yesterday, and it was no consolation to those who suffered from either or both to learn that the prognosticators of the United States Weather Bureau and of Wellesley Hills happened to be right. It is an accepted axiom, however, that the Weather Bureau's predictions do not influence the winds and the waves.

BANK OF ENGLAND CUTS RATE TO 5%

FOLLOWS INFLUX OF GOLD

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The governors of the Bank of England today announced to an astonished financial district that the Bank rate had been reduced from 5½ to 5 per cent.

No Christmas present ever came as a bigger surprise than the sudden lowering of the rate, which had not been expected until after the new year. Today's third reduction in eleven weeks was made possible by the steady influx of gold from New York, where it had been liberated by the slump in Wall Street.

For the week ended yesterday the Bank reported receipt of £3,277,426 in gold, the largest influx since gold began draining toward New York and Paris last year. A big shipment on the way from New York helped to hasten the decision. Still another justification for the Bank's action lay in the fact that the 5½ per cent rate had been ineffective with money rates down as low as 4½ per cent.

The effect of the Bank's decision was electric. Gilt-edged stocks surged forward, business men issued optimistic messages and an atmosphere of confidence filled the Stock Exchange. After a succession of financial shocks—the Hatry crash, the Wall Street slump and isolated examples like yesterday's Royal Mail announcement—the lower Bank rate came as soothing syrup to the Exchange.

Bank rates are now within half of 1 per cent of the 4½ per cent rate, where it stood from April, 1927, to February, 1929.

Reduction Causes Surprise Here.

The drop in the rate of the Bank of England from 5½ per cent to 5 per cent came as a surprise to bankers here. It had been thought that after the two reductions which the British central bank had made within the last six weeks, the rate would be left unchanged until a material improvement in the position of the bank's gold holdings had been effected.

In the opinion of bankers here, the reduction in the rate of the Bank of England came as a result of pressure brought by British business upon the directors of the bank. It was only with reluctance that the Bank of England advanced its rate from 3 per cent to 6 per cent on Sept. 26, long after the point had been reached at which economists said it should be raised.

The reduction of the credit strain in this market has been followed by a decline in central bank rates in Europe. Among the banks of issue which have recently reduced their rates are those of Holland, Belgium, Germany, Ireland, Hungary, Rumania and Poland. Yesterday the Rigsbank, central bank of Sweden, cut its rate, following the move by the Bank of England from 5½ per cent to 5 per cent.

MONEY.

Thursday, Dec. 12, 1929.

Fresh developments were lacking in the money market resulting in a quiet and orderly session, with rates on collateral loans, and discounts on business money remaining unchanged. Stock Exchange call loans continued at 4½ per cent., with Street funds at 4. Supply was good but demand light. Time money was quoted at a spread of 4¾ @ 5 per cent., but the little money involved passed at outside figure. Commercial paper and acceptances were dull and unchanged.

"Income" or "Market Quotations"?

RECENT market experiences have emphasized the value and importance of "Income" (interest or dividend return) as distinguished from "Market Quotations."

The investor who has the long-range point of view, and who has purchased securities producing satisfactory income return, should not be disturbed by the recent decline in market quotations.

With income-paying securities, no real profit or loss occurs until the securities are actually disposed of—and the present market is certainly not one in which any investor should consider disposing of sound, income-paying securities.

On the other hand, the present time does offer an unusual opportunity for the investment of money at an abnormally high rate. Quotations may go higher or lower, but any good income-bearing security purchased today should prove an extremely satisfactory investment over a period of years.

BROKERS' LOANS UP $33,000,000 IN WEEK

First Rise Reported by Federal Reserve Since Oct. 16 Brings Total to $3,425,000,000.

EXPANSION DUE TO BANKS

"Others" Show Decline of $12,000,000—Gold Holdings Off $28,000,000 for System.

Reversing the downward trend which had continued uninterrupted since Oct. 16, brokers' loans advanced $33,000,000, according to the statement made public last night by the Federal Reserve Bank. The negligible size of the advance, compared with the large declines which recent weeks have witnessed, leaves the loan total still little more than half what it was before the stock market break. Last night's figures showed total loans of $3,425,000,000, compared with $3,392,000,000 last week and $6,804,000,000 at the high point reached on Oct. 2.

The advance in loans was accounted for by expansion by local member banks and for account of out-of-town institutions. Loans for account of non-banking lenders continued to ease off. The latter figures dropped $12,000,000. Local bank loans to brokers were up $14,000,000 and loans for account of out-of-town banks were up $20,000,000. The condition statement of New York City member banks showed a decline of $20,000,000 in total loans, of which $50,000,000 was in loans on securities and $30,000,000 in "all other loans." Borrowings of the local banks from the Reserve increased sharply, a rise of $32,000,000 carrying the figure to $66,000,000.

Increased Currency Demand.

The rise in borrowings from the Federal Reserve reflects the seasonal trend occasioned by increased currency demands. Bankers expect that between now and the end of the year most New York City banks will become substantial borrowers at the Reserve.

Following are the detailed figures of stock and bond collateral loans made to brokers and dealers by reporting member banks in New York City:

	Dec. 11.	Dec. 4.	Dec. 12 1928.
	1929.	1929.
For own account	826	792	1,045
For out-of-town banks	710	680	784
For others	1,909	1,921	2,327

Of this week's total $2,961,000,000 consisted of demand loans, compared with $2,945,000,000 last week and $488,000,000 of time loans against $447,000,000.

As had been learned during the week the local Reserve bank added substantially to its portfolio. Bill holdings advanced $57,656,000 to a total of $145,180,000, and holdings of government securities went up $15,111,000 to $184,835,000. Despite this additional credit placed in the market, member banks in this district were forced to increase their discounts $26,216,000 and the amount of credit which the New York Reserve Bank is extending to the market advanced $95,433,000 to $492,392,000.

Gold Reserves Decline.

Gold reserves at the New York bank again showed a sharp decline, falling $93,733,000 to $859,212,000. This drop was attributed by bankers to the paying out of gold certificates in response to the increased currency demand which manifests itself at this time. Federal Reserve note circulation declined once more. The lowered gold holdings and some increase in deposits sent the reserve ratio off from 75.6 per cent to 69.2 per cent.

In contrast to the developments at the New York bank, discounts for the system showed a drop of $108,358,000, carrying the figures down to $768,922,000, compared with $1,028,358,000 a year ago. This paying off of borrowings was made possible largely through additions to the portfolios of the Reserve Banks. Holdings of bills by the system advanced $68,922,000 and holdings of government securities went up $21,790,000. The volume of Reserve credit outstanding declined $111,371,000.

Considerable progress has now been made in shifting the burden of discounting. Recent weeks have shown a disproportionately large amount of discounts in districts outside of New York, while in the New York districts discounts have been low. This situation has accompanied extremely low money rates in New York and firm money in the other districts. Bankers calculate that approximately one-third of all discounting should be lodged in the New York district.

Gold holdings of the system dropped $28,518,000 during the week. Reserve note circulation fell $20,196,000. Deposit liabilities declined $26,980,000. The Reserve ratio for the system was virtually unchanged at 71.8 per cent, compared with 71.5 per cent last week.

TREASURY STANDS BY NATIONAL BANK NOTES

Mellon Announces That 2 Per Cent Consols of 1930 Will Not Be Called on April 2.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The retention of national bank notes as part of the currency was indicated today when Secretary Mellon announced that the 2 per cent consols of 1930, which are redeemable at the pleasure of the United States after April 1, will not be called for redemption on April 2.

The statement was taken as meaning that the consols will be permitted to run indefinitely. The total outstanding is $599,774,050.

The announcement was the result of inquiries received at the treasury.

The circulation of national bank notes is about $600,000,000, the banks being authorized to issue $90 in such notes for each $100 in gold, Liberty Bonds, consols or other acceptable security deposited with the treasury.

When the new small currency was issued the treasury considered the abandonment of the national bank notes and replacing them with Federal Reserve notes, a move generally opposed by the national banks. Secretary Mellon decided against it.

BONDS MORE ACTIVE AT LOWER FIGURES

Convertibles Are Led Down by 9¼-Point Drop in American Telephone & Telegraph 4½s.

SOME 1929 HIGHS IN RAILS

Government Issues Irregular at Finish on Few Sales—Foreign Issues Seesaw.

Listed bonds were slightly lower yesterday in a market somewhat more active than on Wednesday. Convertibles declined in sympathy with stocks, railroad issues were a little depressed, industrials and public utilities were dull and foreign loans had few changes of importance. United States Government bonds closed irregular.

American Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s led the convertibles into lower ground with a drop of 9¼ points. International Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s fell 4¾ points, New Haven convertible 6s dropped 3¾ points and Texas Corporation convertible 5s lost ¾ point. Allegheny Corporation issues were down fractionally, as well as American & G. Chemical 7½s and Commercial Investment Trust 5½s.

Although the trend was downward in railroad bonds, a few issues scored new highs for the year, including Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific refunding 4s at 95⅝, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific 4½s of 1989, Series C, at 96¼, Nickel Plate first 4s of 1927 at 96¾ and St. Louis-San Francisco 5s of 1950, Series B, at 102¼.

American Natural Gas 6½s proved a weak spot in the public utility list, selling off 4¾ points. In the industrials, steel, rubber and sugar issues finished irregular. American Writing Paper 6s dropped 3¼ points to a new low for the year at 72, as did Pathe 7s at 41¼.

Foreign loans did little more than seesaw all day. A seven-point gain for Saarbrucken 6s represented a recovery from the recent low of the year.

Trading was light in United States Government bonds. Final prices were up 4-32 to down the same amount. Most of the trading was in the Fourth Liberty 4¼s, which fell 4-32.

Porto Rico Loan.

Award of $750,000 government of Porto Rico 4½ per cent bonds, maturing serially on Jan. 1, 1952 to 1970, was made yesterday to M. M. Freeman & Co., Inc., at 102.129, equivalent to a 4.39 per cent basis. The second highest tender was 101.85 by the Bancamerica-Blair Corporation.

MUNICIPAL LOANS.

Cleveland, Ohio.

A new issue of $980,000 city of Cleveland bonds was awarded yesterday to Stranahan, Harris & Oatis, Inc., and M. M. Freeman & Co., Inc., at their joint bid of 100.149 for $750,000 of the bonds as 4¼s and $230,000 as 4¾s. This figured a 4.31 per cent basis. The issue consists of $750,000 paving and sewer bonds, due Oct. 1, 1931 to 1947; $120,000 police and fire bonds, due Oct. 1, 1931 to 1950, and $110,000 health department bonds, due Oct. 1, 1931 to 1941.

This is the first time the city has been in the market with bonds since Aug. 9, 1929, when $4,270,000 were awarded at 100.04 for the bonds as 4½s and 4¾s, equivalent to a 4.645 per cent basis.

Waterbury, Conn.

The city of Waterbury, Conn., has issued a call for sealed bids to be opened Dec. 27 on a new issue of $2,000,000 4¼ per cent funding bonds. The issue will mature serially from Nov. 1, 1930 to 1939.

A call for sealed tenders on an issue of $700,000 4¼ per cent bonds, due from one to thirty years, was made yesterday by the commissioners of the El Paso and Hudspeth Counties (Texas) Road District. The bids will be opened on Dec. 20.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

British Stocks Strengthened by Lower Bank Rate and Inflow of Gold.

FRENCH TRADING IS DULL

Rentes in Little Demand, but Prices Are Firm—German Boerse Makes Gains.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The stock markets were encouraged today by an unexpected lowering of the bank rate, but the list still showed many weak spots. Gilt-edge issues were stimulated by a continued flow of gold from New York, with £8,000,000 received this week and £4,000,000 expected next week. The war loan advanced 1-16 to £100 1-16, the funding loan rose ¼ to £85⅝ and all other government stocks showed similar gains.

Royal Mail acted feverishly following yesterday's announcement of no dividends this year. Ordinary touched a new low of 25s before recovering to yesterday's closing price of 27s. The 6% per cent preference leaped 4½ to 44½s, while the 4½ per cent debentures jumped 6½ to 71¾s. White Star preference continued weak, however, falling 3d to 13s. The bottom fell out of British Cement Products shares as a result of the revelation of the huge losses under Henry Horne's control.

Internationals were erratic, notably Brazilian Traction, which fell 3⅛ to $42¾ following the new slump in Brazilian exchange. Hydroelectric declined a point to $44⅝, but General Electric was steady at 46s 6d. International Holdings was 3-16 lower at $6¼, International Nickel lower at $32½, while both Margarine issues declined 1-16 to £3¾. American Celanese advanced 3-16 on persistent buying, closing at £7 7-16.

Among the oils Royal Dutch fell 5-16 to £33, but Mexican Eagle was firm at 15s. Bwana was strong in the Rhodesian group, rising 3d to 21s 6d.

Lombard Street welcomed the reduction in the bank rate, but the lower rates stiffened after an easy opening. Three-month bills were quoted at 4⅝ per cent. Sterling weakened to 24.33 1-16 as a result of the bank rate surprise. The Bank of England today bought £1,435 of bar gold and sold £24,034.

Tone Weaker in Paris.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—The Bourse session was dull today. Even the reduction in the discount rate at London appeared to have no stimulating effect on trading. On the other hand the obstructionist tactics in the French Chamber seemed to be regarded indifferently, and the general impression was a market without interest.

This week's statement of the Bank of France showed that commercial discounts were down 2,000,284,000 francs. Gold reserves increased less sharply by 223,000,000 francs to a total of 41,131,000,000. Circulation for the first time in several weeks declined by 867,000,000, with the total standing at 67,291,000,000. The proportion of gold reserves to obligations amounting to 87,319,000,000 reached its highest figure at 47.10 per cent.

Rentes were little traded, but steady, closing as follows: The 3 per cents, 81.20; 1918 4s, 97.70; 1920 amortizable 5s, 128.35; 1928 5s, 102.40; 1920 6s, 103.35; 1927 amortizable 6s, 109.

Improvement in Berlin.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—The Boerse opened weaker today, but the tendency improved during the first hour owing to a boom in Reichsbank shares which were sought from America and advanced 12 points. Other favorable market factors were an optimistic speech by the industrialist, Privy Councillor Duisberg, delivered at an extraordinary meeting of the Federation of German Industries, who warned against pessimism, and a reduction in the London discount rate to 5 per cent.

Rhenish Brown Coal of the mining group, Siemens of the electricals, the potash group, Dye Trust shares and artificial silks improved several points, while most other stocks were able to recover the day's losses. Toward the close business slackened down and the highest notations could not be fully maintained.

GOLD STILL MOVING INTO BANK OF FRANCE

Foreign Balances Never the Less Increase for Week—Discounts Up 1,220,000,000 Francs

PARIS, Dec. 12 (AP).—The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes in francs:

Gold	Increased 223,000,000
Sight balances abroad	Increased 61,000,000
Bills discount, at home	decreased 1,220,000,000
Bills bought abroad	Increased 35,000,000
Advances	Increased 186,000,000
Circulation	decreased 867,000,000
Current accounts	decreased 948,000,000

With the above changes for the week, yesterday's statement of the Bank of France, which covers the actual position of a week ago, compares with those of the preceding two weeks and the corresponding week in 1928. Items in the table are in millions of francs:

	Dec. 13 1929	Dec. 5 1929	Nov. 28 1929	Dec. 14 1928
Foreign sight credits	7,162	7,107	7,127	14,094
Circulation	67,289	68,157	66,241	51,536

The gold reserve reported this week is the highest in the history of the bank. The largest holdings prior to revaluation of currency in 1928 were on Sept. 2, 1920, when they were 5,580,670,000 francs at the old valuation, or 27,953,300,000 according to the present franc values. The note circulation of Oct. 21, which was 68,266,825,000 francs, was the highest ever reported. Prior to the stabilization decree, the highest point reached by the bank's note circulation, which was then at about the present franc valuation, was 60,354,546,000 francs on May 10, 1928. A year ago it was 61,826,571,000.

The French bank's official discount rate remains at 3½ per cent, to which it was reduced on Jan. 10, 1928.

The eighteenth annual appeal for the Hundred Neediest Cases continues in today's issue of The New York Times.

BRAZIL'S EXCHANGE STEADY AFTER BREAK

Failure of Stabilization Plan Was Feared for a Time in Sao Paulo.

COFFEE EXPORT BILLS HELD

Appear in Market Again, However, and Confidence Returns—Americans Hopeful.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAO PAULO, Dec. 12.—The financial market, in which milreis slid yesterday to 9.20 to the dollar and threatened to cause the collapse of the Brazilian stabilization scheme, suddenly turned firm on opening today and remained steady throughout the day. Exchange opened today at 9.50 milreis to the dollar, then steadied to 9.95, although at first some banks limited transactions to not exceeding $500. As confidence became re-established, however, the National City Banks here and in Rio de Janeiro accepted exchanges in any amount.

While the situation is grave, with many maintaining that in view of the present rate of milreis the stabilization scheme no longer is in effect, American banking circles here are optimistic and predict an early recovery. The unexpected falling-off of milreis, according to bankers, is due to the Federal controlled Banco do Brazil's refusal on last Saturday to cover all foreign exchange drafts, limiting business to regular customers, which had an immediate reaction on the market.

On Monday, when the bank's action became known in Santos the coffee exporters there started holding up coffee export bills, waiting for a further drop in milreis. As coffee is the life blood of Brazil, this had an immediate effect on exchange rates, causing a further decline in milreis. Late yesterday and all today, however, bills appeared in Santos which caused the market to steady and instilled general confidence.

Shell Oil in Washington.

Continuing its program of expansion in the East, the Shell Eastern Petroleum Products, Inc., has entered the District of Columbia by taking over operation of the Penn Oil Company's sixty-five service stations and storage and terminal facilities, it was announced yesterday. Shell Eastern is a subsidiary of the Shell-Union Oil Corporation, which in turn is controlled by the Royal Dutch-Shell interests.

ARGENTINE EXPORTS DECREASE SHARPLY

Favorable Trade Balance in Nine Months 50 Per Cent Under That of Last Year's.

MARKED DROP IN VALUES

Volume of Outward Shipments Exceeds Figure for 1928, but Prices Are Down.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 12.—The Minister of Finance published today the foreign trade statistics for the first nine months of this year showing a favorable trade balance of 110,700,000 gold pesos, compared with a favorable balance of 215,000,000 pesos in the corresponding period of last year, a decrease of nearly 50 per cent.

The tariff value of imports in the first nine months of this year was 644,000,000 gold pesos, compared with 613,000,000 in the corresponding period of last year, an increase of 5 1-3 per cent. The value of exports, on the other hand, decreased 6½ per cent, from 828,000,000 gold pesos in the first nine months of last year to 775,000,000 in the corresponding period this year.

Gold imports in the first nine months of this year totaled only $11,000 dollars, compared with $99,500,000 in the first nine months of 1928. Gold exports from Jan. 1 to Sept. 30 this year totaled $112,000,000, compared with $130,000 in the same period of 1928.

Machinery imports this year are 22 per cent above those of the corresponding period last year. Imports of fuels and lubricants increased 14 per cent; imports of manufactured rubber consisting largely of automobile tires, increased 25 per cent.

The decline in the value of exports was due entirely to the low prices ruling this year, since the tonnage of exports was 210,000 tons or 1½ per cent above the corresponding period of 1928.

$18,500,000 GOLD LEAVING FOR LONDON

Shipments for Midland Bank Today and Tomorrow Likely to End Movement.

CONSIGNMENT TO FRANCE

$5,000,000 Believed to Be Scheduled for Export Tonight—$10,977,000 Received Here in Week.

The shipments of gold aggregating $18,500,000 will leave this port for England tonight and tomorrow, it was learned yesterday. The metal may be the last to go for some time as the Bank of England's reduction of its rediscount rate from 5½ to 5 per cent yesterday caused an immediate decline in sterling exchange.

Both shipments are consigned to the Midland Bank, Ltd. They consist of $11,000,000 being dispatched by the Irving Trust Company on the Bremen, which sails tomorrow night, and about $7,500,000, believed to be going on the Berengaria tonight. The latter consignment is understood to have been arranged by the National City Bank.

Foreign exchange experts calculate that the shipments which the Midland Bank has arranged carry no profit, but the British bank can, if it so chooses, count the metal as part of its reserves from the time it is loaded on the ship, and since reserves do not earn interest anyway, no loss of interest is sustained in this way. Earlier in the week sterling sold as high as $4.88 7-16, which is approximately at the gold shipping point. Yesterday, however, the rate on London fell to $4.88 1-32, a decline of 3-16 for the day, bringing the pound sterling considerably below the gold shipping point.

In addition to the gold consigned to England a substantial sum is believed to be going to France on the France which sails tonight. The exact amount was not ascertainable yesterday but it was believed to be about $5,000,000. This would bring the total outflow of gold for the week to the largest figure for the year to date.

By way of offsetting this heavy outflow, gold continues to come here from South America. The Guaranty Trust Company yesterday announced the receipt of $950,000 in United States gold coins from Bogota, Colombia.

Movements of gold at the port of New York during the week ended Dec. 11, as announced yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank, showed exports of $10,977,000 and imports of $430,000. Of the amount exported, $9,269,000 went to France, $1,341,000 to Sweden, $129,000 to Mexico, $108,000 to Germany, 60,000 to England and $50,000 to Java. Imports consisted of $197,000 from Argentina and $233,000, which came chiefly from other Latin-American countries.

With the exception of the shipments of $9,269,000 to France, and $1,341,000 to Sweden, all other exports were apparently special movements since foreign exchange dealers calculate that none of the currencies involved were at levels which would make a shipment profitable. A further loss of gold to this country during the week was provided by an increase of $6,002,000 in the amount of the metal earmarked for foreign account.

While a considerable outflow of gold from this country is expected to take place during the next few weeks, the action of the Bank of England in reducing its rate yesterday is said to alter the complexion of the situation materially. Bankers had expected that the rate would be maintained somewhat longer, thereby increasing Great Britain's chances of securing a good part of the gold sent from this country. As it is, the prospects of gold shipments to England have been lessened, temporarily, at least. Further movements to France may, however, still be looked for, bankers say, and one or two other currencies are sufficiently close to their gold shipping points to make shipments likely.

NEW YORK CENTRAL SETS MERGER DATE

Michigan Central and Big Four to Be Taken Over Feb. 1—I. C. C. Conditions Met.

$2,000,000,000 IN PROJECT

Improvement in Operation Is Expected by Centralizing Management of Three Lines.

The New York Central Railroad will put its $2,000,000,000 merger plan into effect on Feb. 1, it was learned yesterday. This will be the largest merger in point of property value to be consummated in the United States. In 1914 the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern was merged with the New York Central. The present fusion will make the Michigan Central and the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, or Big Four, integral parts of the Central system.

The Interstate Commerce Commission approved last January the taking over of the Big Four and Michigan Central on condition that provision be made for acquisition of certain short lines in the territory. These short lines have not yet been obtained, but it was learned that the commission believes negotiations for them have proceeded to a point at which the New York Central may be permitted to put its plan into effect.

The commission's decision provided a settlement by arbitration of the price at which the shorter lines should be acquired. Arbitration proceedings settled by the Ulster & Delaware await approval by the commission. Another short line purchase has been effected without arbitration, while arbitration proceedings have begun for the remainder of the minor lines.

In confirming that the New York Central is about to put its merger into effect, Charles C. Paulding, vice president, said that expenditures of about $100,000,000 would be made by the united system next year.

"The extent of the improvements will be limited only by traffic considerations," said Mr. Paulding. "It is imperative that a railroad in operation make its improvements without interfering with traffic. This, necessarily, limits the scope of these operations."

As explained by Mr. Paulding, the chief result of the merger of the New York Central's principal subsidiaries will be improved operation. Under unified control, freight may be routed wherever it may move with the greatest celerity.

Freight now must be routed by the Big Four or Michigan Central according to the bills of lading regardless of whether the goods will move more rapidly by the designated routes.

The effect of the unification will be to make the 11,000-mile trunk line system of the parent company a single unit for operation and management. The New York Central controls the Big Four and the Michigan Central through ownership of almost 100 per cent of the subsidiaries' stock. It has had to realize a return from these investments by declaring dividends on these stocks, which, for the Michigan Central, run as high as 100 per cent. Under the merger plan earnings from these roads will go directly into the Central's treasury.

Mr. Paulding said that some consolidation of departments would result in the New York Central, Big Four and Michigan Central, but that plans were still incomplete. Chief economies from the merger are expected from integrated operation of what are now three systems, but Mr. Paulding could not exactly estimate them.

February's action will mark the end of a project fostered by the New York Central since 1926, but deferred by the action of minority interests. Last week this opposition was overruled by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which authorized the Central as lessee of the two systems to assume obligations of the merged companies totaling $311,561,000 and annual dividends and interest aggregating $14,104,000.

The Big Four controls the Cincinnati Northern Railroad, Evansville, Indianapolis & Terre Haute and others. The Michigan Central System includes the Grand River Valley, Detroit & Bay City, Lansing & Saginaw, Michigan Air Line, Joliet & Northern Indiana, Canada Southern & Detroit and Chicago, Kalamazoo & Saginaw. The securities of these smaller roads are among those to be assumed by the Central.

The short independent railroads to be acquired include, besides the Ulster & Delaware, the Boyne City, Gaylord & Alpena, Chicago, Attica & Southern, Fonda, Johnstown & Gloversville, Owasco River and Federal Valley line of the F., J. & G. properties. A settlement has been reached in the case of the Owasco River property and arbitration proceedings for properties other than the Owasco River and Ulster & Delaware are proceeding rapidly.

The chief lines now controlled by the New York Central but not integrated with it are the Boston & Albany, Pittsburgh & Lake Erie and the Rutland. It is understood that merging of these will be deferred until the plan for general consolidation in preparation by the Interstate Commerce Commission shows signs of materializing.

3,300 AT RAILROAD DINNER.

Ogden of the Pennsylvania Tells of Changed Attitude Toward Roads.

More than 3,300 railroad and railroad supply men attended the annual dinner of the New York Railroad Club last night in the Hotel Commodore. The guests included officials of nearly every railroad in New York and adjoining States and some from Canada.

George D. Ogden, assistant vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, one of the three speakers, traced the development of the railroad from its inception to the recent conference of railroad men called by President Hoover. The conference, he said, indicated the changing attitude of the public when the President started a movement "not for the reduction of rates but for the maintenance, and if possible, the increase, of expenditures by railways for new equipment and improvements."

Representative Charles A. Eaton of New Jersey attacked the tendency of the government to interfere with the rights of the individual. J. J. Pelley, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, also spoke.

DIVIDEND BY INSURANSHARES

Management Investment Trust Declares 45c. on A Common.

The directors of the Insuranshares Corporation of Delaware, a general management investment trust, have declared a dividend of 45 cents a share on the Class A common stock, payable Jan. 15 to holders of record Dec. 21. The asset value of the Class A stock, based on closing market prices on Nov. 30, was $15.18 a share, it was announced.

The balance sheet as of Nov. 30 shows assets of $15,585,647, of which $14,857,404 represents investments at cost, and $703,223 cash. Investments had a market value at bid prices on Nov. 30 of $10,674,886. Liabilities consisted of $11,250,000 in capital, representing 750,000 outstanding Class A and 500,000 Class B shares, and $4,269,447 surplus, of which $3,786,002 was paid in and $483,445 earned. The only other liability was a miscellaneous item of $48,199.

The portfolio shows these investments: 18.6 per cent bank and trust company stocks, 15.5 per cent life insurance, 24.6 per cent casualty insurance, 27.9 per cent fire insurance, 4 per cent foreign insurance and 3 per cent miscellaneous.

UPSWING INDICATED IN AUTO PRODUCTION

Survey Shows Trend Toward Return of Plant Schedules Following Inventories.

SALES IN GOOD VOLUME

Experienced Observers of the Industry See the Outlook Bright for Next Year.

Although December is regarded as a period for marking time there is a trend toward a return to operating schedules on the part of automobile factories following their seasonal shut-down for inventory, according to Automotive Industries. Experienced observers of the industry, it is stated, see the indications promising for 1930.

There are differences of opinion as to the time when the automobile industry will hit its stride. Some bankers are said to believe that the recent stock market slump will retard production and sales for at least six months. John J. Raskob, however, in his report to President Hoover, said he expected an arrival to normal late in February or early in March. This seems to be the consensus of those actively connected with the manufacture of automobiles.

New car sales are continuing favorably, according to the reports of sales executives, and factory officials have corroborated this with statements that in their belief the demand for new automobiles has by no means followed the downward trend of the stock exchanges.

The total production for the eleven months this year has been 5,480,582 units, as against 4,357,600 for the corresponding period last year. Thus it will take a December production of only 119,498 units to reach the conservative estimate of 5,600,000 for this year.

A decline is reported in the November pipe-line deliveries of the eleven pipe line companies in the Standard Oil group. The deliveries for the month totaled 16,514,149 barrels, or a daily average of 550,472 barrels, compared with 17,471,648 barrels or a daily average of 563,601 barrels in October.

Runs from wells by the group, excluding Northern, Prairie, and Southern, during November totaled 2,061,291 barrels, a daily average of 68,710 barrels. This compares with October runs of 2,222,666 barrels or a daily average of 71,892 barrels for that month.

TO REACQUIRE PIPE LINE.

Ohio Oil by Exchange of Stock Would Get Illinois Company.

Plans of the Ohio Oil Company to reacquire stock of the Illinois Pipe Line Company, of which it divested itself in 1915, were disclosed yesterday in a letter to stockholders calling a special meeting on Jan. 20 to pass on the plan. Ohio Oil proposes to issue 500,000 shares of a new 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value and exchange it for all outstanding stock of the pipe line company at three shares of the former for one of the latter.

The pipe line company has outstanding 200,000 shares of $100 par, all bought by the Ohio Oil Company until 1915. Then the Interstate Commerce ruled that pipe lines were common carriers, and the company distributed the stock to its stockholders at one pipe line share for each three held. Since then Ohio Oil's outstanding stock has been increased to 2,400,000 shares of $25 par value.

$10,000,000 Steel and Wire Plan.

Announcement was made yesterday that the American Steel and Wire Company, subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, would spend approximately $10,000,000 in the completion of plans for expansion and improvement of its plant in Cleveland.

CRITICIZES COURTS ON UTILITY CASES

Indiana Official Says Federal Tribunals Too Often Upset Work of Commissions.

CALLS FOR LOCAL CONTROL

Board Engineer Tells at Hearing of Rapid Progress of Rural Electrification in New York.

The interference of Federal courts with the regulation of utility companies and the encroachment of Federal authority upon the province of the State in utility supervision were condemned by Howell Ellis, a member of the Indiana Public Service Commission, who testified yesterday at the Bar Association Building before the Legislative Commission on revision of the Public Service law.

Charles Vanneman, chief engineer of the Public Service Commission and the only other witness at the public hearing, lauded the advance of rural electrification in New York and defended the commission's progress in grade crossing elimination.

"The trouble in connection with utility valuations and rate-making during recent years, in my judgment," Mr. Ellis testified, "has been that too often the courts have been disturbing the reasonable judgment of State commissions arrived at after a consideration of all the evidence.

"I have the highest respect for our Federal courts, but it appears incredible to me that State regulatory commissions are always wrong in their judgment of the evidence in valuation cases. The Indiana commission was created in 1913 and has yet to win a rate and valuation case in the Federal courts, although many such cases have been carried by the utilities to the Federal tribunals. In each instance the Federal courts have found that the commission erred in fixing valuation and rates too low."

The Indiana commissioner declared that he did not want to criticize the Interstate Commerce Commission, but he regretted that virtually all control over steam railroads, even in the intrastate traffic, had been taken from the hands of the State. He thought there was an unfortunate tendency to look to Washington for utility control. Utility problems were still primarily local in nature, he said, adding that "all possible authority" should be left in the hands of the State.

Taking issue with much previous testimony before the investigating commission, Mr. Ellis said that he saw no need for the regiuation of utility holding companies. The multiplication of such holding companies in New York was one of the chief reasons for the present inquiry.

Mr. Vanneman testified that rural electric rates in New York were "steadily declining at a rapid pace." He predicted an extension of rural lines, although admitting that the location of some farms would probably leave them always without central electric service.

The public hearing will be continued at the Bar Association today. No time was devoted yesterday to the charges made in private session against members of the Public Service Commission. The question of policy involved will be considered again next week.

NIAGARA HUDSON BUILDING TWO LINES

110,000-Volt Transmission From Buffalo to Massachusetts to Be Continuous.

The Niagara Hudson Power System is building two comparatively short 110,000-volt transmission lines which, when completed, will make continuous transmission of electric power at that voltage possible from Buffalo to the Massachusetts State line. This trunk line has been in existence more than four years, but as it did not consist of 110,000-volt lines over the entire distance, power could not be shipped between all points along the route at that voltage.

One of the two links now being built will connect Rotterdam and Johnstown, and is being constructed by the New York Power and Light Corporation. The other is between Buffalo and Lockport and is being installed by the Buffalo, Niagara and Eastern Power Corporation. All the rest of the line has been increased to 110,000-volt capacity during the past five years. At the Massachusetts State line a connection connects with the system of the New England Power Association, which in turn is in contact with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston.

ROYALTIES FOR DUBILIER.

Western Electric and A. T. & T. Agree to Pay on Radio Patents.

The report that the Western Electric Company, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and subsidiaries and the Dubilier Condenser Company have reached an agreement whereby the last-named concern is to receive royalties on all radio receiving sets made in the future by the former group was confirmed yesterday by William Dubilier, principal stockholder of the condenser company.

The agreement is said to have been signed yesterday, by which Dubilier is to receive a "very substantial sum of money and a 5 per cent royalty on all new sets." The Western Electric Company, he said, has acquired a non-exclusive license on several Dubilier patents relating to radio receivers.

No comments were obtainable from A. T. & T. or Western Electric.

QUITS COMMITTEE POST.

Lazarus Announces New Head of Fox Stockholders Group.

Farrar Lazarus, who on Wednesday announced himself as chairman of a committee of stockholders of the Fox Film Corporation Class A stock, yesterday announced his own resignation and the appointment of Allin I. Cole as chairman of the committee. Mr. Cole was identified in the announcement as formerly chairman of the Pennsylvania Exchange Bank.

At the offices of the Fox Film Corporation it was said Mr. Lazarus was not registered as a stockholder in either Fox Film Corporation or Fox Theatres Corporation. The announcement in regard to Mr. Cole was issued too late for the company to make an examination of books to learn if he was a registered stockholder, but he is unknown to the attorneys for the trustees appointed to control the company.

RADIO STOCK KEPT BY WESTINGHOUSE

Shares Received for Patents Will Be Held as Investment Despite Loss of Contract.

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company still holds the stock in the Radio Corporation of America that it received in return for certain patent rights and will continue to hold it as an investment, A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board, said yesterday. It was reported that the company had sold its Radio stock last Summer at about $260 a share, but Mr. Robertson said yesterday that the company holds 50,000 shares of preferred stock and more than 200,000 shares of common.

Mr. Robertson added that the monthly statements of the company after the first of the year probably would show lower earnings compared with 1929 because its contract for radio manufacturing for the Radio corporation would be ended. On Dec. 31 the Radio corporation will transfer all its manufacturing to the Radio-Victor corporation. Mr. Robertson said that by the time of the first quarterly report, however, he expected earnings would indicate that the 1930 income would be about the same as that in 1929.

The starting of the manufacture of electric refrigerators on Jan. 2 in the Mansfield (Ohio) plant is one line in which Mr. Robertson expects an expansion that will offset the decrease from the ending of radio manufacture.

Gross business this year would approximate about $220,000,000, establishing a record for the company, Mr. Robertson said. He figured that almost 50 per cent of this was paid in wages to employes, of which there were 53,000, an increase of 6,000 over 1928. In 1930, he said, the company would spend $10,000,000 in new buildings and repairs.

J. S. Tritle, vice president of the Westinghouse, announced in Newark yesterday that the first of a series of contracts for an $8,000,000 plant, employing 15,000, in the Port Newark area had been awarded to the Public Service Production Company. The first unit, to cost about $750,000, it was reported, will be completed by May.

CALLS RATE CUTS ONLY SOP

John H. Fahey at Bay State Inquiry Replies to Utilities' Claim.

BOSTON, Dec. 12 (AP).—John H. Fahey, publisher of The Worcester Post, today told the special legislative commission appointed to investigate public utilities that privately owned utility companies almost invariably in the past had cut their rates only in anticipation of a general public demand. He added that the extent of such reductions was only enough "to keep the public quiet."

Mr. Fahey, who is a former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said that such a policy of voluntary reduction in rates usually had the effect of forestalling any considerable compulsory reduction.

He cited for consideration a period between 1921 and 1927 when, he said, the earnings of public utilities in general were greater than ever before, but which period was noteworthy for the small number of rate reductions made.

He submitted such testimony in reply to allegations by utility representatives who had appeared previously that the privately owned utilities had practiced making voluntary rate reductions.

ALBANY TRACTION PROTEST.

Bondholders' Committee Urges Opposition to Associated Gas Plan.

The committee of bondholders of the United Traction Company of Albany, formed recently to protest against offers of the controlling company, the Associated Gas and Electric Company, to exchange their bonds for securities of Associated Gas or affiliated companies, requested yesterday that all holders of consolidated mortgage 4½ per cent bonds, due in 2004, deposit them with the Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company, as depository, or the Troy Trust Company or the Mechanics and Farmers Bank of Albany as sub-depositories.

The notice said that since publication of their former notice, on Nov. 8, the semi-annual interest of the bonds, due Dec. 1, 1929, was in default and that prompt and concerted action is imperative to prevent impairment of the lien of the 4½ per cent mortgage. The committee consists of Harold K. Downing, chairman pro tem., of Troy; Frank E. McCarthy of Troy, Charles H. McElroy of Albany and Nathaniel F. Glidden and William Carnegie Ewen of New York City.

WHEAT ENDS HIGHER AFTER 6-CENT RANGE

Chicago Follows Liverpool in Early Rise, but Falls Later as Prices Abroad Decline.

CORN FINISHES WITH A GAIN

Oats Prices Better at Close—Activity in Rye Increases, With Irregularity at End.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Wheat fluctuated in an erratic manner today, with a break of 30 from the early high point and a rally of 3½ cents later. The close was at about the top, with net gains of 1⅝ to 1½ cents.

Early buying was based on strength in Liverpool, which broke badly toward the last and finished ½d to 2¼d lower, with July leading. This was followed by fairly general selling here, which carried May down to $1.30¾, the pit element pressing the selling side on the way down. At $1.30¾ and under aggressive buying absorbed the surplus in the pit, and when the local element started to cover on rumors that an announcement was to come from the Farm Board they found offerings light.

Liquidation by commission house longs has been on for some days and evidence of heavy professional selling also was seen. Part of the recent pressure was regarded as establishing losses for income tax purposes. Sentiment was more favorable to the buying side than of late, and the technical position is regarded as having been materially strengthened here and in outside markets by the severe declines of the last eight days, with values here 12¾ to 13 cents under the recent high.

Liverpool was firm early and ½d to ¾d lower later, with American selling orders a factor in the closing break. The Liverpool-Chicago May spread narrowed sharply and was only 7 cents at the last, against 9¾ cents earlier in the week. Cash interests bought May wheat early, presumably removing hedges against export sales, and business in all positions was finally estimated at 600,000 bushels.

Winnipeg, after early weakness, finished ⅝ to 1⅛ cents higher. Buenos Aires was strong all day and closed 1¼ to 1⅝ cents higher.

Primary receipts were 1,119,000 bushels, a week ago 767,000, and a year ago 1,468,000. Shipments were 470,000 bushels; a week ago 852,000 and a year ago 628,000.

December corn kept above Wednesday's close all day, and, with shorts covering, acted a little light, ending ⅝ cent higher, with the best figures at the close. Deferred futures were unsettled, in sympathy with wheat, net gains being ⅛ to ⅝ cent. Outside trade broadened a little. Corn's extreme range has been around 4 cents a bushel in the last eight days, compared with 13 cents for wheat. Buenos Aires finished ⅝ cent lower.

Primary receipts were 1,121,000 bushels, a week ago 598,000 and a year ago 2,044,000. Shipments were 542,000 bushels; a week ago 502,000 and a year ago 963,000.

Oats finished ⅛ to ⅜ cent higher, with selling by houses with Northwestern connections offset by buying on resting orders.

Rye was somewhat more active. A local cash house was a persistent seller of December and shorts covered. The close was ⅜ cent lower to ⅝ cent higher, the former on December. Sales of 250,000 bushels were made to go to store.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

Lead was the centre of activity in the non-ferrous metals group during the past week. With prices in that metal holding firm in principal markets, sales were well above the average for a single week's business, according to The Engineering and Mining Journal. Sales approached 6,000 tons.

There was little interest in copper for domestic account, with the price maintained at 18 cents in Connecticut. There was a slight improvement in inquiries, with most of the demand for near-by delivery. Sales did not exceed several hundred tons a day.

Although zinc prices were slightly lower, this failed to arouse buying interest, and the demand was below normal. The tin market was likewise quiet during the week in spite of the move abroad for restraining production.

BAD NEWS IGNORED; COTTON HOLDS WELL

Prices Finish at Bottom 4 to 8 Points Lower—Estimate of Consumption Reduced.

SHADING IN FINISHED GOODS

Rush Orders for Filling-In Purposes From All Parts of Country Show Retail Activity.

Although yesterday's news furnished generally unfavorable influences, prices on the Cotton Exchange held within a few points of Wednesday's closing level and ended at the bottom with a loss of 4 to 8 points on the day.

The Exchange Service estimated domestic consumption for November at 526,000 bales, compared with 640,000 in October, 611,000 in November last year and 625,000 two years ago. The showing reflected the rapid progress made in carrying out the curtailment program adopted more than a month ago, but the change occurred more quickly than expected.

Reports recently to Washington from foreign countries said textile conditions in Central Europe have shown some improvement, though production exceeds distribution in Japan and England. British Board of Trade returns give exports of 12,000,000 pounds of yarn in November, compared with 15,000,000 last year, and 284,000,000 yards of cloths, against 331,000,000 a year ago. Advices from Germany said that the price of Indian cotton relative to American is now more favorable for the substitution of Indian than last year, while the parity favors Egyptian above American to a greater extent than last year.

Cheaper Gifts Being Bought.

The type of reorders which has developed during the past ten days for holiday items confirms the belief that where retail volume is forging ahead it is mainly on the inexpensive items. This trend reflects the promotion tactics now in use by most retailers and is particularly apparent in such lines as novelty jewelry, perfumery, handbags and home decoration accessories such as lighting novelties. While volume is gaining, most retailers find it necessary to push very hard to obtain increases. This was said yesterday to be the experience of out-of-town merchants as well as of many of the local stores.

Importers' Big Profits Denied.

Figures refuting the claim that importers make exhorbitant profits are contained in over 100 reports received by the committee on customs of the National Council of American Importers and Traders, Inc., it was announced after a meeting of the committee yesterday. The reports were sent by importers in answer to a questionnaire sent out two weeks ago after the charges were made in Washington. An official report on the canvass is expected from the committee after the replies have been thoroughly analyzed.

Value of Silk Figures Stressed.

The importance of the monthly reporting of stocks, sales and production as an indication of the trend of the broad silk industry was emphasized at the meeting yesterday of the broad silk manufacturers' division of the Silk Association of America held at the Advertising Club. The gathering considered contemporary trade problems in accordance with President Hoover's suggestion and the recent National Business Conference at Washington. Recommendation was made that meetings of the division be held monthly to discuss trade conditions. Paul C. Bebry of the Duplan Silk Corporation, chairman of the division, presided.

Leather Trade to Push Efforts.

As a follow-up to the recent Hoover conference, a meeting of the leather industry will be held on Tuesday at the Carlton Hotel in Washington under the auspices of the Tanners' Council of America, it was announced yesterday by Fraser M. Moffat, president. The gathering, to be largely attended by sales managers and salesmen from the leading leather centres, is designed to help these sales representatives do a better job by affording them a true picture of the economic status of the country, Mr. Moffat said. Special emphasis will be placed on combating the psychological influences arising from the rating of the leather industry as one of the "depressed trades," he added.

Silverware Gain Expected.

Reports of a growing public trend to silver and silver-plated ware are receiving serious attention from manufacturers in this field. Their confidence in this possibility is reflected by plans for offering more extensive lines of new patterns and styles next Spring than they did this year. Sales of silverware dropped noticeably with the introduction of chromium plating processes some time ago. During the present Fall the interest in silverware is said to have increased throughout the country.

Other Denim Prices Reduced.

Additional lines of denims were priced here yesterday for the first quarter of 1930 in keeping with the lower basic levels set by the leading producer late Wednesday afternoon. These were given in yesterday's TIMES and were 15 cents for 28-inch 2.20-yard "white backs" and 19¼ cents for 36-inch 1.70s. Prices made by the Pepperell Manufacturing Company, which are above the general market, are based on 19½ cents for 28-inch 2.20-yard Massachusetts denims and 19½ cents for "D. D. H." eight-ounce, extra heavy goods. The principal reasons for making prices generally at this time were said yesterday to be a desire to clear up existing uncertainties and to give work-clothing manufacturers a chance for an early start on 1930 business.

Raw Fur Market Stronger.

Although business in raw furs in the market at the moment is uneven, there are appearances of greater underlying strength than has been seen for some time. The price trend on new furs is downward. Shipments are not coming in so rapidly as usual, but whether this is due to greater care by dealers in buying or to the unwillingness of trappers and collectors to accept lower prices is not wholly clear. There are evidences of buying for foreign account, and it is to them that the better tone of the market is ascribed. Buying by local manufacturing furriers is not active, except in isolated cases. Wolf and raccoon are among the most active skins.

Grocery Lull Still Noted.

Conditions in the grocery field are unchanged this week. The slight recession noted two weeks ago is still found although its effects have not been serious. Canned goods, particularly canned fruits, are in active demand. Retail business continues good in all lines. Holiday buying is more pronounced in this branch and the call for specialty products has increased. In the primary markets prices of flour, sugar and coffee declined during the week.

Percales in Strong Position.

Percales and other printed cottons are in a strong position in this market at the moment, and indications of pessimism are lacking. An executive of one of the chief printed goods houses here yesterday reported Wednesday's sales ahead of those for the same date during the past five years. In some cases shipments are wanted immediately of percales originally bought for delivery after Christmas. In others, duplicate business is already coming on shipments made around Nov. 15. Cotton wash goods have also been duplicated to some extent by cutters-up, despite backward buying of the finished garments by many retailers.

Gray Goods Demand Limited.

Buying of gray goods did not run into any real volume here yesterday. Small sales of 39½-inch 64-60 printcloths were put through at 6¾ cents, while larger lots moved at an eighth less. For 39-inch 68-72s 8¾ cents was paid, and limited sales of 39-inch 80-squares were made at 9½ cents. Well-authenticated reports were in the market of quantity sales of the 80-squares at 9¾ cents. Sheeting sales, which ran strongly to 39-inch goods, were small. They included 4.70s at 6¾ cents, 5-yard goods at 6½ cents, and 5.50s at 5¾ cents. The fine-yarn goods produced small trading in 40-inch combed lawns at 11¼ cents for 88-80 8.50s and 9½ cents for 76-72 nine-yard cloths.

Leaseholds Again Exceed in Importance Sales of Properties in Manhattan.

SEVERAL DOWNTOWN DEALS

New Lessees Take Over Sites in Lower Section—Building Planned Near Holland Tunnel.

There was no outstanding sale of property reported in Manhattan yesterday. Transactions involving small housing holdings in Yorkville and on the upper west side were announced, along with reported and recorded leaseholds, the more important of which were on holdings in the downtown area.

The five-story tenement house accommodating ten families at 227 East Eighty-eighth Street was purchased by the Rapid Developers, Inc., from Henrietta Appelson. The house is on a lot 25 by 100 feet, between Second and Third Avenues. It was held at $40,000, according to Frank Schwartz, who was associated as broker in the sale with Tanzer, Berliner & Richfield, brokers.

The west side sale was made by the estate of Wilhelmina M. Middendorf, which disposed of the house at 142 West Ninety-second Street to a client of Merchant, Olena & Flagg. E. S. Willard & Co. were the brokers in the deal.

A building operation will be undertaken near the entrance to the Holland Tunnel, as the result of the purchase of additional property by B. B. Davis & Co., who have added to their holdings 231-237 Hudson Street and the abutting three buildings at 4-8 Renwick Street and the four-story structure at northeast corner of Canal and Renwick Streets, known as 503 Canal Street and 2 Renwick Street.

REWARDS RESCUERS IN REPUBLIC'S CREW

United States Lines Presents Checks to Eight Who Saved Men on the Gander Deal.

OFFICIALS PRAISE EXPLOIT

Captain Moore and Chief Officer Winslow Also Get Money and Letters of Commendation.

Eight of the crew of the United States liner Republic who manned a lifeboat in mid-ocean and rescued the captain and crew of the schooner Gander Deal last Thursday received checks and letters of commendation from their employers yesterday morning aboard the ship as she lay at Pier 4, Hoboken. Captain A. M. Moore and Chief Officer Harold L. Winslow wre rewarded in the same manner.

Joseph E. Sheedy, executive vice president of the United States Lines, presented the checks while Paul W. Chapman, president, and William L. Bunker, vice president in charge of operations, looked on. Mr. Chapman later congratulated the men individually. In a brief talk prior to the presentation Mr. Sheedy told the men that their exploit would go into American marine history with the rescues of Captains George Fried, Paul Gremming, Schuyler Cummings, Harry Manning, Robert Miller and Giles Stedman.

"We cannot really pay you for the work you have done," said Mr. Sheedy. "Your work was beyond the pale of financial reward. But we want to offer you tokens of our esteem and appreciation. The United States Lines is keeping record of the work of its men and I can assure you that accomplishments such as this rescue will be considered important factors in the promotion of our men."

Commissioner S. S. Sandberg of the Shipping Board sent the following telegram:

"As a brother seafarer I want to congratulate the officers and crew of the S. S. Republic for their heroic rescue of the crew of the Gander Deal. This and other rescues by the officers and crews of the ships of your line demonstrate that the ideals and traditions of American seamen are being perpetuated and will be an inspiration for the increased personnel necessary to man the many new ships to be placed under the American flag in the new era we are now entering upon in restoring our prestige upon the seas."

Among the men honored were Fonce Kellam, who participated as a member of the liner America in the rescue of the Florida in January; Karl J. Johnson, who holds the Victory Medal for his service with the American Army on the western front, and John C. Cole, to whom the Royal Humane Life Saving Medal and the United States Navy Cross were awarded for his part in the rescue of thirty-six men of the hospital ship Glenart Castle.

The others who received rewards are Victor Guarduerl, John Flander, Walter Everts, George Garden and Hans Mooshate.

URGES REALTY MEN TO FIGHT TAX RISES

L. F. Stevens Tells New Jersey Convention That Change in System Is Essential.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 12.—L. F. Stevens of Pittsburgh told the opening session of the annual convention of the New Jersey Association of Real Estate Boards at the Ambassador today that the real estate men of the country must present a united front in fighting for a new deal in taxation.

He said that in the last two months an optimistic view of the real estate field had been afforded and that the prospects were reassuring all over the country. The business conference called by President Hoover, he declared, marked a new era dawning in all industry.

Mr. Stevens declared concerted action must be taken on municipal taxes, for with taxes advanced on an average of 15½ per cent it was impossible for rentals and increased values to absorb them.

"The time has arrived for a rewriting of our tax system," he said. "We have devised new forms of wealth, we must equalize the tax rates. I look for a remade national tax system before long."

The annual report of John R. M. O'Connor of Montclair, president of the State association, revealed a healthy condition in New Jersey.

Fifty per cent of the stores, shops, offices, factories and other business establishments in our American cities are improperly located, John Borge, sales counselor of the national association, told the convention.

BIG SHIP PROGRAM ASKED TO AID YARDS

They Can Handle $250,000,000 in New Contracts in 3 Years, American Council Reports.

American shipyards are equipped to undertake the construction of $225,000,000 in ships in the next three years without even attaining their normal capacity, according to a survey report prepared by the National Council of American Shipbuilders, 11 Broadway, and submitted to the United States Chamber of Commerce.

This estimate deals with the seaboard shipyards and disregards those concerned with tonnage on the Great Lakes and inland waterways.

With this volume the shipyards would be able to offer employment to 10,000 more men than at present, and a similar number would be added to the forces of associated industries, the report held. This is based on the standard estimate that 80 per cent of the cost of a merchant vessel goes to labor, 40 per cent in the shipyards and 40 per cent to associated industries.

American shipyards experienced a great boom in the year ended Nov. 1, 1929, when contracts for merchant and naval vessels totaled $122,600,000, of which $101,600,000 was for merchant ships. The unfinished merchant vessels totaled $93,300,000. To maintain a yearly volume of ship construction equal to that now on hand, the council estimates, contracts of at least $75,000,000 are required and 10,000 extra men must be employed.

The report says:

"In view of these conditions the shipbuilding companies are seriously interested in the pending applications of ship owners for mail contracts and for loans from the construction loan fund of the Shipping Board which together with tankers involve construction of not less than fifty-five ocean-going merchant vessels. Reasonable adjustments of these applications on the part of the Postoffice Department and Shipping Board would result in the construction of such vessels at an estimated expenditure of approximately $200,000,000 over a period of three years.

"To this amount can be added an estimated expenditure, during same period, of approximately $26,000,000 for miscellaneous crafts that will be constructed without government aid. Thus there would be assured, during a period of three years, an estimated volume of new merchant ship construction which would require the expenditure of not less than $75,000,000 a year and the employment of approximately 36,000 workmen, or about 10,000 more than are now employed in the construction of merchant vessels."

The council urged that the government extend its aid to ships that are not now aided by the construction loan fund and mail contracts, to encourage further construction. It suggested that a larger percentage of the first cost of ships be covered by government loans, that interest on these loans be waived during the first year of the ships' construction and deferred for a period after completion of vessels. The report is signed by H. G. Smith, president of the council.

SHIP FIRE MENACED CARGO OF MATCHES

Swedish Captain Ran Before Gale in Atlantic While Crew Fought Flames in Hold.

BOSTON, Dec. 12 (AP).—Captain S. J. Svenson and the crew of forty of the Swedish motorship Lagaholm know how it feels to sit on the lid of a smoldering powder magazine. The Lagaholm docked today, bringing a tale of peril on the sea that has been seldom duplicated.

The ship, making a maiden voyage, was ten days out of Gottenberg, Sweden, on Dec. 1, thrashing and pitching in the fury of a North Atlantic storm, when fire broke out in its hold. Swedish matches constituted a large portion of her cargo, and Captain Svenson does not like to discuss what might have happened had the fire reached that part of the cargo.

Eighteen hours the crew labored without a respite, pouring water down the hatches and turning pumps into the hold. Captain Svenson brought his vessel about and ran before the gale. It eased the ship and steadied her some, though the following sea sometimes lapped her taffrail and her prow sank deep before it lifted out of the trough of the waves.

When the fire had been extinguished, Captain Svenson put the Lagaholm back on her course, arriving today after twenty-two days on what would normally be a twelve or fourteen day voyage, with a cargo somewhat damaged by water, particularly the matches.

CUTTER CONVOYS VESSEL.

Rudderless U. S. Kohler Creeping Toward Hampton Roads.

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 12 (AP).—Buffeted by northeast winds too strong to permit the Coast Guard Cutter Manning to take her in tow, the disabled schooner G. A. Kohler today under short sail was creeping slowly toward Hampton Roads at a three-knot rate, while the rescue cutter acted as convoy.

The Manning last night picked up the Kohler, which three days ago sent out a call for help because of loss of a rudder, and a food and water supply diminished then almost to vanishing point. On Tuesday night the schooner had been spoken by a passing American steamer and given a food supply for several days.

The Kohler is out of St. Maria, Haiti, with a cargo of logwood.

The cutter will take it in tow as soon as moderating weather permits.

LAKE ONTARIO TUG SINKS.

The Frontenac's Crew Is Saved Near Duck Islands.

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 12 (AP).—The tug Frontenac of the Sinmac Lines foundered between the Main Ducks and Pigeon Island late last night, it was learned here this afternoon. All the members of the crew were saved.

The Frontenac and the tug Rival went out to the wreck of the Sarniadoc at the Main Duck Islands Wednesday to lighter some of the cargo of grain, but were forced by rough weather to return.

The eighteenth annual appeal for the Hundred Neediest Cases continues in today's issue of The New York Times.

ASSAILS CONDITION OF CITY'S STREETS

Dr. G. A. Soper Says Methods Here Are Far Behind Europe's and Urges Reforms.

STRAUS SEES INEFFICIENCY

Resolution Adopted at Meeting of Committee of Twenty Asking a Better System.

The entire system of street cleaning in the city, particularly methods of handling ashes and refuse, was assailed last night at a meeting held under the auspices of the Committee of Twenty on Street and Outdoor Cleanliness at the Engineering Auditorium, 25 West Thirty-ninth Street. About 500 persons attending the meeting applauded vigorously as speakers condemned the "antiquated" apparatus and recommended modern equipment to better the situation.

Dr. George A. Soper, sanitary engineer and member of the committee, contrasted the methods here with dustless collection systems and scientific incinerating plants he said he observed in European cities on a recent trip. In fundamental changes in the system here Dr. Soper recommended the following improvements:

"Improved, covered house receptacles for garbage and other refuse, covered, motor-driven collecting vehicles for dustless collection, a two-part system of separation of house refuse, encouragement of home burning of refuse and tight bundling of papers, incinerating plants for all the house refuse of the city, cleaning of sidewalks by Street Cleaning Department except as to removal of snow, an ordinance prohibiting littering of streets, the installation of litter baskets on the streets, hand labor to collect litter on streets and a system of cost accounting to show the value of equipment and procedure in street cleaning."

Mrs. F. S. McCarthy of the New York League of Women Voters criticized the city administration, particularly the Street Cleaning, Police and Health Departments, for the "filthy" streets, she said, the league had found in a survey, as well as individuals whose "ignorance, carelessness and lack of taste for cleanliness" were responsible for outdoor untidiness.

Health Commissioner Wynne defended his department, which, he held, was primarily concerned with disease and health as street cleaning had been long ago transferred to other departments. He urged public education in cleanliness and asserted that if the taxpayers wanted better equipment they would have to spend more money.

Nathan Straus Jr. took issue with Commissioner Wynne, asserting that the city spent more money on street cleaning than any other city and had accomplished the least in keeping the city clean. He declared that New York was "dirtier than any large city in the civilized world" and said it was up to Dr. Wynne and Dr. William Schroeder, chairman of the Sanitary Commission, to remedy the conditions.

Mr. Straus's remarks precipitated numerous complaints from persons in the audience who sought to air their grievances against the city in other matters as well as those pertaining to the subject under discussion. Direct attacks were aimed at Commissioner Wynne as a representative of the city administration until Dr. Bernard Sachs, chairman of the committee, who presided, called an adjournment.

Other speakers were Dr. John H. Finley and William A. Boylan, Associate Superintendent of Schools. A resolution unanimously adopted, requested the city to dispose of the obsolete street cleaning equipment and replace it with modern covered cans and carts, a dustless collection system and incinerators.

WOULD BUILD SCHOOLS AS STABILIZATION AID

Dr. Strayer to Advise Nation-Wide Program of Construction to Hoover Committee.

Dr. George D. Strayer of Teachers College, Columbia University, will recommend to President Hoover's National Advisory Committee on Education an immediate and nation-wide program for building and improving public schools as the soundest method of stabilizing America's economic structure.

Dr. Strayer said "a billion dollars could be spent on such a program and the results still would be inadequate for this country's needs."

WALKER EXPECTED TO DROP QUIGLEY

Hylan Appointee, as License Commissioner, May Not Be Reappointed.

OTHER CHANGES SUGGESTED

Leader Dolen Recommended for Bronx Park Commissioner and He May Be Named.

The second move in Mayor Walker's plan to change the heads of some of the city departments is expected to be the failure to reappoint William P. Quigley as Commissioner of Licenses, it was learned yesterday. Mr. Quigley, like Joseph P. Hennessy, whose term of office as Bronx Park Commissioner was terminated recently by the refusal of the Board of Estimate to grant a further extension of the age limit, is a holdover from the Hylan Administration. Like Mr. Hennessy, Mr. Quigley is from the Bronx.

James F. Geraghty, Democratic leader of the First Bronx Assembly District, is a candidate to succeed Mr. Quigley. Second Deputy Police Commissioner Felix A. Muldoon, from the Bronx, who is in charge of the licensing division of the Police Department, also has been mentioned for the post.

Thomas J. Dolen, Democratic leader of the Fourth Bronx Assembly District, has been recommended by the Bronx Democratic organization as successor to Mr. Hennessy, and his appointment is expected to be announced in a few days.

Mayor Walker's intention of dropping Mr. Hennessy and Mr. Quigley was first reported a year ago. Should Mr. Quigley fail to receive reappointment there will be few commissioners who received appointment from Mayor Hylan remaining at the head of city departments.

Changes in some of the other city departments are expected after Jan. 1. They are likely, however, to be mostly changes among the subordinates instead of department heads.

VOLSTEAD CALLS AT WHITE HOUSE

Fails to See Hoover, but Is Said to Oppose Dry Unit Shift—Prohibition Bodies Back It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Andrew J. Volstead, father of the Volstead act, called at the White House today with S. E. Quale, prohibition administrator of the Fourth District which embraces Minnesota and other Northwest States, and saw Walter H. Newton, the President's legislative secretary, also a Minnesotan, but did not see Mr. Hoover.

Although it had been asserted that Mr. Volstead was opposed to the proposed transfer of prohibition enforcement to the Department of Justice, he would not discuss the matter because he was counsel for Mr. Quale.

However, it is understood that Mr. Volstead and Mr. Quale consider that such a transfer would mean a set back for present enforcement plans.

Meantime, it is understood that national dry organizations seem certain to band behind the President's request for reorganizing the Federal administration for prohibition enforcement.

Meeting here today the national conference of organizations supporting the Eighteenth Amendment, representing the Anti-Saloon League of America, the Methodist Temperance Board and twenty-nine other dry bodies, decided without a dissenting vote to back Mr. Hoover's program.

DEMOCRAT OPPOSED FOR POST ON I. C. C.

But Hoover Is Said to Favor Renaming Eastman—Many in South Seek Taylor's Place.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP).—President Hoover is finding the selection of two Democrats as members of the Interstate Commerce Commission anything but an easy task.

While the consensus of those close to the White House is that Joseph B. Eastman of Boston will be reappointed, strong opposing influences are at work, these including some leaders of the Republican party, as well as railroad interests.

One basis for the opposition is that Mr. Eastman favors government operation of the carriers and frequently disagrees with his colleagues on matters of major policy. However, close friends of the President say he holds strongly to the opinion that dissenters perform an extremely useful function in federal affairs.

It seems to be fairly well established that Richard V. Taylor of Mobile, Ala., will not be reappointed to the commission, and there is a real race among Southern Democrats for this place. Every Southern State except Louisiana has at least one candidate.

Some administration officers look upon A. J. Maxwell, Internal Revenue Commissioner of North Carolina, as the most likely choice. Mr. Maxwell has the endorsement of Senator Simmons, whose influence was regarded as a potent factor in the Hoover victory in that State in 1928.

Virginia is proposing Judge James P. Woods of Roanoke, who has the endorsement of Senators Glass and Swanson. Judge Robert M. Jones of Knoxville is put forward by Tennessee; R. Hudson Burr of Tallahassee by Florida, R. H. McAdams by South Carolina and the following Atlantans by Georgia: Charles E. Cotrell, James R. Bachman and Herbert E. Choate.

For instant, ice cold starts, use Hi-Test TYDOL

High-test, anti-knock, super-power . . . AT NO EXTRA COST

VEEDOL MOTOR OIL at the South Pole

Commander Byrd used VEEDOL on his famous flight over the South Pole . . . the most difficult and hazardous flight ever undertaken. The Graf Zeppelin always uses it. So should you.

Icy morning. Foot on the starter. "Rur . . . Rur . . . Rur" say the starting gears. And unless your engine starts at once, down goes your battery and down goes the gasoline into the crankcase to dilute your oil to the danger point.

You can damage your car in a week with excessive use of the choke. Change to Hi-test TYDOL for quick, clean starts . . . for roaring acceleration . . . for speed and snap all day long. Pay the regular price. No extra charge for the extra quality. Go on the GREEN-TYDOL.
